Lt. James Roberts Honored Navy Fighter Pilot Receives Council Citation For Action Over Iran

A Navy fighter pilot from Quincy who earned the prestigious Naval Air Medal for his part in the April 1988 retaliatory attack on Iran was recently commended by the Quincy City Council for his courageous action in that exercise.

Lt. James Roberts, son of George and Elizabeth Roberts of Quincy, received the commendation from Council President Ted DeCristofaro. Lt. Roberts, assigned to the USS Enterprise, was also recognized by the council "for his loyalty and faith in the noble principles of our Constitution."

"We are most grateful to Lt. Roberts for his dedication and patriotism in preserving our country's defense while striving for freedom throughout the world. Quincy salutes its honored hero," DeCristofaro said.

Roberts, who was home on leave for a few days, accepted the commendation in person. Joining him were his wife, Kim, their four-month old son, Adam, and his parents.

The Navy pilot, who is up for promotion to lieutenant commander, was one of 11 pilots and crew members awarded the prestigious Naval Air Medal for their part in the U.S. attack on Iran two years ago. The Navy destroyed two offshore oil platforms, sank a patrol boat and bombed a frigate.

The move came in retaliation for a mine explosion that tore a hole in the American frigate USS Samuel B. Roberts the week before. The explosion injured 10 crewmen.

Lt. Roberts is a second-generation Navy man. His father, George, was a chief aviation structural mechanic for 20 years. He retired in 1959.

Roberts graduated from Archbishop Williams High School in 1977 and the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., in 1981.

When he finished flight school, his father pinned on the son's newly won wings at a ceremony at the Kingsville Naval Air Station in Texas.

Arrest Warrant Issued

17-Year-Old Sought For Vandalism At Hancock Cemetery

By JANE ARENA

Police Monday issued a warrant for the arrest of a 17 year old Quincy youth in connection with last week's vandalism at the historic Hancock Cemetery near City Hall.

As the Sun went to press Monday, police had still not located the youth, whose name could not be released, but Lt. Neil McDonald said detectives were looking for him Monday afternoon.

Twelve headstones were broken or chipped during the Wednesday morning vandalism spree, and eight other stones were overturned. American flag markers from the graves of Revolutionary War veterans were also stolen, and a memorial to Quincy Police Captain William F. McIntyre on the other side of City Hall was also damaged. The repairs, which were completed by Monday, cost a total of $4,000, according to Richard McNeice, cemetery foreman.

Mayor James Sheets, who last week offered a $500 award from his own pocket for any information leading to an arrest, said Monday that such vandalism will not be tolerated in the city.

"Graveyards, whether historic or modern, are hallowed places," he said. "People believe that their loved ones should be at peace at a cemetery."

Sheets' secretary, Grace Giunchiglia added $100 to the reward.

The Hancock Cemetery is listed in the National Register of Historic Places and contains the graves of several family members of former U.S. presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

The Adams family graves were not harmed during the vandalism. The two presidents are buried across the street at the United First Parish Church.

"Vandalizing the Hancock Cemetery is even worse," Sheets said, "because it belongs to the people of the entire country. It's not just an American cemetery."

"It belongs to the people of this country and we have an obligation to make that cemetery secure. We're simply not going to tolerate that type of behavior in the City of Quincy."

Quincy Center T Station Target Sheets Ordinance Aimed At Loiterers

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

An ordinance designed to stop people from disturbing the peace and loitering on city property was submitted by Mayor James Sheets to the City Council at its special meeting Monday night.

Drafted by City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, the ordinance reads "No person shall accost or annoy persons or disturb the peace or loiter or address another person with profane or obscene language in any public park, public reservation or city owned-land in the City of Quincy."

As proposed, the ordinance carries a maximum fine of $100.

The ordinance was expected to be sent to the Ordinance Committee and be advertised. If so, the council could then vote on it at another special meeting this summer.

If approved, Sheets said the ordinance would enable the city to deal more effectively with groups which loiter on city property, especially the Quincy Center MBTA station. "I think there's a real problem (at T station) even though it may not be obvious to people who don't use the T. If we hope to revitalize downtown and expect historical tourism to be on the increase, we're going to have to create an environment that is conducive to families and tourists."

Presently, Sheets said the Quincy Center T station has a "subculture" laced with troublemakers and drug peddlers.

"People are afraid to walk through that area. The average person who would come to our city doesn't want to become a part of that subculture."

"These people have been allowed to loiter. They have to be cleared out of there. People are afraid of that atmosphere and we're going to bring that to an end," the mayor added.

Sheets said the Quincy Center station has been the major problem because there is more activity in the area. He noted there is a lot of foot traffic between the station and the cinemas on Hancock St.

The mayor said the ordinance is the second step toward the city's goal of making the T station areas cleaner. The city and the MBTA recently signed a contract whereby the four Quincy stations are cleaned and maintained by city employees whose salaries are funded by the MBTA.

The mayor and MBTA General Manager Thomas Glynn have discussed the loitering problem in the past. McGrath told Sheets a new ordinance would put the city in a "stronger position" to deal with the problem.

Delinquents Rise Sharply

1,150 Owe $3.2 Million In Back Taxes

The number of real estate tax delinquents in Quincy increased dramatically during FY 1990 and city officials blame the economy as the number one reason.

According to Tax Collector Dana Childs, Quincy had 270 delinquent tax titles totaling $595,000 at the end of fiscal 1989. However, the FY 1990 numbers are much higher.

As of Monday, Childs said there are 1,150 outstanding tax titles for FY 1990 totaling $3.2 million. The figure represents 4.9 percent of the FY 90 levy which was $65.8 million.

Why the dramatic increase? "It's the economy, definitely," Childs said.

Tax department data shows empty condominiums and uncompleted housing projects account for 20 percent of the taxes owed Quincy this year.

"They started the projects really at the end of the condo boom and as they were building, the market was soft. You don't have the sales, you can't pay back the loans and you can't pay your taxes," Childs said.

Quincy's biggest tax delinquents this year are Paul Ricciardi and his sons, Stephen and Paul F. Ricciardi. At one time, the Ricciardis were considered the city's largest developers.

For FY 1990, the Ricciardis have yet to pay $323,334 in taxes on the Presidents Place project in Quincy Center, the Summit View Affordable Housing project in West Quincy and the Captain's Cove condominium project in Town Bay.

Overall, they owe $771,000 in back taxes.

Childs is already working on collecting the outstanding money. He has mailed demand notices, giving property owners 14 days to pay their taxes.

If they don't, a letter is sent warning the holder that the outstanding bill will be advertised in the Quincy Sun. After that, Childs records the tax title taking and the final step is petitioning the land court for foreclosure.

Other cities and towns south of Boston are also experiencing a surge in delinquent tax money.

In fact, 13 out of 28 communities in the region have a higher percentage of tax delinquency than Quincy. For example, 14.2 percent of the tax levy in Halifax is overdue ($506,224 out of $3.5 million levy).

While he expects that the city will eventually receive the overdue tax money, Mayor James A. Sheets said the city may have to temporarily borrow money.

He noted the city had anticipated about $1.7 million in delinquent tax money when the FY 1990 budget was drafted. Since the actual figure was $3.2 million, the mayor said the city will have to borrow to make up for the $1.5 million.

Ward 1 Marshes To Be Cut

The city's park department, under the direction of Director Ray Cattaneo in cooperation with the Mayor's Office, will cut various marshes throughout Ward 1 the next two weeks. Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson announces.

The marsh areas on Spring St., Sea St., Post Island, Mallard Rd. and behind Broadmeadows Middle School will be cut to protect nearby residents from the threat of fire.

The fragmites or "elephant grass" will be cut by park department personnel with department equipment during the next two weeks.

Kolson said controlling the growth of the grass will increase public safety in his ward.

Morrissey Wants Walking Tours At Proposed Noise Barrier Locations

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) has requested that the Department of Public Works hold a series of walking tours to accommodate residents abutting three locations along the Southeast Expressway where the department proposed for barrier installation are:

The locations proposed for barrier installation are:

- Quincy: Northbound side of expressway between Hall Place at Willard St. and about 600 feet northwest of Stedman St. at Willard St.
- Milton: Northbound side of expressway between Wood St. at Granite Ave. and about 1,600 feet northwest of Squantum St. at I-93.
- Milton/Quincy: Southbound side of expressway between Bates Ave. at Bryant Ave. in Quincy and about 800 feet beyond the Lochland St. cul-de-sac in Milton.

Following a recent public meeting regarding the project, some residents still have questions regarding the size and location of the proposed barriers.

"A walking tour of the area would give residents a chance to visualize the presence of noise barriers along the expressway, and thereby help them to understand how the size, maintenance, and landscaping of the barriers will affect their neighborhood," Morrissey said.

If the consensus of area residents and property owners is in favor of noise barriers, the department plans to proceed with the project.

"Because the determination of public acceptance will not be made until residents have had an opportunity to fully understand the project, we're hopeful the department will comply with our request so that walking tours can be scheduled in the near future," Morrissey said.

Complaint Filed Against Clean Harbors

By JANE ARENA

The Coalition for a Safe Environment, founded by Hingham residents Ginny Kurtzman and Suzanne Anderson, has filed a complaint with the State Ethics Commission concerning the proposal by Clean Harbors, Inc. to locate a hazardous waste incinerator in the Fore River Basin.

The Coalition cites several instances of conflict of interest and unethical behavior on the part of members of the Hazardous Waste Facility Site Safety Council, its attorney Daniel Hassenfeld, and certain employees of CHI.

The Coalition alleges that Hassenfeld has "continually gone beyond his role as legal advisor to the Council," in that he has allegedly entered motions to be acted on by the Council, as well as issuing policy statements to be applied by Council members when determining how to vote on certain issues.

"We believe that Mr. Hassenfeld has consistently interpreted the Council's regulations to the benefit of the developer and to the detriment of the communities," Anderson said. "There are for example, the Coalition alleges that at a meeting held March 6, 1990, Hassenfeld told members of the Quincy and Weymouth Local Assessment Committees that 'the mission of the Council was to help a developer site a facility over the objections of the communities.'"

"Clearly," Anderson says, "if one reads the regulations, there is no indication that his interpretation describes an accurate intent of the law."

Other allegations brought forth in the complaint include a question of conflict of interest against Council member Dave Cramer. Cramer is employed by the Claims Processing subsidiary of American International Group (AIG), AIG is the underwriter of the general liability policy on CHI, the complaint states.

Council member James Gagnon, who represents the Associated Industries of Massachusetts (AIM) is employed by James River Graphics, the complaint notes. James River Graphics is a customer of Clean Harbors. Clean Harbors is also a member of AIM.

The complaint also cites — "questionable relationships between CHI employees and the state."

Kurtzman and Anderson say that Coalition members have reviewed "thousands of pages of transcripts" from Council meetings to verify their allegations.

"How these seemingly blatant conflicts of interest have been allowed to go on is beyond explanation," Kurtzman said. "The time has come to put a stop to this charade."

The Clean Harbors proposal to locate the hazardous waste incinerator has recently passed two hurdles: Approval of the Secretary of Environmental Affairs, John DeVillars on the Environmental Impact Report, and the approval of the Site Safety Council on the Social Economic Appendix.

The donation will be added to the Y's annual Support Campaigns for such uses as memberships and camperships for underprivileged kids and scholarships.

Barry New School Health Care Coordinator

Rosalie Barry of Quincy, a school nurse at Quincy Vocational-Technical School, has been named health care coordinator for Quincy public schools.

Barry, employed in city schools for 16 years, replaces Barbara Hunt who recently retired.

A certified nurse, Barry holds a masters degree in business administration from Anna Maria College and a bachelor of science degree in nursing from Columbia University. She is a member of the National School Nurses Organization.

"I'm very pleased and excited," Barry said, adding her goals are to continue and improve the programs currently underway.

"I also hope to continue to upgrade the image of nurses throughout the city. The concept of school nurses dispensing band aids is obsolete.

"Our role is important and complicated, and I intend making school nurses in the city a model for other school systems," she added.

As the owed money is collected, borrowed money is paid back, he noted.

In the meantime, Auditor Robert Foy is figuring out the city's year-end balance for FY 1990 which ended Saturday at midnight. Sheets said any deficit will be rolled over into FY 1991.

If there is a surplus, that money would go into free cash and be spent on rehiring city employees who face being laid off and refunding other cuts, the mayor said.

As the mayor awaits the final numbers, he does not envision any more cuts than the six percent cuts he imposed in the spring. "I don't see any more cuts for fiscal 1991. FY 1992 is another year—could be," he said, noting contracts for all city employees are up for negotiation this fiscal year.

PAWS Offers Help And Hope To Disabled

By JANE ARENA

When Ann Sava decided four years ago to get a puppy, all she was looking for was a pet and a watch dog.

What she ultimately found was much more.

Around the time she brought six week old Chelsea home, Ann suffered an injury which would leave her partially disabled for the rest of her life.

Today Ann, a North Weymouth resident, has trouble with her back and right shoulder, has only limited use of her right arm and no feeling in her hand. Her disability makes it difficult for her to carry any weight or to bend down to lift anything.

Luckily, she has Chelsea. Chelsea was trained by Mike Kelly of Braintree as a service dog for Ann, the equivalent of a seeing-eye dog for a blind person.

Chelsea wears a back pack to carry items that Ann needs, she is trained to pick up over 50 items Ann might drop, including the cane she sometimes uses, and she also understands a "brace" command to allow Ann to use her as a support if she needs to get up or down in a kneeling position.

"Without Chelsea I'm really not sure if I would have been strong enough to accept the changes that had taken place in my life," Ann says. "I get my strength and courage from her."

After coming to rely on

ANN SAVA (seated) and her service dog Chelsea present a program about PAWS, Public Awareness of Service Dogs, to students at Central Middle School. The non-profit service educates the public on the role of service dogs to disabled people.

Chelsea for help in everyday tasks, Ann realized that the general society was not aware of the role of service dogs. Although seeing-eye dogs are common, many people may not be aware of dogs specially trained to assist the hearing impaired or those confined to a wheelchair or those with less obvious disabilities.

With this in mind, Ann and Chelsea have taken the message of service dogs to the public through a public awareness project called PAWS (Public Awareness of Service Dogs).

They have visited several schools in Quincy and surrounding areas to demonstrate the special abilities of service dogs.

"PAWS hopes to educate as many people as we can reach," Ann says, "teaching them about the different dogs and how to identify them."

The school presentations have been so popular, Ann notes, that she and Chelsea have been visiting area schools once or twice a week since February.

At the close of the school year she hopes to bring her message to other groups including church groups and businesses, in an effort to help the public to learn to identify various types of service dogs in public places.

In addition to public education, PAWS, which is sponsored by the South Shore Humane Society and Helping Hounds, also acts as a resource for handicapped individuals and their families in discovering the various types of service dogs which are available and how to obtain them.

The organization relies partly on private donations. Contributions may be made by check to the South Shore Humane society, Box 187, Braintree, MA 02184.

For information on setting up a PAWS demonstration, which normally lasts for about 45 minutes, contact Ann Sava at 335-0037.

Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive July 17

The sixth annual Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive will be held Tuesday, July 17 from 2 to 8 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St., Houghs Neck.

The blood drive is held in memory of Chris Peter, son of Charles and Trudy Peter of Quincy, who was killed by a drunk driver in September 1982. He was 22 years old.

In association with the American Red Cross and a wonderful group of family and volunteers, the blood drive has grown. Last year, 118 pints of blood were collected, bringing the five year total to 522 pints.

The blood drive has a very strong anti-drunk driving theme with posters on the wall and handouts at the refreshment table.

"Although the reason for this drive is our son's death, we find the donors, family and volunteers make it more a celebration of life," the Peters said.

The family provides child care for parents of small children, with adult supervision, games to play and fun things to do. Trudy Peter also bakes many homemade goodies to supplement the Red Cross Snack table.

For more information or an appointment, call the Peters at 471-9586.

Historic Launching For USS Long Beach

John A. McCone, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was set to be the principal speaker at the July 14 launching of the 14,000 cruiser Long Beach, the Navy's first nuclear surface ship, at Bethlehem's Fore River Shipyard.

Navy Secretary William B. Franke and Admiral Arleigh Burke, chief of Naval Operations, also were scheduled to be on hand as the Long Beach and the guided missile destroyer Macdonough were floated out together from the same basin.

Meanwhile, James McGonnigal, executive secretary of Local 5, said that new demands made by Bethlehem during early contract talks in New York were a threat to the completion of nuclear-powered ships under construction at Fore River.

McGonnigal said the company had demanded changes in each of the 26 articles in the agreement with the union, including the substitution of the words "skill and efficiency" for "length of service" in the section covering layoffs.

The three-year contract for 7,700 Fore River workers, signed in November, 1956, was to expire at the end of July.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Heath Bar Cake

We were about to go out to dinner with our friends, Esther and Joe, when she called and asked if we would like some of the birthday cake their daughter, Joan, had made the day before.

Of course, I couldn't refuse. Especially since Esther told me it had some Heath bars as part of the ingredients. Well, needless to say, after I tasted it, I saved a small piece for each family member as they would visit and we all gave it a big "10."

JOANIE'S HEATH BAR CAKE

1 box yellow cake mix
(or make one from scratch)
¾ cup of Hershey Syrup
12 oz. of whipped topping
3 large Heath bars crushed additional 2 Tbsps. Hershey syrup Bake the cake in a 9 x 13 inch baking pan. Remove from oven and while still warm, pierce holes in the top with a 2 pronged meat fork (or something similar). Fill the holes with the three quarter cup of Hershey syrup. On top of that, put the whipped topping and the three crushed Heath bars. Then pour the additional Hershey syrup over the top. Refrigerate and serve cool. Even people who don't usually eat desert tried this one!

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previte's Market, Summer St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Fashion Show Raises Over $8,000 For CP

More than 400 guests attended the 10th annual Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Benefit Fashion Show held recently in the grand ballroom of the Sheraton Tara in Braintree.

The main stars of the show were the children of the CPSS's clinic, the Children's Developmental Disability Center located on Adams St., Quincy. Roxbury.

Gabrielle, who was legally adopted last July, is now attending the Jackson Mann school in Boston. About 150 children have been adopted in the nine years the program has been on the air.

Fashion Committee Chairperson Janice Walsh was mistress of ceremonies. CPSS President Roger Pritzker presented a plaque to Williams recognizing him for his work with children with disabilities.

Special sponsors of the show were Shawmut Bank, Empire Engineering of Canton, S&L Photocopy of Boston, Colonial Federal Savings of Quincy, the Braintree Jaycees, A. Lamb Riggers of Canton, M. Lasden, Inc. of Canton, Independent Pipe of Canton, Brown, Altman CPAs of Canton, Charitable Mechanic Association, Quincy Sons of Italy, Carvin and Carvin of Braintree and Ralph Pill of Canton.

Francis Eaton Independent Candidate For State Representative

Francis (Sandy) Eaton of Quincy announces his candidacy for State Representative, third Norfolk District, the seat currently held by Robert Cerasoli.

Eaton, a staff nurse at Quincy Hospital and a founding member and past president of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights, will run as an independent candidate.

He is a member of the Massachusetts Nursing Association (MNA), and has served as Chairman of the Quincy Hospital staff nurses bargaining unit to the MNA.

Currently, Eaton is Director of the Cabinet on Professional, Economic and General Welfare, the body which oversees the MNA state-wide collective bargaining program for registered nurses and other health care professionals.

"I am moved to run for office by anger at the deep cutbacks in public education and human services," Eaton says, "by concern for working families, and by disappointment in the political climate and current leadership which combines sectarian bickering with disregard for the interest and input of ordinary people."

Eaton has identified several issues he plans to focus on during his campaign, including education, health care, human services and employment rights.

Eaton supports a national health plan similar to the Canadian system.

"The Canadians have a good system, combining universal access to quality care with real cost containment through the elimination of private insurers," Eaton says.

Eaton also supports increasing employment levels through necessary public works projects, and is a strong proponent of affordable housing and equal opportunity.

He is running as an independent, he says, because he feels that "the current two-party system does not allow for all ideas to be put forward and acted upon."

The Committee to Elect Francis (Sandy) Eaton is headed by Abe Cohen, Chairman and Wendy Bager, Treasurer and can be reached by calling 472-3396.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Death Within The Family

Grief over the death of a family member affects one deeply. As a family, the death causes grief differently in each member.

The direct results vary: economic for the wage earner; house care usually for the mother; unusual for the child who dies so young.

A mother may snap unreasonably in her grief-anger. A child turns quiet and withdrawn. These are normal and the family must be careful and also forgiving.

If this evidence of stress continues, counseling by your clergy or a mental health specialist may be in order.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Today, perhaps more than at any other time, it takes a lot of courage to bear witness to our beliefs, to avoid compromise when we know it is wrong, and to stand resolutely by our convictions when conscience says we must.

Each of us, as we go through life, strives to be a winner. But it takes courage to be a winner, a winner at responding to life. It takes courage to accept friendship and intimacy with other persons. It takes courage to choose reality over approval. It takes courage to accept the responsibility for your own choices and dare to be yourself. ... New ways are often uncertain ways and as Robert Frost expressed it, "Courage is the human virtue that counts most ... courage to act on limited knowledge and insufficient evidence. That's all any of us have."

All of human experience tells us that the way of courage is to think courage constantly, and to act with courage in everything we undertake. The great thing about courage is that, when we get the hang of it, it becomes character. And character, after all, is the referee of our success ...

Scholarships Presented At James McIntyre Memorial Golf Tourney

The third annual James R. McIntyre Memorial Scholarship Golf Tournament was recently held at the Wollaston Golf Club in Milton.

Scholarships were awarded to three Quincy residents: Sean Barry, Sherrin Quintiliani and Jonathan Rork.

Barry, a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, has been accepted into the graduate program at American University in Washington, D.C. While at Ohio Wesleyan, he received the Helen Beal Woodward Award for Outstanding Writing in Journalism and the Gilson Wright Award for journalistic enterprise.

Rork also graduated from NQHS this year, ranking second in the class. He is planning to attend Brown University with a goal of a career in mathematics.

Rork, a volunteer coach for the Quincy Youth Soccer League, is presently employed as a clerk and mathematics tutor.

Other scholarship recipients are:

Kerth Segalla, Salem State College and Rosalie Barry, Anna Maria College, 1987; James Boudreau, University of Massachusetts at Amherst and Kathleen Sheehy, Providence College; 1988; and Joanne Connolly, University of Rhode Island and Brian Malone, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, 1989.

McIntyre was a man of great achievement, graduating from Boston College High School, Holy Cross, Harvard Law School and Boston University.

Robert G. Purpura of Old Colony DeMolay Chapter in Quincy was recently honored with a Chevalier Degree.

In the jurisdiction of Massachusetts this year alone, only six young men are to be honored with the Degree of Chevalier. The last one in the Old Colony Chapter was in 1979. Purpura is one of the six honored this year.

The Degree of Chevalier is the highest honor that can be awarded for distinguished DeMolay service with the gift of the International Supreme Council. There is no other distinction that equals it in the DeMolay movement.

The degree is a citation for outstanding and marked DeMolay activity and labor.

LeRoy Hammerstrom Receives Teaching Award

LeRoy P. Hammerstrom, of Quincy, associate professor of mathematics at Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston, was selected as a winner of a 1989 Sears Roebuck Foundation "Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership Award."

Hammerstrom is one of approximately 700 college faculty members nationwide to be recognized by the Sears-Roebuck foundation for resourcefulness and leadership as a private educator.

He was especially recognized for respect afforded him by both peers and students, outstanding Christian character and compassion, and for a teaching style that shows unusual sensitivity for the needs of his students, accomplished by tailoring lectures to the various academic levels within a classroom. He also allows students to individualize their own in-class projects to reflect interests, and follows up by showing them how those specific areas fit into the larger framework of the class.

Outside of the classroom he is always available and more than willing to help a student in need, or to encourage an eager student to excel.

A 1978 graduate of Mid America Nazarene College in Olathe, Kansas, Hammerstrom also holds a master of science degree in math from the University of Nebraska. He is currently pursuing a doctoral degree in statistics from Northeastern University.

He is a native of Omaha, Nebraska, and currently lives in Quincy with his wife, Lorie, and 16-month-old son, Philip.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Runs Win Streak To 8

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team continued its winning ways as it ran its streak to eight and improved to 11-2 in Zone 6.

Morrisette will face Wollaston Saturday night at 8 at Adams Field, will play at Braintree Monday night at 8:30, will be at Canton Tuesday at 6 o'clock and will host Dorchester next Thursday night at 8 at Adams Field.

Morrisette swept a two-night doubleheader over Carter Post between the rain drops Sunday night at Adams, for its seventh and eighth straight wins.

Morrisette breezed, 10-1, in the opener, as Bill Warren got the start and pitched three innings, giving up four hits and no runs. He was helped out by three double plays. Mike Malvesti pitched four innings, allowing one hit and one run, striking out four and walking two to pick up the win.

Morrisette scored twice in the first, twice in the second, once in the third, and clinched it with five runs in the sixth inning.

Tony Anderionis had three hits, Kevin MacDougall two hits and two RBI including a double, Dan Ryan an RBI single, Jeff Calvert a hit and two RBI, Jim Glynn an RBI single and three runs scored and Mike Baylis a hit.

In the second game Carter overcame a 5-0 deficit, scoring two in the fourth and four in the sixth to take a 6-5 lead.

Morrisette scored twice in the fifth to regain the lead, 7-6, and added an insurance run in the sixth to win, 8-6.

Young Sean Donovan got the start and went 4 1/3 innings before tiring. He allowed only three hits and two earned runs, struck out nine and walked only one. Pat Clifford took over and got the win as he allowed three hits and one earned run.

Clifford was also the hitting star as he went 3-for-4 with a double and triple and drove in two runs. Erik DeBoer went 2-for-4 with a triple and three RBI. Jeff Calvert had two hits and an RBI and Brian Taylor, Jim Glynn, Anderionis and Mark Kelleher had a hit apiece. Baylis had an RBI.

Morrisette pounded Randolph, 10-4, with Gary Rawdon starting and getting his third win with no losses. He allowed four hits, two earned runs, struck out four and walked one. DeBoer pitched an inning, retiring the side on two strikeouts and a ground out and Baylis finished up, giving up a hit and striking out one.

With the score tied 2-2 in the second, Morrisette sent 12 men to bat in the third and scored seven runs on five hits, two walks and a hit batter. MacDougall had a double and triple and drove in three runs in the inning. Rawdon helped his cause by singling in two runs. Calvert had a bases loaded walk.

Calvert had two hits as did Rawdon and Glynn. Anderionis had a hit and Baylis had a long triple and also squeezed in a run.

Earlier Morrisette received a scare but defeated Quincy, 6-3, although outhit, 10-8. Quincy had two long triples and a double, but Morrisette was able to rally and hold on for the win.

MacDougall started and was the winning pitcher, improving to 3-0 as he gave up eight hits and three runs, struck out seven and walked two. DeBoer pitched the final inning and got the save.

Rich Burns pitched well for Quincy but was victimized by three costly throwing errors. He allowed eight hits and only two Morrisette runs were earned. He struck out two and walked three.

Morrisette scored a run in the third and one in the fifth. Quincy tied it in the fifth and Morrisette went ahead, 4-2, in the sixth. A throwing error enabled Ryan to score and DeBoer scored on a George Rozanitis double. Quincy got one back in the sixth on a single by Greg Clifford and a Gately double.

Morrisette added two runs in the seventh.

DeBoer had two hits, MacDougall drove in three runs and Anderionis and Ryan also had RBI.

For Quincy Jim Maloney had two hits and Ron Boudreau two including a triple. Butress had two hits, Gately doubled and Chris Beatrice tripled.

"We are playing good ball but we are in a real race," said Morrisette coach Dave Perdios. "We have two tough games coming up (Mass Tire last Monday and Weymouth Tuesday) and both are right up there with Braintree and us. It is going to be a great battle in our zone all season long."

Quincy, North Old Colony League Football Schedule Set

The schedules for the Quincy and North Quincy teams' first year in the Old Colony League have been completed.

The football teams will play eight league games and two non-league contests.

Quincy and North, in addition to their traditional Thanksgiving game, will meet league opponents Falmouth, Plymouth, Barnstable, Weymouth North, Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Taunton.

Quincy's non-league games will be against Marshfield on opening day, Sept. 15 and Medford on Oct. 12.

North will meet Somerset in its opener Sept. 14 and Durfee on Oct. 20.

One disappointing aspect of the league realignments is the end of the long North Quincy-Milton rivalry. The addition of two teams to the Bay State League gives Milton a full schedule of league games.

disabilities -- what causes them, how disabilities affect people's everyday life, the equipment used to cope. After that, they were ready to help.

Each child secured pledges from family and friends for every hop performed during a three-minute HOP-N-ING. The funds raised help provide Easter Seal services for men, women and children with disabilities.

Quincy summer sports coverage returns to Ch. 3, Monday evenings at 7:00 p.m.

QCTV-3, the local programming channel for Continental Cablevision, provides the only televised coverage of local sports in the Quincy area.

Watch your favorite teams battle it out in this season's diverse coverage of Quincy softball and baseball. One game will be covered each week in a variety of softball and baseball leagues and age groups, men's and ladies', boys or girls.

The QCTV mobile van will be at fields and diamonds across the city, manned with community volunteer crews trained in on-location productions at workshops provided by Continental Cablevision. Three camera coverage, interviews with team members and play by play announcing by local personalities, will make Channel 3's 1990 summer sports coverage the best yet.

Also, at the end of each game, the "most valuable player" is chosen and interviewed by the QCTV crew.

Summer Sports Coverage will run Monday nights at 7 p.m. through Labor Day.

Judy Scanlon Member Babson Business Team

Judy Scanlon of Quincy was a member of a team that recently placed third in the Babson College Douglas Prize Competition.

Scanlon, a part-time graduate student, and her team members proposed a business plan to establish a snack food company chartered to create, produce and distribute healthy snack foods.

The competition "demystified the process of building a business," Scanlon said. "There were no secrets, just hard work, thorough research and talking to as many experts as possible."

The graduate business plan competition awards cash prizes totaling $5,000 to the winner and runners-up. The business plans cover start-ups, acquisitions, company growth, real estate development or entrepreneurial ventures.

Newsmakers, For The Record, Take Summer Vacation

"Newsmakers" and "For the Record," Quincy Community Television's popular public affairs programs, will be taking the summer off after a very successful 1989-1990 season.

Marie Diaz, Public Affairs Producer for Continental Cablevision in Quincy, produces and directs both programs.

"Continental is dedicated to bringing our subscribers local programs that deal with issues affecting residents of Quincy," Diaz said. "Newsmakers and For the Record are unique in that they offer viewers a chance to see local and state officials discussing the issues in an informal setting."

"For the Record" is a 30 minute weekly visit with many of the key decision makers in Quincy and the South Shore. Guests this year were Senator Paul Harold, Mayor James Sheets, Rep. A. Stephen Tobin, Rep. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Robert Cerasoli and City Council President Theodore DeCristofaro, among others. The show is hosted by John King, Vice President of Continental Cablevision and Stephen Farquhar, General Mgr. of Continental in Quincy.

"Newsmakers," now ending its eighth season on Channel 3, provides a round table format bringing together those who make the news with those who report the news. The Newsmakers panel, composed of representatives from The Quincy Sun, the Patriot Ledger and WJDA Radio, explored such topics as Earth Day, Clean Harbors and homelessness in Quincy during the '89-90 season and welcomed a range of special guests, from the mayoral candidates of last fall to Keith Lee, a Milton resident and former defensive back for the New England Patriots.

Newsmakers experienced a loss this year with the retirement of Herb Fontaine, News Director of WJDA and Newsmakers panelist since the show's inception in 1982. At the QCTV Volunteer Appreciation Banquet held this spring, Fontaine was presented with a special plaque commemorating his eight years with the Newsmakers program and thanking him for his valuable work as a QCTV volunteer.

Both "For The Record" and "Newsmakers" will return to Channel 3 in September with a new line up of local guests, offering insight into the events and issues affecting Quincy and the South Shore.

Both programs are taped in the QCTV Studio at the Continental Cablevision building in Quincy using community volunteer crews trained in television production.

25% Assessments Limit Bill Filed

A bill which would limit the annual assessment on real property to 25 percent over the previous years assessment has been filed by Quincy's legislative delegation on behalf of Mayor James Sheets.

"I'm hopeful we'll be successful with that. It takes the burden off individual homeowners, particularly the homeowner who is on a fixed income," Sheets said Tuesday.

At the mayor's request, Senator Paul Harold and Representatives Michael Morrissey, Steve Tobin and Robert Cerasoli filed the bill which would apply to residential, commercial and industrial properties.

Sheets said the bill is in direct response to the dramatic increase in some property assessments this spring. Nearly 3,000 residents applied for abatements before the deadline which was May 1.

"I think it's reasonable for the state legislature to limit the percentage that a property can go up in value in a given year," Sheets said last month. He noted some assessments in Quincy shot up by 100 to 500 percent this year.

If the assessment limit bill is approved, a house valued at $200,000 could only increase a maximum of 25 percent or $50,000 in a given year.

In addition, the mayor said he plans to have a second bill filed which would allow cities and towns to conduct the revaluation process once every five years. He was expected to send a letter to the city's legislative delegation this week asking them for support and to file the bill.

If approved, Sheets said the city would save $1 million this decade. Quincy presently reevaluates once every three years.

Colton Reappointed DPW Commissioner

Public Works Commissioner David Colton has been reappointed by Mayor James Sheets.

"I'm very happy. I told Mayor Sheets a long time ago that I have the best job in the city and I want to keep it. I'm glad to be here," Colton said.

His new term will run concurrent with the mayor's and will expire the first Monday in January, 1992, Sheets said.

Colton, who will earn $58,149 a year as commissioner, first came to the city in September, 1982 as an administrative assistant in the public works department. In April, 1984 he was appointed deputy commissioner of Public Works and in July, 1988, he was named superintendent of Public Buildings.

Last July, Colton was appointed commissioner, replacing former commissioner Paul Anderson who stepped down. This past February, his appointment was renewed for six months.

In making the announcement, Sheets praised Colton for his work with the city's Cleaner Greener effort and for helping to renegotiate Quincy's recycling contract with Browning Ferris Industries. The mayor also said the commissioner was instrumental in negotiating a contract with the MBTA this summer which calls for the city's four Red Line stations to be cleaned at no expense to the city.

"I've worked closely with (Colton) over the past six months. We worked closely over the sewer user fee, on the recycling issue and the cleaner, greener Quincy issue.

"I think the cleaner, greener effort and the recycling contract both are very successful programs and he was a part of their success," Sheets added.

In May, the city and BFI agreed to expand the city's Budget Cuts Leave Wollaston Beach Without Lifeguards

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

For the first time in its 89-year history, the Metropolitan District Commission will not station lifeguards at Wollaston Beach this summer because of budget cuts.

According to MDC Spokesperson Jill Singer, this will be the first summer without lifeguards at Wollaston Beach since the MDC took control of the area in 1901.

In recent years, as many as 10 lifeguards have patrolled Wollaston Beach, Singer said.

However, because of budgetary problems, the MDC has eliminated lifeguard positions at seven of its beaches, including Wollaston. Beaches without lifeguards will be posted with signs declaring, "No lifeguards on duty, swim at your own risk."

In areas without lifeguards, beach goers are urged to swim in numbers and adults should be watchful of small children.

Last year, the MDC staffed 206 lifeguards. This year, Singer said there are 192, a decrease of 14 over last year.

MDC pools and beaches opened later than usual this year because of budget problems. Because of the delay, many college students who typically lifeguard during the summer took on other jobs, Singer explained.

As a result, the MDC had to prioritize its lifeguard staffing at its beaches and pools, she added.

Only nine out of 16 MDC beaches will have lifeguards this season. Singer said the MDC decided against lifeguards at Wollaston Beach because it is such a large reservation. Also, the beach is not used as much as some of the other salt and fresh water beaches under the MDC's jurisdiction, she explained.

Two popular beaches, Nantasket Beach in Hull and Houghton's Pond in Milton, will have lifeguards.

Although Wollaston Beach will be without lifeguards, the Wollaston Beach Bathhouse will be staffed with a supervisor and assistant supervisor. They will be at the bathhouse Monday through Friday from 7:30 to 4 p.m.

and on the weekends on a half-day basis, either four hours in the morning or four hours in the afternoon.

Originally, the MDC did not believe any of its beach areas would have lifeguards. But, as the budget proceeded forward, the MDC decided it could hire some lifeguards and decisions were made as to where they would be stationed.

Other MDC beaches without lifeguards are: Malibu Beach, Tenean Beach and Savin Hill Beach, all in Dorchester; Carson Beach, South Boston; Lovells Island Beach, Boston; and Winthrop Beach.

Other beaches with MDC lifeguards are: Revere Beach; Pleasure Bay Beach, South Boston; Lynn/Nahant Beach; M Street Beach, South Boston; Constitution Beach, East Boston; Sandy Beach, Winchelsea; and Pearce Lake, Saugus.

At 7:30 p.m., the Commission was set to hear a notice of intent filed by Richard J. Gibbons for the construction of an addition to the existing dwelling on property located at 158 Darrow St. The area is in a flood plain zone.

At 7:45 p.m., the Commission was set to hear a notice of intent filed by Wayne M. Batson for the construction of a two-story wood frame, single family home on property located at 28 Spring St. The area is in a flood plain zone.

Morrissey Asks For Intensified Police Patrols At Wollaston Beach

In response to numerous complaints by constituents, Rep. Michael Morrissey has asked MDC Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti to intensify Metro Police patrols along Wollaston Beach.

Wollaston Beach.

"Things seem to be getting a little out of hand at the beach with loud music, public drinking and the like — particularly late at night and an ounce of prevention is certainly worth a pound of cure," Morrissey said.

Understanding that budget cuts have resulted in fewer patrols, Morrissey has requested that officers on regular area patrols, traffic and otherwise, step up their activity along the beach's seawall.

"It's a shame to hear people are staying away from the beach for safety reasons. I'm confident, however, that an increase in police visibility will have a positive impact," Morrissey added.

Meeting July 18 On Licensing Regulations For Piers, Docks

Residents who own waterfront piers or docks in Ward 1 are invited to attend a meeting with the state Department of Environmental Protection Wednesday, July 18 at 7 p.m. in City Council Chambers, in Old City Hall, Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson arranged the meeting after learning the department, in recent weeks, has investigated many piers built in Ward 1, particularly in Houghs Neck and Germantown, by area residents.

A discussion will be held on the regulations for licensing, for docks and piers, and on any waterway in Ward 1. Besides a representative from DEP, Senator Paul Harold, Rev. Steve Tobin, a representative from Mayor James A. Sheets' office and Kolson plan to attend.

Kolson said the department intends to make residents file for a license for these piers. The piers were constructed a number of years ago when residents were not aware of the regulations under Chapter 91 Water Ways Licensing, Kolson said.

"Now the process of licensing these piers could become a great expense to the residents of these areas. Obviously, the intent of the state is to raise revenue," Kolson said.

Kolson said it would be devastating financially to the people involved in applying for the license and going through the extensive permit process which could eventually lead to thousands of dollars worth of expensive engineering costs.

Kolson has spoken with Sheets, Harold and Tobin regarding the matter. They believe the applications should be frozen and "grandfathered" in because of the length of time they have been in existence.

"I see no need to put our residents and our neighbors to any more hardship than they must endure financially from the state. Hopefully, working together with Mayor Sheets, Senator Harold and Representative Tobin, we will find a common ground solution to this expensive operation," Kolson said.

Non-Alcoholic Nightclub Backed By Downtown Business

By JANE ARENA

The Board of Directors of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has endorsed a proposal for a non-alcoholic nightclub in Quincy Center.

Footprints, proposed by John Blythe of Quincy and William Collins of South Boston, would be located in the basement level of Hancock Plaza, 1515 Hancock St.

The club would cater to people between 20 and 35 and would be open seven nights a week with special nightly attractions. No alcohol would be sold or consumed on the premises.

The proposal had been before the City License Board on two occasions during the past month, but the board had continued the matter until Blythe and Collins could present the proposal to the QCBPA.

On Monday the QCBPA Board of Directors heard the proposal and endorsed the idea.

Blythe told the board that they had researched the concept of alcohol-free clubs, and feel that it could be very successful in Quincy.

"We believe that the time is right for such an establishment," the written proposal states, "and we think that such a club could be a success for both ourselves and Quincy."

Blythe explained that he has visited similar clubs in New York City and Pawtucket, R.I., both of which are very successful.

The Rhode Island club, Blythe said, attracts patrons from the Boston area because Boston does not have a non-alcoholic club to compete. He told the QCBPA board that Footprints could become that competition.

Blythe noted that Quincy would be "an ideal location" for the club because of the city's tough stand on alcohol-related problems.

Footprints would have a different theme each night of the week, Blythe explained:

Monday would be sports night, Tuesday would offer a senior citizens dance night, Wednesday would be an open house and would be the only night of the week without a cover charge, Thursday through Saturday would be dance nights and Sunday would feature live entertainment from 1 p.m. to 1 a.m. All other nights, the hours of operation would be from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Non-alcoholic drinks including soda, espresso and fruit drinks would be available, he said.

There would be a cover charge ranging from $3 on Monday and Tuesday nights to $7 on weekends.

Blythe said that a staff of up to nine people would be working at the club and that a police detail would be hired for weekend nights when a larger crowd is expected. He estimated that between 75 and 200 people would attend the club depending on the night of the week. He said at least 400 patrons per week would be needed for Footprints to be a success.

Metropolitan Parking Systems has given permission for free use of the parking garage behind the plaza, he said.

In addition, A & S Development has agreed to customize the space in the building and is offering free rent for the first two months. The rent is $9 per square foot.

Blythe said he and Collins have put together start-up capital of $30,000 for the club. He hopes to have it open by September, he said. The license board usually schedules a summer meeting in late July or August, but as of Monday had not scheduled one. Blythe would need to obtain the necessary licenses from the board in order to open.

Mullen, Falco Contenders New Police Chief Appointment By Sept. 1

The selection process for the city's next police chief has begun and Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he will make his decision by Sept. 1.

On Monday, Sheets met with the two candidates: Lt. Francis Mullen, 57, and Sgt. William Falco, 41, for about 15 minutes each. The two men had been listed as the top scorers among disabled military veterans who competed in the statewide civil service examination.

During the next four or five weeks, the mayor said he will meet regularly with Mullen and Falco to discuss "some very specific issues relative to the police department."

"I'll use these discussions to evaluate the capabilities of each man and then I'll make a decision," Sheets said.

Two issues which the mayor believes are critical to the selection process are management and communication ability. "Management and communication are critical and I think the next police chief should be an excellent manager and communicator," he said.

Other issues which the mayor said the men will address are reorganization, accreditation and drug control problems. Sheets also wants an idea of how each man approaches relations with police unions.

The city's retirement board recently approved the retirement of Chief Francis Finn, allowing the mayor to begin his selection process.

Finn, 64, stepped down earlier this year after 43 years on service with the department. Until his replacement is sworn in, Capt. Paul Nestor is expected to run the department as acting chief.

State approval of Finn's retirement is not expected by mid-August, Sheets noted. However, the city's retirement board decision enables the mayor to begin the selection process.

Although the mayor prefers department heads who reside in Quincy, Sheets said his preference will not prevent him from selecting either Mullen, a Hingham resident, or Falco, who lives in Weymouth.

RIDE Service To Continue

The MBTA's door-to-door van service for people with disabilities-The RIDE-will continue its daily operation in Quincy and eight South Shore communities thanks to a new contract approved by the T.

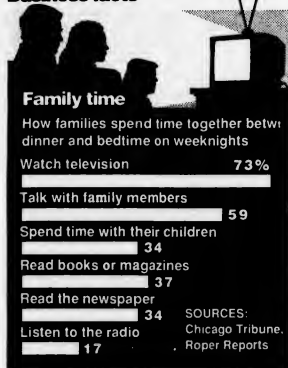

The new contract will also mean expanded hours of operation, and will mean more RIDE service for eligible South Shore residents in the coming year.

That provides mobility and independence to people with disabilities," said MBTA General Manager Thomas P. Glynn.

The RIDE service is expected to complete an estimated 30,000 trips in the coming year, a 28 percent increase over this year's level.

Door-to-door T-RIDE service is available for eligible participants in 44 communities. Eligibility is granted to persons who, because of a physical or mental disability lasting for a period of six months or longer, are unable to use regular MBTA services. Residents of the 44 RIDE communities must register with the T's Office for Transportation Access.

WE CAN'T PUT OUT THE FIRE ...

No, unfortunately, a fire insurance policy cannot prevent a fire or even put it out. It can, however, help you rebuild or replace your property in the event of a fire loss.

Statistics show that fire strikes a residence or other building in the U.S. more than once every minute. Today with the increase in electrical conveniences, coupled with the natural deterioration of household wiring, that figure is on the rise.

When purchasing a Fire Insurance Policy sit down with an agent who takes the whole picture into account. Discuss the value of both your house and its contents, plus such outside property as landscaping, shrubs and outbuildings. Be sure to include Extended Coverage Endorsements to handle these assets. We also recommend appraisals of valuable paintings, heirlooms, precious metal antiques, guns and coin collections. Such appraisals, filed with your policy, mean a faster more accurate settlement in case of loss. If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Messachusetts

Well, the deed has finally been done. How really dastardly it was, time will tell. The $1.6 billion tax bill -- largest in the state's history -- squeaked through the House on an 80-76 vote and with a little suspicion last Friday night.

Coincidentally, it came just two days after the big Fourth of July celebration when we were all feeling quite proud of Massachusetts' key role in the birth of this nation.

July 6, however, will not become a date for future celebration. Oh, it won't be forgotten. We hope not. Like a day of infamy, it will be remembered. Maybe not exactly like Dec. 7. But it will be remembered as an attack on the people and it should be.

And it should be remembered as the day when Massachusetts finally became Massachusetts.

This tax bill, in case you've been out of the country the past year, and are unaware of what's been going on, is the appropriate symbol for the mess we are in in Massachusetts.

The tax bill won by a scant four votes, amid charges of a little hanky-panky going on.

According to Republicans, one Democrat who voted for the bill wasn't even in the State House. And three others who opposed the package either missed the vote or were not present when the final vote was taken.

But if there were any shenanigans, isn't that par for the course on Beacon Hill?

We were happy to see our House of Representatives delegation from Quincy united in opposition to the tax bill.

TOBIN

Reps. Robert Cerasoli, Michael Morrissey and Steve Tobin all voted "No."

Senator Paul Harold made it unanimous for Quincy when the bill moved on to the Senate and passed. He voted "no."

If you think business is going to bear the brunt of this tax bill alone, you are only kidding yourself. Individuals are going to get whacked.

As Barbara Anderson, director of Citizens for Limited Taxation puts it:

"The entire $1.6 billion will be paid by the average Jack and Jill. It might be in a lost job, or a paycheck that won't increase, or lost benefits for higher consumer costs."

A Serious Mistake For Mass. GOP

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a moderate Republican active with the Quincy Republican City Committee and one who holds a pro-life view when it comes to the abortion issue, I feel the recent rejection by the Republican State Committee on whether or not to recognize the official existence of the state affiliate of the National Republicans for Choice is a serious mistake for the Massachusetts Republican Party.

Personally, while I am opposed to the position taken by pro-choice Republicans, I feel the Republican Party must be big enough, inclusive enough to support differences of opinion. But the recent state committee vote tells Bay State voters that the state GOP is not open to all and demands a litmus test of anyone who wishes to call themselves Republican.

The strength of a political party is with its openness and not by its barriers to dialogue. Chairman Ray Shamie has a right to his opinion on abortion—an opinion I share with him but this need not mean we exclude other Republicans unable to share a certain viewpoint.

Doesn't the state GOP call the Democratic Party a closed party opened only to those who share liberal special interest items? And doesn't the GOP put the Democrats down for the excluding of moderate, mainstream Democrats from partypower? You can't have it both ways. Either the GOP tent is big enough for all or it isn't any different from the other party's tent.

I do not feel that pro-choice Republicans endanger the Massachusetts Republican Party. But I do feel litmus tests aren't sensible for a party out of power nearly a generation of voters.

Quincy Delegation Votes 'No'

Tax Bill Not Cure For State's Fiscal Ills

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The new $1.6 billion tax bill approved by both houses of the state Legislature is not the cure for the state's fiscal ills, say Quincy's legislative delegation.

Senator Paul Harlow and Reps. Michael Morrissey, Steve Tobin and Robert Cerasoli all voted against the hike which is the largest tax increase in the state's history. The measure narrowly passed the House, 80-76, and the Senate, 21-16.

Before signing the bill, Gov. Michael Dukakis has asked the state Supreme Judicial Court Monday to rule whether the section on increasing services was constitutional.

The package, which would raise $1.1 billion in FY91 and $1.6 billion in FY92, would increase the effective capital gains tax from five percent to six percent, while the income tax rate would be raised to 5.95 percent retroactive to Jan. 1, be boosted to 6.25 percent in 1991 and then drop back to 5.95 percent in 1992 and subsequent years.

The gas tax would rise six cents per gallon immediately and another four cents in January.

By far, the most controversial portion of the package is the extension of the five percent sales tax to four areas of professional services—legal, financial, engineering and architectural—and to 29 general services.

For the first time, the state's five percent sales tax would be applied to athletic club dues, entertainment and sport tickets costing more than $30, studio photography, computer repair and landscaping bills over $100.

Generally, Quincy's four legislators agree the new tax package goes too far since it calls for taxes on a myriad of services. Furthermore, they all believe more cuts must be made before new taxes are considered.

Tobin, who was elected two years ago on a no-new tax pledge, appears to have the strongest stand against new taxes. On Tuesday, he said he'll continue to stand by that vow.

Asked whether he would vote against any tax package, Tobin replied, "Yes I would. Accepting taxes means that you have not accepted the notion that we must downsize spending."

"Taxes cannot be on the table for discussion until there are plans to cut back spending. Until I see a sincere effort to downsize government, I won't even talk taxes," Tobin added.

Cerasoli, who resigned as chairman of the Post Audit Committee earlier this year because he refused to support a tax plan proposed by Speaker George Kevejian, is another staunch tax opponent.

"I would vote against any tax package prior to serious cuts in the budget, absolutely," Cerasoli said.

Harold and Morrissey said they support higher taxes, such as on gasoline, if the revenue is earmarked for a specific use like road and bridge improvements or higher education. However, they added they would only support new taxes if cuts are made.

As for the new tax package, Quincy's legislators agree it will not solve the state's fiscal crisis. In fact, it could lead to a greater budget deficit, they warned.

"We are in the beginning of a downward recessionary spiral and you can't tax your way out of it," Cerasoli said, adding the tax package would create a burden of taxation and tax avoidance throughout the state.

Under the burden, money shifted from the private sector to the government is not being re-invested into business; that discourages business growth.

With tax avoidance, people are going to do things to avoid paying these taxes, sales tax especially. This in turn encourages an underground economy.

Harold noted that a tax on services in a number of other states was tried but failed. In Florida, a tax package similar to the one just passed here was repealed after 90 days.

"It's not enforceable. You end up spending a dollar to collect a dollar. It's not practical," Harold said.

Morrissey said a lagging economy and the governor's lack of leadership has compounded the fiscal crisis. Normally, the executive branch proposes while the legislature disposes. Without the governor's leadership, the legislature has been left to do both.

"To get 200 legislators to agree on a proposal is an extremely difficult task," Morrissey added.

Streetcar Tracks Aid War Effort

Purchasing Agent John T. Lane announced that at least 170 tons of old street car rails will be removed from Quincy streets this summer and turned over to the U.S. Government scrap drive.

Lane said the city will receive $14 a ton for the metal, more than $2,000 in all, which will be dug up by Works Progress Administration (WPA) workers and removed by private contractors.

Most of the rails will come from the old Squantum route, traversed Atlantic from Quincy Shore Boulevard to Hancock St. via Sagamore, Newbury, Billings and East Squantum Sts. until 10 years ago.

Others will be salvaged from Quincy Ave. near Scammell St. and from Farrington St., Wollaston.

John Quincy Adams Eighth President?

Presidents Place, in a unique promotion, invited area company presidents to tour the nearly completed $60 million office and retail development in Quincy Center.

The tour, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, also featured a drawing for one lucky company president to win a weekend for two at the Presidential Suite at Le Meridien in Boston.

But the invitation had an historical boo-boo.

It invites company presidents to "commemorate the 223rd birthday of the eighth president of the United States," and shows a picture of Quincy born John Quincy Adams.

Eighth president? John Quincy Adams was the sixth president of the United States, serving from 1825 to 1829.

The eighth president was Martin Van Buren, who held the office after Andrew Jackson, from 1837 to 1841.

Maybe that weekend trip ought to include a presidential almanac.

New Street Hockey Germantown Courts

Through the combined effort of Mayor James Sheets, Planning Director Richard Meade and Assistant Planner Kevin Shea, Germantown youth will have access to new street hockey courts that will be open in a few weeks, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson announces.

School renovated and converted to street hockey courts for the youth in the area. Street hockey has become a popular sport and Kolson said he was very pleased that the old tennis courts will be updated and utilized in this manner.

The converted courts will help provide healthy outdoor activities, friendly competition and greater summer enjoyment by the area youth.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Sue's Summer Salad

On one of our frequent visits to our daughter Sue and her family in Rhode Island, we stayed for dinner. Sue made the simplest and most delicious salad combination with plum tomatoes. With such a plentiful supply of these tomatoes, I think you will enjoy this combo as much as we did.

SUE'S SUMMER SALAD

1 large carrot cut in strips
3 cups of fresh spinach
4 or 5 plum tomatoes a clove of garlic minced olive oil
a rich red wine vinegar

salt and pepper to taste

Prepare carrots and garlic and put all ingredients together in a salad bowl. Then at the last minute, toss with the olive oil and the vinegar as much as your taste desires.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

HAVE YOU HEARD

by Stephen Tobias

Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

GUARDING AGAINST EARWAX BLOCKAGE

Just as excessive accumulations of earwax (cerumen) in the ear canal can cause temporary hearing loss, so too can earwax adversely affect the ability of an in-the-canal hearing aid to transmit amplified sound. In fact, manufacturers of canal instruments point to cerumen buildup as the leading cause of malfunction in their products. With this in mind, many in-the-canal aid manufacturers are developing wax-trapping devices which prevent earwax from occluding their hearing instruments. The degree to which wax guards are effective is directly related to the wearer's conscientiousness about cleaning them. Just because an in-the-canal instrument is outfitted with a wax guard does not mean that earwax accumulations entirely cease to be a problem. However, diligent and regular cleaning of the guard helps assure that the hearing aid can perform as intended.

How well you handle your hearing aid might determine how well you hear. Oftentimes people who have hearing aids won't wear them and claim that the aid doesn't help them. If you use one, properly clean it on a regular basis. You are doing your part to hear as well as you can. When you come to STEPHEN TOBIAS HEARING CENTER, you will be taught how to wear your hearing aid and how to care for it. Before any hearing aid is purchased you will be given a test to determine exactly what type of hearing aid is best for you. See us at 488 Quincy Ave. by appt. Call 770-3395.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Many people today are interested in making funeral arrangements prior to need. Pre-planning a funeral does not necessarily mean that you need to sign a contract. It simply means making one's wishes, or those of a relative, a matter of record before the need arises.

Recently we have answered many questions from people concerned with Pre-arranging funeral instructions. The "Pre-Need" funeral arrangement procedure is very simple. It takes very little time and has many advantages. If you, or one of your family members, have any questions concerning "Pre-Need" funeral arrangements, please feel free to call, write or stop by at the funeral home. We will be pleased to answer any questions. This is without cost or obligation, naturally.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Is Home Care Advisable?

Caring for a terminally ill person makes one isolated and is difficult for them and loved ones.

Care at home, hospices, minimal-care facilities are options to discuss with your doctor. This permits the dying person to do things most meaningful to them — and the family, too. Your doctor must make the final decisions, set up the actual procedures and instruct you on care and emergencies.

If all cooperate, the terminally ill can live out their last days with love and meaning for all.

Crank Or Obscene Phone Calls

The telephone is an instrument of modern convenience, so it should be used by you on your terms.

However, almost every day another woman finds that as she answers her telephone, she has become the object of an anonymous call from a man who gets his kicks from talking to women and reviling them with indecent proposals, obscens language, or just heavy breathing into the phone.

You pay for your phone service, use it your way, the safe way, and let it be your servant instead of a vehicle of terror, or possibly even worse. When your telephone rings, you answer and a voice says, "Who's speaking?" Don't make the error of replying with your name, simply ask "To whom did you wish to speak?" or "Who are you calling?" Do not give your name, your address, or even your telephone number.

Many of the deviants pick numbers at random and could not call again unless you identify yourself. If this person just begins to expound a stream of foul words, phrases or propositions, DO NOT UTTER A SOUND. HANG UP!!! Don't make the mistake of expressing indignation, trying to teach him a lesson, or to reform him. The shock and dismay and alarm you show by your words will just begin a series of these calls. Do nothing but hang up your receiver.

You should report this call to the police department and also to the telephone company. Also, try to remember as much as you can about the voice, accent, or peculiarities. It might prove helpful to record the time of the call and the day of the week, in case he sets a pattern. DO NOT under any circumstances try to talk to him, try to make an appointment with him, or agree to anything he might propose in order to set a trap. Call the police and telephone officials and let them proceed according to their experience and training.

Norfolk County Retirement System Takes Another Step Forward With Newsletter

The Norfolk County Retirement System, which has undergone many reforms the last five years, has taken another step forward with the advent of a new newsletter.

Retirement Board Chairman and Norfolk County Treasurer Daniel Raymondi said the newsletter, called "The Norfolk Benefit," represents the culmination of his efforts to "guarantee the open exchange of information and ideas between members and the retirement system."

As treasurer and chairman since December, 1985, Raymondi has made many meaningful reforms designed to restore confidence in the retirement system.

"The performance of the retirement office has risen to a level of professionalism and efficiency with the implementation of management and computerization studies as well as other initiatives. I am proud to be a part of this system that is now recognized as one of the better retirement systems within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," Raymondi said.

The first newsletter, which will keep members informed of their benefits and privileges, was issued in the spring. Editor Lucille Cassis said the newsletter will be published semi-annually and mailed to the system's 7,000 members.

The next newsletter will be mailed in October.

All but nine of Norfolk County's 28 communities are part of the retirement system. Among the communities not part of the system are Quincy, Braintree, Needham, Dedham and Norwood.

Larger communities within Norfolk County, like Quincy, have their own retirement system. Chairman of the Quincy retirement system is Auditor Robert Foy.

Raymondi, a Quincy resident, is a former member of the Quincy City Council and Quincy School Committee. An attorney, he also served as the Norfolk County public defender from 1974 to 1979.

Since becoming chairman, Raymondi has brought the retirement system closer to its members. Through his efforts, the board instituted a toll-free number (1-800-247-9992), and a policy of holding community meetings on a regular basis.

In addition, the newsletter was established with the help of Josephine Shea of Quincy and Pete Brunelli, the appointed treasurer representative. Shea became the first member ever elected to the Norfolk County Retirement Board earlier this year. Raymondi, who said the newsletter will be a "permanent vehicle" by which members will be kept informed, added, "these steps have been taken to ensure that no member of our system will be denied access to retirement information."

For the newsletter to be a success, Raymondi said members must be involved. "We need to hear from you about issues that you would like discussed in the future,"

he said.

To give input, call Cassis at 461-1830 or toll-free 1-800-247-9992.

The newsletter contains news, feature columns, charts and other facts and information.

Raymondi writes a column called "The Chairman's Contribution" and there is a legal information column written by Retirement Board Attorney Robert E. Baker. There is also a column called "For Members Only" which is dedicated to the men and women of the retirement system.

Shea keeps members informed about important retirement issues in "The Member's Message" while "Talk of the Town" focuses on the various retirement system units, departments, towns and special people who live and work in them.

In addition, "The Retirement Review" focuses on retirement and investment news, updates and other important information requested by the membership.

"I encourage you to support your newsletter and help us in any way that you are able," Raymondi said.

recycling program. Quincy will pay BFI the same amount it paid last year, $249,000, but the recycling program is being expanded to include weekly curbside collection of newspaper, glass and plastics.

BFI also agreed to purchase new trucks specifically built for recycling and supply 14-cubic foot plastic bins to the city's 23,000 residences. Beginning Aug. 1, residents will be asked to put plastics and glass in the bin and BFI employees will collect the recyclables.

In addition, BFI will conduct a recycling education program to increase awareness. The company also plans to pick up leaves in the fall.

leaves two department heads still in limbo. Sheets said he hopes to make a decision on whether he'll reappoint

REV. J. WILLIAM ARNOLD, and his wife Joan, at Bethany Congregational Church at his Retirement Celebration after 43 years in the ministry and 10 years at Bethany.

"REV. J. WILLIAM ARNOLD DAY," July 1, is proclaimed by Quincy Mayor James Sheets, presenting a citation to Rev. Arnold.

Rev. J. William Arnold Honored At Bethany On His Retirement

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Proclaimed "The Reverend J. William Arnold Day" by Mayor James Sheets, July 1, 1990 was a day the retiring pastor and Bethany Congregational Church members and friends will remember.

The Rev. Arnold was retiring after 43 years as a minister, the last 10 at Bethany Congregational Church.

Other tangible reminders will go with Rev. Arnold and his wife, Joan, when they move by September from the Monroe Rd. parsonage to another home in the Greater Boston area, perhaps Scituate.

Mrs. Arnold will continue on the staff of Old South Church where she is director of Christian Education, and will need to commute. They will need a home large enough to provide quarters for those of their eight children, all grown, some with children, who may come to visit.

"Also, we need space. I like to be alone. I am a private person. It is one of the things I am looking forward to. My wife is like that, too," Rev. Arnold added.

During his final morning service, Katelyn June Hemleb, their seventh grandchild, was baptized by Rev. Arnold. He had not seen her before. Born April 27, 1989, she is the daughter of Alfred M. Hemleb III and Shirley Lyn (Arnold) Hemleb of St. Petersburg, Fla.

The morning meditation, "The Ministry of Absence" ("a shorter sermon than usual," Rev. Arnold claims), was followed by Holy Communion.

The "Retirement Celebration" that afternoon included speakers from Pennsylvania, where he founded the Church of the Manger in Bethlehem and served pastorates in Nesquehanna, Mount Grove, a rural area, Carlisle and Lancaster. He was senior pastor of Trinity Congregational Church in Gloucester before coming to Bethany in 1980.

"It was a marvelous party—I was surprised constantly," Rev. Arnold said. "There is nothing like finishing your ministry in a place knowing that you were effective, I think."

Church Moderator Lisa Andre welcomed guests and introduced the program which included reflections by visiting clergy on Arnold's past, reading of the proclamation by Mayor James Sheets, and a citation from Pastor Paul Harold. The opening prayer was by Rev. Elizabeth Upton, associate minister at Bethany.

A quilt depicting symbols and events at Bethany made by women of the church, each piece initiated by the creator, was presented by Linda Nicholson and Fairlee Kinnecom; a memory album, by Jackie Rivera; a mantel clock and purse from church friends, by Lisa Andre.

Two original songs by Lisa Birr, a blind member, were sung by The Bethany Folksingers; Ruth Hamilton was a soloist, and Peter Krasinski, former Bethany organist, gave an improvisation on the letters A R N O L D. Speaking of Quincy, Rev.

STATE SENATE CITATION is accepted by Rev. J. William Arnold from State Senator Paul Harold at the Retirement Celebration in his honor at Bethany Church.

Arnold said, "I like history most of all, especially church history. Quincy has a such a rich historic background. The Adams family is a famous name in Quincy history. They were the right people at the right time."

As a member of a citizen's committee to review plans for Presidents Place, Rev. Arnold spoke in favor of a historic Common, where people can gather, a "place of beauty in the heart of Quincy....I would love to see a large green park, but others only saw another green."

Speaking generally of the ministry, he said, "You are expected to be a good leader of worship, a good person to be there in the crises of life, active in the community. There is always so much to do, and availability is important. You really have to be everywhere. The family is short-changed. 'You are out of juice' To be what others want you to be you live on the edge of guilt....I have worked hard to be a minister. Would I do it again? Yes. I would!"

The Retirement Celebration Committee included Lisa and John Andre, Olive and Russell Hodgkins, Jackie and Ronnie Rivera, Joyce and Nick Spear, Diane DelVecchio, Lena Foster, Louise Forsyth and Jean Smart.

Esther Sanger Covenant Speaker

Esther Sanger, director of the Quincy Crisis Center, will preach at the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

Her van is parked at the back of the church parking lot.

Rev. Kathleen Graves and Rev. Kirk Johnson, co-pastors, will return July 22. Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude. He will also accompany soprano soloist, Luisa Dano.

During the service, a nursery is available for children age five and younger. The attendant will be Florence Anderson. Immediately following the service, coffee will be served by the Dano family in the fellowship hall downstairs.

Activities for the week are: Covenant crafters at the church Thursday at 7 p.m. and a special congregational meeting following the worship service July 15. The Trustee Board has several recommendations to be voted upon.

Coming events include an outdoor worship service in Covenant Park July 29 and Vacation Bible School from 9 a.m. till noon Aug. 13 through Aug. 17. The theme for this year is "Island in the Son."

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

9:30 A.M. Summer Service At Squantum First Church

Summer worship is at 9:30 a.m. on Sundays at First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd. Child care is available.

Jessica Greer Johnston, infant daughter of William and Pam Johnston, was dedicated last week by Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin. Deacons Barbara Walter and Tom Williamson presented the Johnstons with a certificate and a rosebud by which to remember the occasion.

Other family members taking part in the service were Peter and Barbara Johnston, Andrew, the baby's six-year old brother, and grandparents on both sides of the family.

Dore Klock and Mary Ruth Scott sang Gaither's "Because He Lives" for the occasion. At the conclusion of the service, Dore Klock, Tom Williamson and Leif Thornton led congregational singing of "How Great Thou Art."

Singing of other hymns was accompanied by Janet Williamson, pianist, and Mary Ruth Scott, organist. Torie Wallin and Harry Holmes were ushers.

"Strength Against Giants" was the sermon by Dr. Langevin.

Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. the Bible Study group will meet to continue the study of "The Old Testament Prophets."

Morrisette Snaps Braintree Jinx

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team won its first game at Braintree in five years Monday night, 7-5, for its 11th win in 12 games and improved its Zone 6 record to 14-3.

Morrisette is one game behind Mass. Tire in the loss column.

Morrisette hosts Dorchester tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 at Adams Field, will travel to Holbrook Friday for an 8:30 game, and will close out the regular season with home games Monday against Milton and Quincy next Thursday, both games at 8:30 at Adams.

Gary Rawdon pitched all the way at Braintree and improved his record to 5-0. He gave up nine hits and four earned runs, struck out six and walked two.

Braintree took a 1-0 first inning lead but Morrisette scored twice in the second on Pat Clifford's single and Brian Taylor's home run over the left field fence.

Braintree went ahead, 4-2, with three runs in the third but Morrisette came back with four runs in the fifth when Rawdon walked, moved to second on a ground out and scored on Tony Anderlonis' single. Tom Balzano tied the game with an RBI double.

Erik DeBoer singled and he and Balzano scored the tying and go-ahead runs on Jeff Calvert's single.

Braintree scored its final run in the bottom half of the fifth but Morrisette got that back in the sixth on Taylor's infield hit and Rawdon's double. Rawdon set Braintree down in order in the sixth and seventh to give Morrisette a long-awaited win.

Kevin MacDougall, Taylor, and Anderlonis had two hits each as every player had at least one hit.

In its previous game Morrisette defeated Wollaston, 15-6, in a wild game that saw a 2-2 pitching duel for six innings end up with the teams sending 28 men to bat and scoring 17 runs (13 by Morrisette) in a seventh inning that took an hour and a half to play.

In the top of the seventh Morrisette got a break when what looked like an inning-ending double play resulted in a wild throw to open the door for a 13-run inning. MacDougall had two doubles and drove in three runs in the inning. Mark Kelleher had two hits and two RBI, DeBoer drove in one and Vince Anderlonis had a pinch hit single and an RBI. Wollaston had four errors in the inning.

Clifford went 3-for-4 with a walk and an RBI, and Tony Anderlonis had two hits. Sean Donovan started pitching for Morrisette and Dave Hutchings for Wollaston. DeBoer pitched 2 2/3 scoreless innings to pick up his third win. He has lost twice and has three saves. He struck out six.

Hutchings had three of Wollaston's 10 hits, Fred Regan had two hits and Mike Cunio had a double.

Morrisette avenged an earlier defeat by topping Weymouth, 9-7.

MacDougall started on the mound and tried to pitch despite some soreness in his arm. He had to be relieved by Rawdon with no outs, runs in and two men on. Rawdon pitched out of the jam with no more damage.

Weymouth took a 4-1 lead in the fifth but Morrisette rallied for five in the sixth for a 6-4 lead. The key hit was a two-run triple by Rawdon. DeBoer, MacDougall and Balzano also drove in runs.

Morrisette added three runs in the seventh with Balzano and Calvert driving in runs and the other scoring on an error.

Rawdon picked up his fourth win but needed help from Mike Baylis in the seventh when Weymouth scored twice on three hits and an error.

DeBoer had two hits, Balzano drove in three runs and DeBoer two.

Earlier Morrisette had its eight-game win streak snapped when Mass. Tire pulled out a 4-3 victory.

Morrisette had a 3-1 lead in the sixth with DeBoer pitching a no-hitter for five innings. But six walks cost him as three of the runners scored. The first Mass. Tire hit was a three-run homer by Chris McDonald following two walks. The ground rules helped Mass. Tire as the ball bounced into thick bushes. The batter is allowed to go all the way and it was 4-3 before the ball could be retrieved.

Morrisette outbait Mass. Tire, 7-2, but left 10 runners stranded. It left the bases loaded without a run in the second and third innings.

Morrisette lost a run in the second when a run apparently scored on a sacrifice fly. But an appeal that the runner left too soon was upheld and the run nullified.

MacDougall had two hits and an RBI, DeBoer had two hits, Baylis a double, Tony Anderlonis and Balzano singles and Kelleher an RBI.

TOM A. OWENS Scholarship is presented to Richard Burns, left, of Quincy American Legion baseball team and Anthony Anderlonis of Morrisette team from Al Julian who, along with Mr. Owens, started the Independent Youth Baseball Association of Massachusetts in 1978. The association led to the Tom A. Owens Member Baseball School Tournament in 1989 named in honor of Mr. Owens who died in 1988. This year's tournament will take place in August.

Branigan Sweeps

League-leading Brannigan's (17-3) extended its win streak to 12 straight games by sweeping a twin bill from Perkins Paper Co. in South Shore Softball League action.

Brannigan's, one of several Quincy teams in the league, rolled to a 14-4 decision in the first game as shortstop Dave Tocchio led the attack with four hits, a home run, double and two singles. Pitcher Bob Hennelly improved to 6-0 with another standout performance.

Chuck Alcott, Shaun Gately and Matt Marks all had home runs and Jim Wylcie, Jay DeBartolo, Joe Godfrey, Bob Bubencik, Lou Moccia, Al Freeman and John McManus all contributed to the 18-hit attack.

In the second game Brannigan's scored four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to overcome a 13-10 deficit and pull out a 14-13 victory.

Tocchio went 3-for-4 and his three-run homer in the seventh won the game. Marks, the winning pitcher, also homered and contributing key hits were DeBartolo, Freeman, Alcott, Moccia and McManus. Bubencik* also belted a home run.

The 82-foot Russian racing yacht, The Fazisi, will join the festivities at the annual Lipton Cup Regatta at the Squantum Yacht Club, beginning its good will tour along the Eastern seaboard.

The Fazisi just completed the Whitbread Round the World Race and its mission is to educate people about sailing and help raise money to cover the costs incurred from the Whitbread Race.

The Fazisi will be in Quincy Bay for the Lipton Cup this weekend, July 13, 14 and 15. Dockage, housing and food for the crew has been arranged by the Squantum Yacht Club and the Cohasset Marina.

Continental Cablevision Fundraising Campaign For Muscular Dystrophy

Continental Cablevision's two South Shore cable systems will begin a month-long fundraising campaign for the Muscular Dystrophy Association with an auction and party co-sponsored by Barrett Restaurants Monday, July 16, 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at The Ocean Terrace, Marina Bay.

Headlining the event as guest auctioneer is former Boston Celtic and Sports Channel personality Tommy Heinsohn. Entertainment includes comedian Tony V., courtesy of HBO; and dancing to the sounds of DJ Michael Tucker.

Items up for bid, all donated by area businesses, include jewelry, original art, free weekends at local and Cape Cod hotels, Red Sox tickets, restaurant gift certificates, limousine service, ice cream parties and more.

There will also be complimentary hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar.

Admission to the auction party is a $10 donation to MDA, and is on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Tickets can be purchased at the following Continental Cablevision offices: 81 School St., Quincy; 89 North Main St., Randolph; 110 Antwerp St., Milton; 15 Farrar Farm Road, Norwell; 359 Gannett Rd., Scituate; or 296 Nantasket Ave., Hull.

Through August 10, Continental will donate $10 to MDA for every new customer who signs up for cable service in Quincy, as well as other local towns.

New cable subscribers will get their installation at half prices, $17.50 as part of the fundraising offer.

WEEK OF: July 12

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You are artistically inclined--indeed, your imagination soars. You work for the good of humankind, but you're not necessarily realistic in your approach. Creative activities are highlighted in a major way over the year ahead and may figure into career plans.

AQUARIUS -- January 21 - February 19

Week offers a splendid occasion for reconciliation, likely with an older relative. Good week for sending cards to old friends and reacquainting yourself with favored haunts.

PISCES -- February 20 - March 20

Investigation is the present byword; the deeper you search, the more that is revealed. One caution: avoid upsetting superiors, especially from Monday on.

ARIES -- March 21 - April 20

Friend may be in a more appreciative mood. Romance also is a bright spot, although the emphasis is on intellectual matters. If traveling, the key is not to exhaust yourself.

TAURUS -- April 21 - May 22

Quality is stressed over quantity, especially when it comes to landing work assignments. Educational pursuits are particularly rewarding. You excel especially in the role of teacher.

GEMINI -- May 23 - June 21

Memory may be playing little games. As well, you'll be observing some intriguing events. Therefore, you'd be wise to keep a journal nearby. Don't hesitate to spend time pampering yourself.

CANCER -- June 22 - July 22

Travel, whether local or faraway, requires extra-careful planning. You have a fine way with words but should use powers of persuasion judiciously. Good week for major cleanups.

LEO -- July 23 - August 22

Home life is lively, but don't hesitate to have others share in the work or expenses. Variety is the theme of the weekend. Ambitious streak surfaces on Monday or Tuesday.

VIRGO -- August 23 - September 22

You may be slightly glib, so don't hesitate to have matters--especially money matters--clarified to your satisfaction. Sporting events are more rewarding than anticipated.

LIBRA -- September 23 - October 22

It may be time to change your work methods, although not in a dramatic fashion. Messages received now have special meaning if you read between the lines. Neighbor may be prying.

SCORPIO -- October 23 - November 21

Volunteer projects, health matters, and physical fitness are all current priorities. Be more willing to forgive and forget petty slights. Competitive streak surfaces on weekend.

SAGITTARIUS -- November 22 - December 22

You may meet your match--whether in a sporting or an intellectual pursuit. Avoid being vague as your message may be easily misunderstood. Partner may be more attentive than of late.

CAPRICORN -- December 23 - January 20

Oilbeat travel is a focus of the current week, but practical matters--mainly of a mechanical nature--demand attention. Your goal may be broader than expected; a creative approach helps you reach it.

Mug 'N Muffin Express Version Franchised

New England Restaurant Brokers recently franchised a new express version of the standard Mug 'N Muffin to Maria Toomey in the Blue Cross/Blue Shield Building on Hancock St., North Quincy.

The take-out only format is geared primarily to office buildings. The restaurant is approximately 600 square feet and located in the atrium of the building.

William Kennedy, president of Mug 'N Muffin has indicated the prototype store may be one of a couple of directions that the company is going in. The other is the interior design of their new stores.

There are approximately 20 Mug 'N Muffin stores throughout Massachusetts.

Bud Farnsworth and Al Pagliocca of New England Restaurant Brokers represented both franchisor and franchisee.

Van Schaick Supports 8-Year Limit On State Legislator Term

Paul Van Schaick of Quincy, a candidate for state senator in the 1st Norfolk District, supports limiting the number of terms any state legislator may serve to a maximum of eight years.

"Indefinite terms of decades by state legislators does not serve the public interest, but rather the self-serving interest of the career politician," Van Schaick said. In fact, if he is elected, Van Schaick said he would not seek re-election after eight years in office.

"Government is for the benefit of the people and should be run by the people. Incumbent politicians are re-elected over 95 percent of the time because," Van Schaick said, "over the years they have built up a power and influence base along with large campaign chests."

"People are not happy with 95 percent of their incumbent politicians, but what the figure more accurately represents is the power of the incumbency."

Van Schaick also supports a multi-faceted bill by Common Cause of Massachusetts which would:

return leftover money in their campaign accounts to a special state fund after each election.

• Require candidates to spend money raised on items directly related to the campaign.

• Prevent officeholders from receiving compensation for speeches.

• Authorize the state office of Campaign and Political Finance to impose civil fines against politicians for violating the law.

• Increase criminal and civil fines for state ethic law violation.

• Force candidates to

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy

Quincy, Massachusetts is a city rich in history and as the Mayor of this wonderful city it gives me a great deal of pleasure to welcome you to the City of Presidents.

This administration and the citizens of Quincy continue to acknowledge our wealth of history and our heritage. Within the City's boundaries are many important historical sites:--the Adams Academy (site of the birthplace of John Hancock), the Adams Houses (birthplaces of the first and sixth Presidents of the United States), the Adams Mansion (the summer White House of the Adams' family, the "Church of the Presidents" (First Parish Church) where two Presidents are buried, the Dorothy Quincy Home, the Josiah Quincy Homestead are but a few of the important sites. While in the City you should also try to visit the Hancock Cemetery, the Abigail Adams Cairn (where Abigail Adams with her children, Abby, age 10, and John Quincy, age 8, watched the burning of Charlestown during the battle of Breed's Hill), the First Productive Iron Works, the First Commercial Railway and Moswetuset Hummock and, of course, old City Hall, built of famed Quincy granite in 1844.

Hundreds of years ago the first Europeans settled in what is now Quincy and even now the City is home to a new wave of immigrants. For 100 of those years Quincy has been a city changing from a small trading post to a city of almost 89,000.

Through the pages of this historic issue you will be able to read about the many places and men and women that play significant roles in our City and our nation and continue to do so, you will learn why our City is QUIN-ZEE and not Quin-see.

Most of the historic sites are within walking distance of each other and are fine examples of the heritage Quincy has preserved for our visitors and citizens.

The City of Quincy and its citizens welcome you to our fine City and we hope that you will find your visit to be a rewarding and memorable learning experience and that you will come back again.

Sincerely,

JAMES A. SHEETS
MAYOR

After Painstaking Renewal Project

John Adams Birthplace 'As It Was'

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, now looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

It is open to the public this year for the fourth time since restoration began.

The only furnishings in the house when it opened to the public two years ago were a table, bench and two chairs in the kitchen and a chest of drawers on another room.

The house is well furnished now and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted. Mrs. Harris, an authority on the Adams family, hopes the USNPS will change its mind again.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979, after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace re-opened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, the model on which the U.S. Constitution was based.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copies from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was discovered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2.00 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available.

The Adams Cottages

Our Only Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monaquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was, a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9½ acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of

Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabdiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735 (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

The junction of Franklin St., Independence Ave., and President Ave. in South Quincy is the only place in the country where the birthplaces of two presidents who are father and son stand side by side in the same city.

The precise age of the two cottages at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was retored by the Daughters of Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1681 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, a grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 through Nov. 10, with guided tours. Admission is $2 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days.

The Quincy Presidential Trail

The Adams Birthplaces are an important stop on the newly designated Quincy Presidential Trail, a 10.5 mile route that takes the visitor through the 17th and 18th Century locales associated with the lives of the Adams family.

Historic sites along the trail include the Adams Mansion, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy, First Parish Church, Adams Crypt, City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Birthplaces, Abigail Adams Cairn, First Commercial Railroad, First Ironworks, Col. Josiah Quincy House and Moswetuset Hummock, most of which are described in this magazine.

The Quincy Presidential Trail is a National Recreation Trail, the seventh in the state of Massachusetts and the 625th in the nation.

HISTORIC QUINCY

The City of Quincy has almost everything a city can offer with its brilliant, magnificent shoreline, its National Historical sites, its two colleges and its neighborhoods. It is rich in heritage, natural and human resources -- and it is particularly enriched by its unique blend of old and new.

First settled in 1625 at Mount Wollaston, separated in 1640 from Boston as a Town called Braintree, our Quincy was established as a Town of its own in 1792 and incorporated as a City in 1888.

It continues to be one of the finest cities in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It produced two Presidents of the United States. The mortal remains of Quincy's two most famous sons, Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams lie at the First Parish Church, Unitarian, in Quincy Square. The citizens of this City are very proud of its history and working together they are ready to meet the challenges they face as they look ahead to the 1990's and the 21st century.

The Adams Mansion

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed and warm than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was at first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open to the public from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour os at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days.

THE FIRST PARISH CHURCH

First Parish Church

Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chappel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56 which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate-and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of its benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

Still an active Unitarian Church, it is open to the public for tours July 1 through Labor Day, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. There is no charge for the tours but donations are accepted. Group tours should make reservations at least one week in advance. Church tours at other times of the year may also be made by appointment.

No charge for the Josiah Quincy Homestead.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.--the first Quincy--was named in 1792."

Apparently all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-zee."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it. Seems like a sound argument.

A Tradition of Trust For Over 70 Years.

Just before World War I, Sweeney Funeral Homes' first location was established in a small storefront on the corner of Hancock and School streets. Dennis S. Sweeney, the homes' first funeral director is remembered as a rather tall man, who had a beautiful, yet somber voice. Dressed in his characteristic top hat and tails, his singing was requested at funeral processions for over 30 years.

When he died in 1948, he entrusted the continuation of the family-owned tradition of instinctive and genuine concern for the city's bereaved families to his nephew, M. Joseph Sweeney.

Since 1917, Sweeney Funeral Homes have always meant the finest, most traditional service that Quincy has to offer. But we've also changed with the needs of the times, whatever they were. As early as 1940, we began offering pre-planning as a way for wise Quincy residents to plan their future.

Today, with funeral costs one of the top five major expenses for most families, pre-arrangements make better sense than ever before. Call Dennis Sweeney, our third-generation funeral director, at (617) 773-2728. Our family has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. It's a Tradition of Trust that stands as our guarantee.

John Adams 'Father'

U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Three years ago, 1987, was the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution and while many people think of the convention in Philadelphia 202 years ago, the fact is the precious document was born in Quincy. At least the seed was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in the law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go to the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Greif, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27. "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us -- but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indiaman he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant; butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of defeat, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs; and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams; and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound up in the law office of his home at the foot of Penn's Hill, paired with his firebrand cousin, Sam, and his ailing friend, James Bowdoin, to write a Constitution for the state of Massachusetts, which in turn became the model for the Constitution of the United States.

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee -- by the Committee upon the subcommittee -- and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee -- so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admiration in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

Quincy Junior College Report to the People

I. Historical Review

The April 24, 1960 Boston Sunday Herald (p. 15) published that: "In its fourth year, the commuter college has 25 full-time and 60 part-time students who are taught by one full-time and 12 part-time faculty members." Then Dr. Charles W. Akers, on leave from Eastern Nazarene College, served as director of Quincy Junior College. Clearly our student enrollment and our faculty to student ratio have greatly improved over the years and we welcome the return of our Eastern Nazarene roots with the election of Mayor James A. Sheets.

I also note from the same article that: "The junior college has to share space in the 58 year old Coddington Elementary School. And until 2 p.m. its classrooms are used by the next door high school." While we no longer share our building with the high school, we have nevertheless used this building for over three decades without charge although extensive renovation has been made thereto.

In 1960 our tuition brought in $23,000, the School Committee provided another $42,000 which was almost double our tuition income, and the state provided an additional $5,000. Today the School Committee and the state have financially abandoned the College, yet we continued to survive and serve. In my mind there must be someone, somewhere, who really cares and watches over Quincy Junior College.

As we begin the final decade of the twentieth century serving the hopes and dreams of so many we should not forget the difficulty of the nineteen eighties. In many ways the past decade for Quincy Junior College was much more difficult than the future decade will be. After the passage of Proposition 2-1/2 many with pen in hand were ready to write our obituary. How wrong they were. We begin the final decade of the twentieth century with more activity and more potential than at any other point in our thirty plus year history.

II. Immediate Reflections

This success is due to too many to name who worked hard to save this College. Special concern and understanding by the School Committee, former Mayor McCauley, our legislative delegation, College Courses, Inc., and the Board of Trustees have made success possible. But most important have been our students, faculty and staff, for they are the ones who never lost the faith, who never turned away, and who gave their all to the belief that it was great to have our very own regional community college.

As we prepare our regional residents for entrance into the inescapable high technology of the 21st century, we must be flexible in programming and stable in finance. Across our nation our educational standards are seriously low, our liberal educational traditions seriously weak, our teacher support and continuing preparation seriously inadequate, and our archaic systems of management flawed and unconcerned. We have come to the dangerous point where the collegiate bureaucracy has oft-times become self-serving rather than oriented to serving students, families and communities first and foremost.

Without thoughtful and serious change our national future will be in doubt. It is not only a matter of money, it is also a matter of understanding and involvement. It is not only a matter of administrative directions, but the creative freedom to allow faculty to join administration and help find a better way — together.

Public higher education in Massachusetts has not escaped this trend as you know given its financial and enrollment crisis. The truth is that money alone will not overcome the modern inadequacies of stultifying bureaucracy or lack of concern for successful delivery of educational services. Our systems are where they are because they sold out to the notion that money will solve all problems. Their independent educational integrity was the price paid for the income received. Rather than developing creative programs too many public institutions became susceptible to the operational politics of the day and such has limited change, innovation and the delivery of service.

It is, in my opinion, inappropriate to begin the nineties and build for the new twenty-first century with the entrenched ideas from past political practice. What we need is a significant and forward-thinking change in political and professional educational leadership if we hope to set meaningful and future-oriented directions. Our challenge is not necessarily to define and systemize what currently exists, but to dream about and conceptualize what should exist. That is why we recommended and the School Committee approved a School of Allied Health at "Quincy College."

III. Operational Oversight

The Chronicle of Higher Education published a chart on March 1, 1989 that shows public higher education has increased tuition and fees by at least 7.6% per year since 1983-84. But not Quincy Junior College!

Across the Commonwealth tuition and fees will rise 15 to 33% for public colleges. Students being turned away and teachers are being retrenched. But I am proud to say not at Quincy Junior College! We will not raise tuition or fees this Fall.

While others worry about how to operate with diminishing financial support, we dream of and are expanding educational opportunity to help prepare people for the future. When others degraded our education politically and socially, we were busy building a new foundation upon which to lead Quincy and the South Shore to the future.

In the broader Quincy community it is your college that supports the Chinese Language School, it is your college that supports the Environmental Fair, it is your college that supports the Germantown Educational Project, it is your college that works with the Quincy Vocational-Technical School and the Quincy Heritage program, and it is your college that works with the Woodward School.

We are a publicly governed but privately funded college. We have used our income wisely and we care deeply about the future of this City and this region. And no matter what others may say please be mindful that we do these socially valuable activities without receipt of public funding and, in too many cases, without proper recognition and support. We do these services because each is the right thing to do if we want all to share a better future.

Over the years the people of the City of Quincy and this region have been very good to the College, and we have done our very best for those we serve and their communities. We are a privately-funded, public-purpose collegiate institution serving human and social needs beyond the traditional public school responsibility. In the future, as our society becomes more complex, we will need the people that the College will prepare and the people will need Quincy Junior College.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Col. John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great grandfather.

John Hancock who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock

was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but deceased person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741 - 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77 - two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888.

But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway

First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, 6 and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Col. Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year round, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy saw of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial -- preferably a library -- to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestley and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I can not guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees. It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library." Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

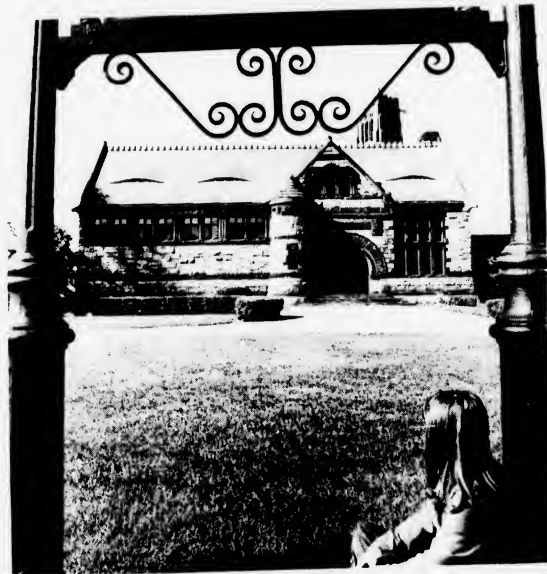

"You are, but you wouldn't have if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism -- "Food will win the war," they said -- the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1936, that now houses the stacks and the children's section.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays during June, July and August.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later vice president of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead is open to the public May through October, Wednesday through Sunday, from noon to 5 p.m. (last tour at 4 p.m. It is also open by appointment only Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon for groups. Admission is $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children age 12 and under.

John Winthrop, Jr. Blast Furnace

First Productive Iron Works In U.S.

It failed after nine years of effort and, since failure was anathema in a growing America, perhaps that is why the site and even the memory of the first commercial iron blast furnace in the United States was lost for so long.

It flourished, if that is the word, from 1644 to 1653 on the banks of the Mount Wollaston River (now Furnace Brook) in a section of Old Braintree called "the Woods."

Iron was an important commodity in Colonial Massachusetts, particularly for nails and pots and pans. Iron utensils had to be imported from England, a costly process for the penny-wise colonists.

With this in mind, John Winthrop Jr., son of the governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, went to London and formed the "Company of Undertakers for the Ironworks in New England."

The first iron was turned out in 1644 but young Winthrop was fired from his 100 pounds a year job the next year, to be succeeded by Richard Leader. The Ironworks itself didn't last much longer.

The ore from which the iron was blasted on the banks of Furnace Brook was not a high quality product. It was bog iron from the nearby swamps. Making it proved to be more expensive than the imported kind.

The Company of Undertakers appealed for fresh money in 1646 and apparently there were enough investors ready to send good money after bad because the furnace was still in operation in 1650 when the Scotch Prisoners arrived.

The Scots were rugged Highlanders, soldiers in the army of the future King Charles II who were captured by Oliver Cromwell at the Battle of Dunbar. Cromwell shipped 272 of them to New England as cheap labor in an effort to make the Quincy ironworks a paying proposition. It didn't work.

The Company of Undertakers went bankrupt in 1653 and "the Woods" went back to the bear and the deer.

Meanwhile, with the same Richard Leader as agent, construction began on a second iron works north of Boston in Saugus in 1646. When it was completed in 1650, it was recognized as the first integrated iron industry in America.

JOSIAH QUINCY HOMESTEAD

Josiah Quincy Homestead

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston. But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquilla" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family -- Col. John Quincy, the great grandfather of John Quincy Adams sixth president of the United States.

The Josiah Quincy Homestead is open to the public from June 1 to Oct. 15, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Visits may be made at other times by appointment. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children age 12 and under. Residents of Quincy are admitted free.

How Many Miles From Boston?

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7½ and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-miles marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7½-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock St. in North Quincy and Wollaston.

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children, Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth president of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin St.) meets Viden Rd. atop Penn's Hill a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public free of charge.

Adams Academy

On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body ---25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 and 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar schools" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Leverett, an aimable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett who signaled the passing of Adams Academy --- and many other 19th Century classical prep schools --- at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did and on June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop. The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and Saturday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Saturday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. or by appointment. It is closed Sundays and holidays. There is no admission charge.

Seat Of Government For 146 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 146 years, the nerve center of government for first the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a president of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard - who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months - the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a 3 and one half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

Abigail Adams Wife, Mother Of Presidents

Mrs. John Adams, the former Abigail Smith of Weymouth, is the only woman to be wife of one president and mother of another ... and she could have been grandmother of a vice president.

Husband John was chief executive from 1797 to 1801; son of John Quincy occupied the White House from 1825 to 1829; and grandson Charles Francis Adams ran for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, Abigail Adams once wrote to her husband, John:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

Abigail Adams: A Woman Of Special Honors

Abigail (Smith) Adams was the only woman to be the wife of one President and mother of another.

She was the wife of John Adams, our second President.

She died in 1818, however, and did not see her son John Quincy Adams elected our sixth President.

John Adams did live to see his son become President in 1825.

Hancock Cemetery

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Col. John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm St. lodging house were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and down-trodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

HANCOCK CEMETERY

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrowhead (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

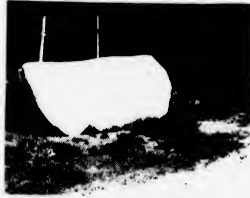

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with the Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Moswetuset Hummock, identified by a marker stone and maintained in its natural state, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Open Container Law Violations

Crackdown On Public Drinking

By JANE ARENA

Mayor James Sheets said he hopes to begin a city-wide crackdown on public drinking within a week to 10 days.

On Tuesday he said Quincy police cruisers could begin sweeps throughout the city on weekend nights in an effort to curtail violations of the open container law, which is a criminal offense.

"I feel that a lot of the wanton destruction that has occurred in Quincy during the summer is a direct result of drinking," he said, alluding to the recent vandalism spree in historic Hancock Cemetery near City Hall.

Sheets said that a first offense is punishable by a $200 fine. Another $200 fine will be added for subsequent offenses as well as a criminal record.

"After a first offense," he said, "it becomes part of a criminal record. I think people have to recognize that if they're going to drink and violate the open container law, that they are going to be affected for the rest of their lives. They are going to have a criminal record."

Sheets met with Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice at Quincy District Court Tuesday to discuss plans for the crackdown.

He said the plan will also involve the city's ward councilors because the area of concentration will be on city neighborhoods.

"It's always been my philosophy that people have the right to feel safe and secure on their property," he said. "Everyone has the right to feel safe... If you have a lot of public drinking at night... that's a violation of a fundamental right that people have."

There will also be some primary target areas during the initial stages of the police sweeps, the mayor said, although he did not disclose these areas.

"Certain areas will receive immediate attention... but we'll try to balance that out through the city.... Our objective is to protect communities... residential neighborhoods."

The police sweeps would involve "a number of police and cruisers," the mayor said. He added that the city's summer "impact unit" which brings the total number of weekend night cruisers in the city to 13, will also be instrumental in the crack-down effort.

The sweeps may also necessitate the need to bring in overtime officers on the police force, he said.

Asked if the city can afford the overtime, he said it is "something that we have to afford."

Sheets added, "We have to try to send a message to violators that we won't tolerate this type of foolishness. It is essential that we begin something."

City Receives $16.1 Million In State Aid

The city has received $16.1 million, the last of the fiscal year 1990 local aid payments from the state, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

The payment, he noted, is two weeks late. It should have come at the end of June when the fiscal year closed.

The payment, he said, "brings us right up to where we're supposed to be." With local aid cuts, he noted, the city was slated to receive $35.5 million.

Sheets said the city has been able to limit borrowing in an effort to meet its bills. The city borrowed approximately $7 million in February, he said, but it has been paid back. The interest was "just over $125,000," he said.

Now, Sheets said, the city is hoping to receive the $3 million in local aid which was withheld by Gov. Michael Dukakis. The money could come within the next week, he said.

The amount could go toward covering the FY90 budget deficit, he said, but added that it would be at least two weeks before it is known whether some 60 city employees who were laid off last spring could be rehired.

Sheets said last May that if the city received the withheld local aid, he would endeavor to rehire as many city employees as possible. This week he said that unforeseen expenditures could hinder that.

One of the expenditures not budgeted into the FY90 budget is the completion of the capping of the West Quincy landfill. The city had budgeted $2 million for the job but the low bid was for $25,000 over that figure, the Mayor said.

Another $260,000 in retirement incentives was also not figured into the FY90 budget, as well as about $500,000 in interest payments to banks.

Sheets met with Paul Doherty, assistant city auditor, on Monday and learned that it would be about

New Lot Brings A Close To Hospital's Parking Woes

The parking woes that have faced Quincy Hospital patients, visitors, and staff members for the past several years will end this week as the hospital dedicates a new parking lot on the site of the former Hunting and Medical/Surgical Buildings.

Quincy Mayor James A. Sheets will join with hospital board members, administrators and employees in a special ribbon-cutting ceremony marking the opening of the lot today (Thursday) at 12:30 p.m. The dedication event will take place against the backdrop of a "Blacktop Barbecue and Picnic" that the hospital has planned for employees during the lunch hour.

The cookout, which will be held on the parking lot in the vicinity of the new rear entrance to the hospital complex, is a means of acknowledging employees for their patience regarding the many disruptions in daily routines caused by construction of the new hospital facilities. For the past three years, hospital staff members have parked off-site and rode shuttle buses to the hospital to help minimize the parking difficulties on-site.

"I want to thank everyone at the hospital and in the community at large for the understanding they've demonstrated during the parking 'crunch' these past few years," commented Ellen Zane, the hospital director. "With the opening of the new parking lot, I am so pleased that we can once again assure convenient, ready access to the hospital's outstanding new healthcare facilities."

The new lot adds approximately 200 parking spaces to the hospital's existing complement, bring the total number of spaces available on the hospital grounds to nearly 500.

By JANE ARENA
This year's Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar, which begins today (Thursday) and continues through Saturday, will feature more activities and entertainment than ever before and is expected to draw a large crowd to Quincy Center.

"Everyone is anticipating a great time," says Harold Sadoff, chairman of the Bazaar Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, which sponsors the annual event.

Over 50 selling and activity booths will offer virtually something for everyone.

Along with annual favorites including the moonwalk, kiddie rides, face painting, clowns, balloons, and of course, bargains throughout the Center, there are several new attractions this year.

The Rhode Island Children's Theatre Company will perform an original 45-minute musical entitled "The Enchanted Paintbrush," on Friday from 11 a.m. to noon.

About 20 minutes before the show, costumed performers will walk through the Center and invite children back to see the production to be held at Hancock Plaza near Woolworth's.

A large canvas will be spread out so that the children can sit and enjoy the show.

After an hour to grab a bite to eat, children can come back to see the Ronald McDonald Show, an old favorite making another appearance this year.

This year's Bazaar will also feature entertainment for adults under the Big Tent outside the Bank of New England.

The Big Tent will feature almost continuous entertainment during the three day event.

On Thursday the Quincy High School Alumni Band will perform. There will also be music by Johnny Groove.

On Friday there will be performances by The Sax Quartet and The Yard Rockers, and Saturday three bands will offer contemporary and popular music from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Another new feature is the U.S. Air Force Miniature

RONALD MacDONALD returns to Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar with performances Thursday and Friday.

M16 Jet Plane which children can sit in and have parents take their photo.

In addition, there will be booths from the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, demonstrations by the Quincy Fire Department and blood pressure and cholesterol screening.

The highlight of the Sidewalk Bazaar is the annual Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant, to be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Center Plaza.

Eighteen contestants from the Quincy and South Shore area will vie for the crown and the honor of reigning over the annual Quincy Bay Race Week, to be held August 8 through 12.

More than $2,500 in prizes will be shared by the winner and the runners up, with the greatest share going to the new Miss Quincy Bay.

The Sidewalk Bazaar officially opens today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. with a ribbon cutting ceremony at Granite and Hancock Sts. Mayor James Sheets will cut the ribbon to kick off the three-day event.

During the Bazaar, Hancock St. between Granite and School St. will be closed off to form a pedestrian mall.

WJDA personalities will conduct live interviews during the bazaar and WUMB from U-Mass Boston will also be broadcasting from Quincy Center during the event.

Continental Cablevision will also be on hand to telecast entertainment and other highlights of the Bazaar.

"With all the activity, we expect to draw a large crowd," Sadoff said. "We expect it will be even more successful than in the past."

Hancock St. between Granite and School Sts. will be closed to motor vehicle traffic during the Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar, today (Thursday) through Saturday.

The streets will be blocked from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday.

Although bazaar activities will begin at 10 a.m. each day, and end at about 9:30 p.m., extra time is needed before and after each day's events so

Recycling Promotion Meeting July 24

All residents interested in volunteering to help promote the city's new recycling program are invited to attend an informational meeting Tuesday, July 24 at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

The meeting is sponsored by Mayor James Sheets, the Department of Public Works and the Quincy Recycling Committee.

Starting Monday, Aug. 6, the city's recycling program will expand to include glass and certain types of plastic, as well as paper. Blue bins are being distributed to 25,000 households for the purpose of storing recyclable items.

Browning-Ferris Industries will collect recyclable materials each week on the same day as regular trash collection.

Ward 3 Councillor and Recycling Committee chairman Lawrence Chretien said there are many ways people can help to promote the new program. Citizen participation is the key to the program's success and many people will be more apt to recycle if their neighbors are setting good examples, he said.

At Tuesday's meeting, Sheets, DPW Commissioner David Colton, and Chretien will explain how residents can help. Among the suggestions will be:

- Being a street or block captain. This entails talking to neighbors or dropping off informational flyers about the program.

- Putting a sign on the lawn for a short time in August to publicize recycling. The sign will include the program's new official logo designed by North Quincy High School student Shu Xing Tan.

- Participating in phone banks to call people in areas with low participation rates.

Residents are also encouraged to offer suggestions as to how the city could better promote the importance and details of the recycling program.

For information about Tuesday's meeting and volunteer opportunities, residents should call the recycling program hotline at 770-BINS.

A PRESIDENTIAL WREATH sent by President George Bush was laid on the crypt of John Quincy Adams to commemorate the 223rd birthday of the sixth president. 3 Fires At QJC, Vo-Tech School Under Investigation

Three small fires at Quincy Junior College and Quincy Vocational Technical High School, which were set within four hours on Monday of this week, are being investigated by Quincy Fire Dept. officials.

Fire officials suspect that the same person may have set all three fires and are investigating for arson.

No injuries were suffered as a result of any of the fires.

About 300 students at the college were evacuated following discovery of a fire in a basement men's restroom which caused an estimated $3,000 in damage.

Earlier, a fire had been set in a men's restroom at the high school. Both fires were started with a pile of toilet paper, possibly with lighter fluid, fire officials said.

The fire at Vo-Tech caused the evacuation of 85 summer school students.

The first of the three fires was started in a dumpster at the college and was reported at 12:22 p.m.

The dumpster fire was quickly extinguished. Firefighters were called back to the high school at 2:06 p.m.

and again to the college at 4:16 p.m.

Temporary Pedestrian Walkways In Front Of City Hall

After receiving several complaints from citizens last week concerning construction for the traffic improvements in front of City Hall, Mayor James Sheets arranged for temporary pedestrian walkways and temporary crosswalks to assist pedestrians in the area.

"The sidewalks are all dug up," Sheets said, "and because they're working with the utilities... they're constantly working on the sidewalks... but it's much better now. I was concerned about people's safety."

Temporary pedestrian walkways have been set up along Hancock Street from the former Burgin Platner building, past City Hall, to the MBTA station.

Temporary crosswalks have been painted from City Hall across to the Church of Presidents and from the MBTA station across to President's Place.

Urges Support For Recycling Initiatives

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

Anyone who spends time on the coast of Massachusetts cannot help but be struck by the amount of debris floating in the water. Most of this debris is packaging, and other "disposable" items. Such litter endangers marine animals, degrades the quality of our coastline, and damages recreational and commercial boats.

Research indicates that most of the debris in Massachusetts' coastal waters originates locally. Thus, the solution to this problem rests upon action at the state, local and individual levels. Excess packaging must be eliminated and necessary packaging made recyclable and aggressive recycling programs developed.

The consumer goods industry's powerful lobby has stymied attempts to deal with the problem, resisting the burden of developing strong recycling programs. Experience has shown that recycling programs will fail without solid markets for recycled materials—only industry can create these markets.

This year, frustrated with the legislative deadlock on source reduction and recycling issues, over 100,000 Massachusetts citizens signed an initiative petition for placement on the November ballot that would discourage excess packaging while stimulating markets for recycled products.

The "Recycling Initiative" mandates that, by 1996, all packaging be reusable, made from at least 50 percent recycled materials, or be made from recyclable materials.

Unfortunately, the state Supreme Judicial Court has ruled that the "Recycling Initiative" cannot appear on the November ballot, due to a technicality surrounding a single signature on the original petition.

Barring a successful appeal, the only recourse lies with passage of House Bill 4456, "An Act to Promote Environmentally Acceptable Packaging," the legislative version of the "Recycling Initiative."

Disposable packaging is wreaking havoc on land and at sea and represents a tremendous waste of natural resources. The consumer industries have resisted taking strong remedial action on this issue. The time for negotiation has long since passed. We consume fewer resources and minimize the waste we generate.

We at the New England Aquarium encourage every citizen of the Commonwealth to call or write their state representatives, urging them to vote in favor of House Bill 4456.

Sheets Unopposed?

The local Speculation Corps is already focusing on next year's city elections even though the preliminary is a good 14 months away.

There seems to be a growing consensus among City Hall observers that Mayor James Sheets could win a free ride to a second term.

Observers, at this time anyway, don't see an opponent in the wings or one warming up.

It is doubtful, they feel, that a member of the present City Council would take on Sheets next year.

At least three councillors — Tim Cahill, Michael Cheney and Tom Nutley — are considered potential future mayoral contenders but not likely to make a run in 1990.

SHEETS

CAHILL

Sheets came into office in January in perhaps the toughest of times since Thomas Burgin had to deal with the Depression years of the 1930's.

Most observers think he is doing a good job despite the sagging economy and the state almost belly-up.

Quincy voters usually are willing to give a freshman mayor a second term as long as they feel he is doing a good job — or trying to do a good job — is honest, and has some common sense.

Sheets qualifies on those counts easily.

Unless the roof falls in on the city between now and the September, 1990 preliminary election, he looks like a certain two-term mayor at the least.

So next year doesn't appear to be the year to challenge him. Two years from then — 1993 — might be a different story.

Observers at the present time think Sheets could very well become the third mayor in Quincy's history to run for re-election without opposition.

The other two: Tom Burgin in 1940 and Frank McCauley in 1983.

Chances are you won't remember if it's stolen, especially if the break-in theft was one of major proportions. Perhaps that is a wee exaggeration, but let me tell you how you can be sure of the whereabouts of each and every one of your valuables should you fall victim to a burglary.

Inventory your possessions. That sounds simple, but right at this moment can you list each valuable you'd hate to lose and its last resting place? PROMOTING BETTER HEALTH

There is no question that nearly everyone is more concerned with their health than they were a decade ago. Physical conditioning and dietary reform have become an integral part of our lifestyle. While most of this activity and attitude is beneficial, many people, unfortunately, embark on the road to health without sufficient information. A doctor of medicine is educated in all phases of health. It is our belief that a complete program of personal health habits should include consultation with and examinations by a health professional. It is our intended purpose in the coming weeks and months to promote better health by passing along some information concerning health and well-being in a series of articles.

We at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE are proud to welcome you to our new column. We hope that the information you read about all aspects of health care will be useful to you. Our doctors and staff can help you lead a heart-smart lifestyle. Call 472-2550, or visit us at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. Special Exhibit Marks John Q. Adams Birthdate

The National Park Service and Adams National Historic Site celebrated the anniversary of the 223rd birthday of John Quincy Adams July 11 with an special, one-day exhibit at the Adams National Historic Site.

Artifacts reflecting the sixth president's life, from birth to death, were part of the exhibit located in the Carriage House. The artifacts are a part of the historic collection, but many had never before been viewed by the public.

Exhibit items included John Quincy Adams' christening gown and cradle, books used for his preparation for entering Harvard, the seal used for the Treaty of Ghent (ending the War of 1812), the congressional desk used by John Quincy Adams in 1831, and the English traveling chest that marked the beginning of more than 50 years of distinguished service.

John Quincy Adams' wife, Louisa Catherine Adams, encouraged and supported by her husband in more than 50 years of marriage. When he was appointed ambassador to Prussia, Russia and the Court of St. James, she endured many changes in residences to be with her husband.

The exhibit also included one of her formal gowns, her lace mitts and scent bouquet, as well as the Russian passport she used to make the 40-day, 2,000-mile journey from Russia to Paris, with their eight-year-old son, Charles Francis, to meet John Quincy Adams.

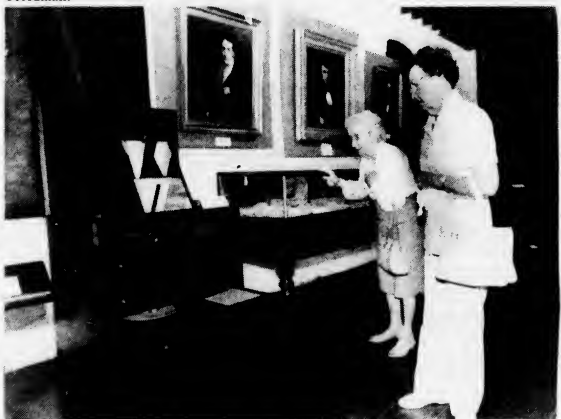

It was a journey that was always remembered by the Adams family, and gained her their admiration and respect.

The exhibit was the first of its kind at the Adams National Historic Site located on Adams Street. The "Old House" will always reflect the scene as it was when four generations of the Adams family occupied the historic home, beginning with John and Abigail.

But, the story may be told using a variety of mediums. The program at the historic

McCarthy Mixup

Lawrence W. Parrish of 102 Edwards St., Quincy Point, a Fore River shipyard worker for 22 years, was subpoenaed to testify before Sen. McCarthy's investigating committee after FBI informant William H. Teto of Ashby identified him as a communist.

But when Parrish arrived in Washington it was discovered that the subpoena should have been made out to Lawrence T. Parrish and McCarthy apologized to Parrish. Fore River officials said they could find no record of a Lawrence T. Parrish ever working there.

"If Sen. McCarthy is as anxious as he would have us think about the healthy condition of defense plants in this area," said Parrish, "he might use the influence of his high office to see that contracts for more work are assigned to such plants as the Quincy Shipyard."

Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

CLOSED-CAPTION TELEVISION

Many elderly people derive the majority of their entertainment from watching television. If a person is hearing impaired, however, the ability to derive any satisfaction from this source is severely restricted without a decoder for captioning. Closed-caption television began in the early 1960's as a joint effort between the major television networks, Sears, and the federal government. The service provides some 400 hours of closed-caption television each week for those who purchase the decoder. These devices cost about as much as a very inexpensive VCR and occupy a small space on top of the TV set. To date, only about 150,000 decoders have been sold. Either the elderly with hearing impairments know nothing of them, or they do not take the initiative to purchase them. In such cases, relatives and friends should make this knowledge available.

In addition to hearing aids, there are other devices to help a hearing impaired person. These instruments are called assistive hearing devices. They include telephone amplified headsets, phone alerts, doorbells, smoke alerts and TV closed caption recorders. At STEPHEN TOBIAS HEARING CENTER, we will inform you about all of these instruments. In fact, there are many types of hearing aid systems that you should be aware of before you make any decisions. Know what is the right system for you. Make an appt. to see us by calling 770-33951. We're at 488 Quincy Ave. Continue to read our column for more interesting hearing topics in upcoming weeks.

Low Fat (But Good) Lasagne

I know it's summer and we shouldn't eat heavy foods, but at our house almost every time we cook "out" I always make something "in" and that usually is a pasta dish.

My daughter Rita's friends recently called our cookout an "Italian Barbecue." Anyway, one of those times I prepared lasagne with mostly non-fat cheese and you would never know the difference.

LOW FAT (but good) LASAGNE

1 Lb. Lasagne
8 oz. low fat cottage cheese
1 Lb. low fat ricotta cheese
Plain tomato sauce (with a minimum of oil)
Grated Romano cheese
12 oz. package shredded cheddar cheese
1 egg

While the lasagne boils, mix the ricotta and cottage cheese together with the egg and some grated cheese, and salt and pepper if you wish. Then layer the lasagne first with the sauce, the lasagne, the cheeses and a smidgen of the cheddar cheese and sauce on each layer until all the lasagne is used up. On the top layer sprinkle the rest of the cheddar cheese and some grated cheese. Bake covered in a 350 degree oven for about 20 minutes and then the rest of the time uncovered for about 15 more minutes. When I uncover, I always pour a little extra tomato sauce before the last few minutes and also when each portion is served.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Pevite's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point., Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The late Dr. John Scindler of the Monroe Clinic, Monroe, Wisconsin, who achieved astonishing success showing unhappy people how to be happy.

D. Scott Deware said: "Happiness is a state of mind in which our thinking is pleasant a share of the time." In other words, happiness is in the mind and has nothing to do with environment.

It's an attitude or an opinion you assume toward what happens to you day by day. Some of the most unhappy people in the world are those who are surrounded by racing cars, yachts, mansions and 'beautiful people'. And some of the happiest people in the world are those that have none of these things and work at plain and ordinary jobs.

Granted, no one can be a saint and be happy all the time. Every day has its problems, and as long as we live we are going to have to cope with problems... there are always those ups and downs... that sort of takes some of the 'happy' out of the day.

If attitude has a lot to do with happiness, why not make this day, TODAY, a day of happiness for ourselves? ...

13 St. Chrysostom's Delegates Return From Mission

Thirteen delegates from St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, Wollaston, including senior high youth and their advisors, recently returned home from a 10-day mission trip to Belize, Central America.

Their trip was in response to an invitation from the Anglican Diocese of Belize. Situated on the subtropical Caribbean coast of Central America, Belize is bordered by Mexico on the north and by Guatemala on the south. The country, which is densely forested, is about the size of New Hampshire.

Senior high youth who participated in the mission are Jeffrey Freeman, Keith Reynolds, Lauren Bina, Jeffrey Bina, Tracy O'Sullivan, Timothy Johnson, Wayne Weikel and Heather Lynch. The group was under the direction of trip coordinator Sally Lynch, John Iredale, Dr. Philip McLaren, Lynne McLaren and Dr. Brian C. Black.

The youth group consisted of two work teams. One team spent the week painting an Anglican Elementary School making improvements for the fall term. Another team dedicated their time in the renovation of the Belizian Church Counciate, which was damaged in a fire several months ago.

The Quincy teams worked side by side with the youth from the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist in Belize City with these various projects.

Each of the Quincy youths stayed in the homes of parishioners from the Cathedral and were introduced to all aspects of Belizian culture.

In addition to hours of dedicated community service, the group explored many natural wonders and cultural characteristics of Central America. Activities included a trip over the border to Guatemala for a day of exploring, snorkeling in the Caribbean and hiking through the rain forests of the Maya Mountains.

St. Chrysostom's group came away from Belize with a deeper understanding of how people in other parts of the world live, and a greater appreciation of their culture and the role their faith plays in their everyday lives.

The group will present a slide presentation of their trip Sunday, Aug. 5 after the 10:15 Eucharist.

Project Impact Team Booth At Sidewalk Bazaar

The Project Impact Community Team, which works with the Quincy schools on drug and alcohol awareness, will have a booth in front of Dunkin' Donuts during the Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar today (Thursday) through Saturday.

Information will be available on alcohol and drug abuse prevention and intervention and on available clinics and agencies in Quincy.

Information will also be available on Quincy's latest involvement with the Target Ambassadors Program, a service of the National Federation of State High School Associations. North Quincy and Quincy High Schools have been accepted into the national Target program and have been selected to receive training on alcohol and drug abuse prevention.

Teams of students, parents and faculty have been trained and are working with the Impact Team to promote better schools and community efforts in the fight against drug and alcohol abuse.

Project Impact notes that recent statistics indicate that some 92 percent of all high school seniors experiment with drugs and/or alcohol; that 1,350,000 Americans were killed in alcohol-related motor vehicle accidents in 1987 alone, more than were killed in all wars Americans have ever fought.

6 Teams Have Shot At Zone 6 Playoffs

By TOM SULLIVAN

With the regular season scheduled to end this weekend, six teams had a chance of making the Zone 6 American League baseball playoffs.

Going into the game last night (Wednesday) with Quincy, Morrisette held a slim lead over Braintree with a 16-4 record. Braintree was 14-4. Morrisette finishes the regular season Friday night with a makeup game with Dorchester at Adams Field at 8:30 p.m.

Morrisette and Braintree appeared set for playoff berths and Mass. Tire of Weymouth, Milton and Canton all were in the running for the other playoff spots.

Erik DeBoer turned in another pitching masterpiece Monday night as Morrisette defeated Milton, 5-1.

He gave up only one hit in the first inning and an unearned run and the only Milton baserunner the rest of the way was on an error. He had a season-high 14 strikeouts.

DeBoer's 4-3 record is deceiving as he also has two saves, has struck out 79 in 46 1/3 innings and has a fine 1.15 ERA.

Morrisette had only five hits and errors played a big part in a four-run second inning. Brian Taylor had two hits and Kevin MacDougall, DeBoer and Pat Clifford one each. Jim Glynn, DeBoer, Clifford and Mark Kelleher all drove in runs.

Last Friday night Morrisette defeated Holbrook, 9-3, as MacDougall pitched the complete game to improve to 4-0. He allowed only three hits and struck out a season-high 11. He also had two hits and an RBI.

MacDougall's only mistake was a two-run first inning home run that tied the game at 2-2. DeBoer had a big night at the plate with a triple and double and two RBIs. Leading, 5-2, Morrisette scored four runs in the seventh to put the game away.

Kelleher had two hits, Jeff Calvert drove in two runs with a single, Taylor had an RBI single and Liam Higgins had a pinch single driving in a run.

Tony Anderlonis and Glynn each had a hit.

Earlier, following a big win at Braintree, Morrisette's bats fell silent as it lost to Canton, 2-1. DeBoer, for the second time, was the victim of a late inning home run and lack of batting support. Morrisette failed to take advantage of seven walks and stranded 12 base runners.

Morrisette had only five hits, three of them infield singles, with the only solid blows being by Anderlonis and Kelleher.

Canton took a 1-0 lead in the first but Morrisette tied it in the third on a bases loaded infield hit by Taylor scoring Tom Balzano, who had walked.

Canton won it in the bottom of the seventh when pitcher Ted Johnson hit a mammoth home run over the right field fence off a DeBoer fast ball. The ball traveled over 400 feet.

DeBoer struck out 10 and walked three. In his three losses, Morrisette has had only four hits. Jeff Calvert and Clifford also had hits at Canton.

Triple A

Mets Ring Up 3 Straight Wins

The Mets rolled to three straight Triple A Baseball League victories, including the latest, a 23-9 romp over the Dodgers.

The Mets exploded for 19 runs in the first inning. Bobby Churchill was the winning pitcher and Mike Sheehan stood out in relief.

Churchill also led the attack with a home run, two doubles and two singles. Jason Snaitch, Jason Bernick, Mark Belanger, Tom Gildes, Richie Rose, Sheehan and John Filibotte all had multiple hit games.

Justin Bernier made a superb catch and Rose played well in center field.

The Mets overcame a 6-2 deficit with seven runs in the fifth inning to top the Braves, 9-7, with Brad Currie the winning pitcher in relief. Churchill had a home run and Terrance Roche and Currie belted triples and Rose had two hits. Currie and Roche played strong defense.

The Mets also outlasted the White Sox, 16-14, with Sheehan the winning pitcher.

Bernier went 4-for-4 including a homer and a triple. Roche doubled and tripled, Bernier, Jason Bernier and Belanger all had multiple hit games.

Junior League

Rotary, Kiwanis N.L., A.L. Winners

Rotary completed the regular season with the best record (21-1) in the Junior Baseball League to capture first place in the National League.

Kiwanis finished first in the American League at 15-7, a half-game ahead of South Shore Bank.

Kiwanis finished up with a 15-8 victory over Houghs Neck with Joe McCarthy the winning pitcher. He allowed eight hits and struck out eight and settled down after giving up five runs in the first inning, giving HN a 5-0 lead.

McCarthy also supplied some of the offensive punch with two singles and a triple. John Ryan had two triples and Dave Rowell and Jeff Russell had a hit each. Rowell also played a strong game at shortstop and Russell, who stood out behind the plate, threw out four runners attempting to steal.

Kiwanis scored twice in the sixth to edge VFV, 5-4, with Russell pitching well, giving up six hits and striking out nine. Eric Wirtz pitched well in defeat.

Russell had two doubles, McCarthy a home run and a single, Rowell and Jeff Feiner two hits each and Chris Cutty and Kevin McCue a single apiece.

In a high-scoring affair, Burgin Platter outslug Colonial Federal, 13-10. Tom Cumio and John Duffy shared the pitching for Burgin.

A bout by Jason Chagnon turned into a home run and he received the game ball. Robbie Callow went 3-for-3 and John Barron was 2-for-2. Judson Sherman-Rose, John Paul Laukkanen, Luke Donaher and Tom Cumio also had hits. John Chagnon, Mike Prinkle and Tom Cumio all made fine catches.

The final regular season standings:

NATIONAL LEAGUE—Rotary, 21-1; Houghs Neck, 13-8-1; Elks, 16-10-1; Keohane's, 11-11; South Shore Buick, 6-15-1; Colonial Federal, 5-17.

AMERICAN LEAGUE—Kiwanis, 15-7; South Shore Bank, 14-7-1; VFV, 13-9; Continental Cable, 9-12-1; Foley Chrysler, 6-15-1; Burgin Platter, 5-17.

Granite City In 5-Game Win Streak

Granite City Electric, with only six wins in its first 15 games, has come back from the July 4 break to win five games in a row and move into playoff contention in the Babe Ruth League.

In its latest game Granite City walloped the Firemen, 13-1, behind the fine pitching of Bob Verney. Granite City also topped Morrisette, 14-6, with Scott Wysocki the winner, and defeated Local 1139, 11-3, with Dan Burke the winning pitcher. Each of the pitchers turned in complete games.

Rob Guarnieri was the top hitter in the three games, having a double, two triples and a home run. Versatile Brian Jennette and Mike MacDougall also played key roles in the wins.

Granite City has also received a big boost from 13-year-old Verney, who has six wins.

In the win over Local, Burke scattered five singles, one each by Pat Shea, Mike Santoro and Doug Gallagher and two by Jim Sapienza.

Granite City's MacDougall paced the 11-hit attack against Morrisette with three singles. Guarnieri, Jennette and Steve Tangey had two hits each and Wysocki and Burke also had singles.

Morrisette, a much-improved team, had 11 hits including two each by Brian Littlewood, Mike Des Roche, and Chris Sullivan. Matt Riley, Juan Zarita, Nick Mastrogiamomo, Dan Boylen and Mike Lombardi had one each.

Granite City faced a Firemen's team which was playing without three of its top players. Verney struck out nine and walked three and also chipped in with a single.

Jennette played well in center field, had two singles and stole two bases. Guarnieri hit two long line drives for a homer and a triple. Burke had a single and double, Boylen, Wysocki, and Andy Joyce had singles and Billy Dunn a 310-foot double. Jeff Burrell hit a 325-foot drive that was run down by left fielder Eddie Chin of Firemen in an outstanding play.

The Firemen's Mike Kenney was outstanding in center field and also singled. Dewey Holmes had a single as did Chin. Dave Doherty hit two singles.

Bob Hannaford started pitching for Firemen and pitched well until tiring in the fourth inning. He was relieved by starting catcher Keith Martinson. John Svagdis finished well at second base and Brendan Ridge did a fine job at first and at catcher.

Blueberries Ready For Picking At Quincy Farmers' Market

Blueberries, are now available at the Quincy Farmers Market held Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. now through September at the John Hancock Parking Lot.

The lot is located across from the Quincy District Court.

"This year's blueberry crop looks great," said Kim Wieszicki of Bluebird Acres in Longmeadow. "The season is earlier than normal, and the branches are now loaded with sweet and juicy berries."

Massachusetts blueberries are also available at many "pick-your-own" berry farms, farmstands and supermarkets throughout the state.

Some 800 acres are in blueberry production in Massachusetts on 180 farms.

Nearly 800,000 pounds are harvested each year according to the state Department of Food and Agriculture.

"There are more than 20 varieties of blueberries grown in the Bay State," explained Elisabeth Patt of Holliston and treasurer of the Massachusetts Blueberry Growers Association.

"New cultivars are being developed by cross breeding the old varieties with new, more productive ones. This retains the wild berry flavor while enhancing size and productivity."

Blueberries are a wonderful small fruit to eat as is, as a cereal topping or with milk and sugar. Blueberries are rich in vitamin A and fair source of Vitamin C and fiber. They are also low in calories and contain no fat or cholesterol.

To freeze berries, sprinkle a tablespoon of sugar over dry berries to preserve the flavor and store in a plastic freezer bag.

For a complete Pick-Your-Own Blueberry listing send a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, MA 02202.

Be sure to call ahead for picking conditions and availability of containers and picnic facilities.

Storyteller At Crane Library July 24

Storyteller and musician Derek Burrows will perform Tuesday, July 24, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

Burrows offers an imaginative concert of music, folktales, poetry, and personal stories about life in the Bahamas. A native of the Bahamas, Burrows writes stories from personal experiences and from materials collected during annual visits there. Performed in the dialect, the stories reflect on the ways in which island life resembles and differs from North American city life.

This is the third program in the Summer Storytelling Series offered each week for children ages five and older and adults. A complete schedule of performers is available at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, and at all branch libraries.

WEEK OF: July 19

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Home life and creature comforts are unusually important to you, and the year ahead may find you making improvements in this area. Watch out for a tendency to put your plans and ideas in front of everyone else's; you don't do so intentionally, but it happens.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19

You have a special appeal and your charm helps you make a key advancement in a community endeavor. On-again, off-again assignment is once again on-and in a big way.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20

Your sense of style is a peak; this is a great week for designing a room or building a wardrobe. Home life is surprisingly serene-enjoy the peace while it lasts.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20

You are more assertive than of late and may make a significant advance on the job. Home life benefits from greater routine and a more organized approach.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22

Week is generally successful for entertaining, though doing so on a small scale may be the most winning approach. Intellectual activities are highlighted, with emphasis on philosophy.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21

Your intuitive strengths are strong, and you understand a friend's moods and provide a willing shoulder of support. Great week for updating skills and making applications.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22

Week is favorable for artistic enterprises; this is a positive time for learning a new craft. Some home improvements may be seen over the weekend. Budgeting is a key task.

LEO — July 23 - August 22

Thursday-Saturday are generally favorable for travel, but allow for detours, changing conditions, and changing moods of others. Love life accents a sentimental approach.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22

Good week for putting the finishing touches to a series of left-over tasks and then initiating a new project. Surprise guests—possibly relatives—may drop in on weekend.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21

You may be thrown into a managerial-position and do surprisingly well. Work generally is more enjoyable. Home life, meanwhile, features more responsibilities and obligations.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22

Education is the current theme as you take on a teaching or learning assignment. Shared responsibilities may lead to minor friction. Creative juices are bubbling.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20

Friday-Monday see your ambitious streak surfacing, leading to an important accomplishment by Tuesday or Wednesday. Health and fitness are the themes of the whole week.

BORN THIS WEEK

More Telephone Tips

You and your children should not give any information, such as personal history, which some callers obtain under the guise of taking a survey.

A skilled caller could get information such as where your husband works, when he is out of town, how many children, where they go to school, where you shop, and many other bits of information that might be used to your total detriment.

If a strange voice asks for your husband, don't say he is out of town, just tell him that if he will leave his name and number, your husband will return his call. This instruction is good for the children also. It may be difficult to teach your younger children to do this since they usually answer truthfully and instinctively, but it is very important that they learn.

It may be necessary in some few instances to have your number changed, or even to get an unlisted number and then be very careful to keep a list of those you give it to.

If calls still persist, this will narrow the field of suspects considerably.

Remember, use your phone properly and wisely, HANG UP on an obscene caller and DO NOT SAY A WORD — SILENCE THEN COULD BE TRULY GOLDEN and save your life.

Real Estate & Business

Business Experience Shared With Students

DOHERTY & WHITE Insurance and Real Estate has relocated its main office to the historic Massachusetts Charitable Association Building at 353 Southern Artery. Commemorating the move are, from left, Jack Doherty, Gail Doherty-Osten, Bob Doherty, Ginger Doherty, Lynn Doherty-Munroe, Jan Shine and Kim Diedrichsen.

Local businessmen and women recently shared their experience and knowledge with Quincy students in the 8th and 11th grade through their participation in Junior Achievement's Project Business and Applied Economics programs.

Steve Dwan and John Battaglia, Boston Five Cent Savings, Shirley Willet, Shirley Willet Co., and Carol Heaton, Kennedy Lehan, served as Project Business Consultants at Broad Meadows School. Joy O'Connor and Amy Eagles, USF&G, worked with the students at Atlantic Middle School. At Sterling Middle School, Beth Walkin from IBM consulted.

These volunteers, in partnership with the teachers, spent between 9-12 weeks with their classes, organizing activities and leading discussions of all aspects of economics and business. Topics covered included Global Economics, Personal Economics, and the Economics of Staying in School.

At Quincy High School, Jay Cashman, J.M. Cashman, Inc. Quincy, brought economic theory to life for students in Rita Dinsmore's Applied Economic class. Visiting the classroom once each week for fifteen weeks, Cashman, in conjunction with Dinsmore, oversaw the establishment and operation of a student-run company. Students were given the opportunity to sell stock, elect officers, hold Board meetings, produce and sell a product, liquidate the company, and return a dividend to stockholders. Cashman helped the students acquire Bruins Tickets as sales incentives. During the last few weeks of the program, he led the students in Management Economic Simulation Exercise on computer software.

A "First Time Home Buyer Educational Workshop" will be held Wednesday August 1, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Quincy City Hall. This is sponsored by Quincy Housing Partnership, the City of Quincy, and Quincy Community Action Programs Inc.

Discussed will be how to find a property and make an offer, credit rating, obstacles encountered, types of financing, what information banks require from a borrower.

Taking part will be Kathy Anderson, assistant vice president, Quincy Savings Bank; Arthur Foley, Realtor, Century 21 Annex; attorney Robert Quinn; Jim Flaherty, loan originator, Colonial Federal Savings Bank; and Neil McGrath, Mortgage Guarantee Insurance Corporation.

This seminar is free and open to the public, but due to limited space, registration is necessary. For more information, those interested should call Nancy Callahan, Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. at 479-8181, ext. 121.

More than 100 people attended the first workshop in July.

Post Island Marsh To Be Restored With $100,000 Grant

A $100,000 grant has been awarded by the Massachusetts Bays Environmental Trust to restore the Post Island marsh to a viable saltmarsh.

The marsh, located in the Adams Shore district 500 feet from the shoreline of Quincy Bay, is bounded by Sea Street, Gannett, Mallard and Post Island Roads.

Mayor James Sheets, Rep. Steve Tobin and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson are principally responsible for the progress that has been made on the project.

A working group, established by the Quincy Department of Public Works and the Conservation Commission, has been working in conjunction with the Massachusetts Bays Environmental Trust, Massachusetts Coastal Zone Management and representatives from the Environmental Protection Agency to choose a site and make plans for the restoration of a saltmarsh in Quincy.

Plans to restore the Post Island marsh were announced at a press conference earlier today (Thursday) at the mayor's office.

Maynard Goldman, chairman of the Massachusetts Bays Environmental Trust, said he was "pleased to assist the City of Quincy in this important effort" that will restore the flow of tidal water with the installation of a self-regulating tidegate and the reconstruction of outfall pipes.

The tidegate will allow for the normal tidal flow into the marsh while protecting nearby homes from flooding by automatically closing when the water level rises to a certain point. Also, 1,750 feet of drainage channels must be excavated and restored within the marsh.

The city will aid the restoration by giving no cost assistance with certain services and tasks during the project.

Restoration work, which is being coordinated by DPW Commissioner David Colton, is planned to begin this month. The start of construction is targeted for September 1991. The project is expected to be completed during the summer of 1992.

The Post Island marsh has become a fresh water marsh, causing many problems for residents. Presently, it is a fire hazard because of the elephant grass, a drainage problem due to clogged channels and a mosquito breeding area.

Restoration of the Post Island marsh to a natural saltmarsh environment will greatly improve the area. The saltmarsh will foster the growth of oxygen producing plants and the return of marsh animals and waterfowl.

Besides producing a more aesthetic and healthier environment, the restoration will also eliminate sediment and sand in the channels, and eventually reduce the need for maintenance.

$250,000 In U.S. Budget For Downtown

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city's downtown revitalization effort cleared a major hurdle Tuesday after it was learned a $250,000 appropriation for the project has been included in the U.S. House of Representatives version of the FY 1991 federal budget.

Mayor James Sheets, who was notified by Congressman Brian Donnelly late Tuesday morning, called the news a "major victory and break through."

"That's a major victory. The chances of (the appropriation) would be cut or pulled out are small," the mayor added.

"It's a big break through for us. At a time when we have all kinds of budget restraints, both at the state and city level, to get money from the federal government is a major accomplishment and is extremely important," the mayor added.

After speaking with Donnelly late Tuesday morning, Sheets said he is confident Quincy will receive the money.

"It's my understanding that it will hold and be a part of the Senate's budget. We're optimistic it will hold and we'll get a quarter of a million dollars."

"That's what I wanted. I would have settled for $125,000," Sheets said.

"It's possible the amount could be cut out all together but I don't think so," the mayor said, adding Donnelly is also confident the amount will be approved.

By law, the federal budget must be passed by Oct. 1.

If approved, Sheets said the $250,000 would go toward "technical assistance and planning for the historic district."

"The city will work with the U.S. Department of the Interior on precisely how it will be spent," he said.

For the past few months,

Sheets and his administration have tried to secure federal funding for the downtown revitalization effort.

Last month, the mayor led a delegation of Quincy officials to Washington, D.C. to line up support for rehabilitative funds. Joining the mayor were Thomas Koch, his executive secretary; Planning Director Richard Meade, Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site; Councilor Timothy Cahill; and Peter O'Connell and Bob Galligan of the O'Connell Management Co.

Sheets Considering Bar Hours Rollback On Case-By-Case Basis

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

In an effort to reduce vandalism, other crime and litter, Mayor James Sheets is considering rolling-back the hours of city bars on a case-by-case basis and preventing all-night convenience stores from operating during the early morning hours.

Last week, the mayor proposed forcing all bars to close at midnight instead of 1 a.m., banning all-night convenience stores and restricting the hours of fast-food restaurants.

After meeting with City Clerk John Gillis Monday, Sheets has decided to consider the roll-back at bars on a case-by-case basis. Moreover, he said some all-night convenience stores might be forced to close from midnight to 5 or 6 a.m.

As for the fast-food restaurants, the mayor said they will be allowed to continue operating at their present schedule as long as they help clean up their business area. Most close by 11 p.m.

Furthermore, Sheets said he will suggest the bars, convenience stores and fast-food restaurants participate

SPECTATORS OF ALL ages gather in front of Ronald McDonald as he entertains with a magic show at the Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. (Quincy Sun photos by Tom Gorman)

HAZY, HOT AND HUMID weather did not deter hundreds of shoppers from taking advantage of bargains, entertainment and other activities at last week's Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar.

One Of The Best

Sidewalk Bazaar Draws Many Shoppers

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
The Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar was a tremendous success last week, proving once again it is a leader in sidewalk sales in the area. Most merchants and bazaar officials agreed this year's event was extremely successful. The hazy, hot and humid weather did not deter hundreds of shoppers from strolling up and down Hancock St. which was closed off to vehicular traffic from School St. to Granite St.

In fact, a random sample of both retailers and refreshment establishments showed that they equaled or topped last year's bazaar sales.

The three-day bazaar was sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. More than 50 selling and activity booths were featured, making this one of the largest bazaars ever.

QCBA President Charles Ryder, owner of Ryder's of Quincy, commended Bazaar Committee Chairman Harold Sadof for his work in making this year's event a success.

"I think Harold did an excellent job setting up the tents and all the activities. It was terrific," Ryder said, adding business at his store was very good.

"It's always good (at bazaar time). As long as it doesn't rain, that's the main thing. It's summer and it certainly was hot Thursday and Friday. Saturday was very pleasant and there was a good turnout," Ryder added.

Sadof said he was very pleased with the bazaar.

"I was very pleased with everything, especially the entertainment. It was a lot of fun and it drew a lot of young people to the bazaar.

"There were more people on Saturday than in previous years. There was a lot of activity and the merchants did a lot of business," he said.

"Quincy continues to be the leader in sidewalk sales," said Robert Colman, past president of the QCBPA, and owner of Colman's Sporting Goods of Quincy.

"Others try to copy and imitate us but we still survive as THE sidewalk sale in the area. There really is only one genuine, old-fashioned sidewalk sale and that's here in Quincy," Colman said.

"I'm very happy with what happened," he added.

Eileen Cohen, executive director of the QCBPA, said this bazaar ranks with the best.

"The street was busy, perhaps not as busy as in previous years but we attribute that to the heat and high humidity," Cohen said, adding merchants were still busy Thursday and Friday.

"Saturday, which is sometimes a slow day, was busy too. The music and activities added to the enjoyment. I think this was one of the best years ever," she said.

Cohen also said the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant was a tremendous success, despite the rain driving the final announcement indoors at Quincy Center Plaza.

"The pageant was Class A—it was run very well. Going inside didn't hinder it at all."

Mark Bertman of Rogers Jewelry moved his sidewalk sale inside where it was cooler and where "it's easier to keep track of diamonds."

"We did very well," he said. "We did a lot of lay-away business for Christmas."

Greg Hanley, owner of Screammers, said business was "unbelievable."

"We tripled last year's business because of the weather. The heat was definitely on our side," Hanley said, noting he sold out of slush and soda.

Noreen Shea, who runs Baskin Robbins along with her husband, Thomas, said "business was better this year because the weather was better."

"The hot weather helped us a lot. Overall, we had a good three days. It was very profitable."

Other merchants reported good sales.

"It was very successful," said Marie Smith, whose daughter, Caryn, owns Caryn's Corner. "She certainly did as well or better this year compared to last year."

Donna Grossman of Parade of Shoes said, "Business was good. We did just about the same as last year."

"The weather definitely affected (the turnout). I think we had a really good crowd, considering the heat. If it had been just a tad cooler, we would have done much better."

"We did a lot better Saturday this year than we did last year," Grossman added.

Virginia Ridge of Musical Memories agreed Saturday was good for business.

"Business was just about the same as last year. I think the weather was beautiful, especially Saturday. We had cool breezes."

"I think on Saturday we had a lot more people than in previous years," Ridge added.

Council On Aging Chairman:

Planning Needed Now To Provide Services For the 'Oldest Old'

"The time has come when we can no longer put off the need for efficient and effective planning to provide important services to our oldest old," says John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging.

His remarks followed a just published report of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health entitled "The Oldest Old In Massachusetts 1900-2050."

"The oldest old are here with us now and it is time for the federal, state and local governments to get their act together to serve the needs of this most venerable but vulnerable population," Noonan said.

According to the state health department's latest statistical analysis of Massachusetts elders, the oldest old are those individuals who have reached the age of 85, the fastest growing senior population.

The number of people aged 85 and older living in Massachusetts increased from approximately 6,400 in 1900 to approximately 92,000 in 1988, a total growth of 1343%, Noonan said. The oldest old have more than doubled as a proportion of the Massachusetts elderly population since 1900.

Statisticians predict that, based on the present data and projections, the oldest old population in Massachusetts will continue to grow from the present figure of 92,000 to 378,000 in the year 2050, a total growth of almost 311%.

"I have been a member of the Quincy Council on Aging for the past 18 years and I have seen our aging populations increase in amazing numbers," Noonan said.

"For example our present population in the entire city is over 82,000. Of that number there are close to 17,000 over the age of 65, and there are some 7400 over the age of 75. The oldest old is the fastest growing segment of the state population and we see evidences of that here in Quincy.

"The policy planning implications of this latest report issued by the state health department are enormous. We must begin to set in motion the wheels to meet the needs of the oldest old population, before they become too much older. They are here with us today, not some five or ten years down the line.

"We must plan now to address the problems of health care, affordable housing, elderly abuse, preventive medicine, transportation, availability of nursing home beds, home health care, caregivers for long term care, diets and nutrition, the misuse of medication, and a whole host of other problems which relate to our elderly populations," Noonan concluded.

The State Health Department's report was unveiled at a seminar held Monday in the Public Health Council Room, Boston.

Participants in the seminar included State Health Commissioner David Mulligan; Elsie Frank, President of the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans; Paul Lanzikos, Secretary of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs for Massachusetts; Dr. Teri Wette, Director of Research, Braceland Center for Mental Health and Aging; Dr. Daniel Friedman, Asst. Commissioner and Director of the Bureau of Health Statistics, Research and Education, State Health Department.

Noonan was a coordinator for the seminar.

Van Shaick Criticizes Harold On RR Support

Paul Van Shaick of Quincy, Republican candidate for State Senate, has criticized Senator Paul Harold's support for a MBTA's proposal to reactivate the Old Colony Railroad line.

"Before we even begin to argue the merits of Old Colony," Van Shaick said, "it should be crystal clear that the taxpayers of this district cannot afford new projects."

Van Shaick notes that the MBTA has estimated that the entire Old Colony project will cost over $600 million.

"Knowing how the state operates," he said, "the final cost could more realistically approach $1 billion and cost many more millions to operate each year.

"Would such a financial investment pay the desired dividend?" he asks, "Certainly not for the citizens of Quincy and Braintree who are already serviced by Mass Transit."

Van Shaick says that expansion of the commuters boats in South Shore communities might be a better and more cost effective solution to the transportation problem.

Shannon Vows To Do What He Can To Stop Waste Incinerator

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

On a campaign visit to The Quincy Sun Monday, Attorney General James Shannon said he will do whatever he can to stop a proposed hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree near the Quincy line.

Shannon, 38, who was elected attorney general in 1984 after serving six years as a U.S. congressman, also vowed to continue the fight against crime, drugs and corruption while expanding environmental and civil rights enforcement.

In making his pledge against the proposed incinerator by Clean Harbors, Inc., Shannon said:

"Here is an example of a project which is potentially very threatening and we're going to do everything we can to ensure that project does not go forward; that the legitimate concerns of the people in this area are processed in the siting process."

Asked whether the project can be stopped, the attorney general replied, "I think so. I think the whole suitability process which is underway now offers great possibilities for stopping it."

"This is the first time one of these projects has gotten this far in Massachusetts and there's such grave concerns about the congestion around the location, about the meteorological concerns that I think there's a very good chance that we can stop it."

"We're certainly going to try the best we can."

Asked what he could do as attorney general to stop the incinerator from being sited in the Fore River industrial basin, Shannon replied, "I can't tell them to stop it. But I've told the Senate counsel that I'm not going to represent (Clean Harbors) in the process."

"I'm going to be on the side of the people who are opposed to the location of that project," he said, adding that he has been working with Mayor James Sheets, Sen. Paul Harold, Rep. Suzanne

JAMES SHANNON

Bump from Braintree and other officials in the area on the issue.

"We're going to do everything we can to ensure that project doesn't go through. It makes no sense."

"It was driven by the fact that Clean Harbors happened to own that land. That's no basis for siting a facility of that nature."

"That's going to continue to be a priority of mine."

What is the biggest issue facing the state's attorney general?

"I think it's crime and drugs. We started a drug unit in the attorney general's office, and there wasn't one before. There was no pending drug investigations when I took over as attorney general."

"We've had great success. We've prosecuted a couple hundred major drug dealers and traffickers in this state in the last few years and we're going to do more of it."

In the fight against public corruption, Shannon created a public integrity division which has brought more than 100 indictments on corruption charges.

He also got the highest fine, $100,000, ever obtained under the Campaign and Political Finance law. The largest previous fine was $100.

Another issue of great concern, Shannon said, is the environment.

"We face environmental threats all over the state. We've gotten, in the last three years, the biggest penalties, civilly and criminally, the biggest clean air act penalty, the clean water act penalty, hazardous waste act penalty."

"We got the toughest environmental enforcement this state has ever seen in the last few years and we're going to make it even tougher."

According to campaign literature furnished by his campaign committee, cleanup costs, penalties and fees recovered have nearly tripled, from roughly $800,000 in FY 1986 to $2.25 million in FY 89.

Shannon brought the first state lawsuit in the country for depleting the ozone layer, leading to the largest civil fine ($700,000) ever obtained in a state environmental.

He also obtained the largest state penalty ($250,000) under the Clean Water Act in a case involving pollution of the Merrimack River.

If he wins re-election in November, Shannon said he will build on his accomplishments.

18 Pageant Contestants Challenged Themselves

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was privileged to be a judge in last Friday's Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant. The last time I had observed this event was 12 years ago when I was also a judge. The differences that stood out in my mind from 12 years ago were the educational and social aspirations of these contestants as well as the successful sports backgrounds of many of them. We had some very impressive athletes up there.

Perhaps the most difficult thing for a person to do is to step up to a podium in front of a large audience to speak, and these contestants all put themselves on the line to do just that. While it may be important for us to look at the serious social, moral and gender ramifications of beauty pageants, the bottom line is this: 18 beautiful young women challenged themselves and had a good time doing it and that is what life is all about.

Would that we could spend all the days of our lives with such challenge and enjoyment.

Sincerely,
Charles L. Ryder

An Apology

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to use this space to apologize for the events of Monday, July 16th.

There was a ball game at Adams Field, I was standing behind home plate when I had an argument with a former Babe Ruth coach. I lost control of my temper and used loud and abusive language to him, for this I want to apologize to him.

I would like to also apologize to the parents, coaches and umpire who had to listen to this. Most of all I want to say to the boys who played this game I'm sorry for my outburst.

I want also to apologize to the other board members of Q.Y.B.B. for the inconvenience I have caused them by using my mouth instead of my head. Lastly I want to thank The Sun for allowing me to use this forum.

LaRaia: Another Comeback?

Looking ahead to next year's municipal elections, one long-time politician watcher wouldn't be surprised to see Joseph LaRaia back on the campaign trail.

Not as a candidate for mayor, but for one of the at-large City Council seats.

And if he does run — and wins one of the seats — another observer feels he might use it as a springboard for another future run for mayor.

He has done that before.

When he lost the mayor's office to Arthur Tobin in a 1977 brawl, some of the so-called experts were quick to pronounce him politically dead. He was finished, they said. Finished. Period.

But two years later he made a comeback, winning a City Council at-large seat by 187 votes over newcomer Richard Koch, Jr. And just two years after that (1981) he topped the council at-large field.

In 1987 he took on mayoral incumbent Frank McCauley and came within 474 votes of what would have been one of the city's biggest political upsets.

Last year was not a good one for him. He finished fourth in the mayoral preliminary derby won by Sheets and Peter O'Connell with Steve McGrath third.

He didn't seem to have his heart in it. Some thought he might have coasted believing he had one of the two mayoral nominations pretty much wrapped up based on his performance against McCauley two years before.

Was that LaRaia's "Last Hurrah"? His final exit? The End?

At the time of that defeat, LaRaia was asked if he was retiring from the political arena.

LaRaia

But he didn't sound like he was quite ready to call it a career.

"I don't have any plans at this point," he said. "But you never say no in this business. And I just don't close the door on anything."

He hasn't really closed the door since.

WEYMOUTH CPA Alfred Sweeney says we erred on one item in our recent column entitled "Massachusetts" regarding the jumbo tax hike.

Sweeney says only businesses will pay the 5 percent service on legal and accounting services over $20,000 in annual billing.

We had said, trying to decipher the mumbo-jumbo in the tax package that legal and accounting bills to the general public would be subject to tax.

Well, it's good news that it won't. But don't you think the businesses paying the 5 percent are somehow going to pass it onto their customers?

WHAT ARE THE odds of two cars from two different states with the same license plate meeting each other?

Probably the same as two triple plays in one baseball game. And just as one occurred at Fenway Park last week, the other happened in Quincy last week, too.

Thomas Koch, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, was driving to work when he noticed a man beeping and pointing at his car at Dimmock and Hancock Sts. The man followed him down Hancock St. and Koch, believing something might be wrong with his car, pulled into the Quincy Center MBTA station.

Koch realized nothing was wrong with the car. But, he noticed the man's Texas license plate which reads "QUINCY."

"When I got out of my car, I noticed his license plate right away," Koch said. Koch's Massachusetts license plate also spells "QUINCY."

The man behind the Texas plate is Harold DiMattio, a former Quincy resident now living in the Lone Star state. DiMattio was in the city visiting family. His brother, Steve DiMattio, recently retired from the Quincy Police Department.

As the two chatted about the coincidence, DiMattio told Koch he knew his father, the late Richard J. Koch Sr.

The younger Koch received his vanity plate three years ago after applying for it. A man from Merrymount had it before him.

O'Connell's Second Return From Vietnam: 'This Time Somebody Wanted To Listen'

By JANE ARENA

In June of 1969 Paul O'Connell, U.S. Marine, celebrated his 19th birthday in a foxhole in Vietnam.

His mother had sent him a canned cake, a can of frosting and a single candle.

"I had a little party," he remembers. He also remembers wondering if he'd ever see 20.

Last month Quincy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell celebrated his 40th birthday in a "western style" hotel in Vietnam, just miles away from that same foxhole. There were balloons, a few cards and presents, and a rendition of "Happy Birthday" sung in Vietnamese by fellow veterans who had learned it just for the occasion. He remembers feeling like he had come full circle.

And, in fact, he had. O'Connell recently returned from an 18-day trip to Vietnam with 12 other veterans. The trip was sponsored by the William Joiner Center at the University of Massachusetts in Boston. The project is called Full Circle, and arranges for Vietnam veterans to return to the country in an effort to study the behavioral impact of the war and post war experience.

The project also hopes to shed some light on the phenomenon of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), a condition all too common in Vietnam veterans. The Full Circle project aims to discover whether returning to Vietnam can help veterans deal with war experiences and whether their revelations can help others.

For O'Connell, returning "to country" after 21 years seems to have made a big difference.

He likens the experience to breaking an arm, letting it heal incorrectly and then, years later, deciding to right it and having it broken again so that it will heal straight. "When that arm gets broken again," he says, "there's pain, and that's the real pain, and you might say, 'well, maybe I shouldn't have done it,' but then...you're glad you did it."

O'Connell is glad he did it. He first learned about the Full Circle project through newspaper accounts about three years ago. After reading about the project he made some phone calls and told them he thought he might be just what they were looking for.

"When they look for people to go, they're not looking to empty the mental wards," he says. "They want someone who is going to be able to handle being in Vietnam for 18 days."

O'Connell explains that he never was, and never wanted to be "one of those veterans who wears fatigues and lives in the woods."

In fact, from the time he returned from the war in 1969, until 1985, 10 years after the fall of Saigon, he hardly spoke of Vietnam at all. There have been times, he says now, when he wouldn't even disclose the fact that he was a veteran of Vietnam because "people didn't want to hear about it."

In 1985 though, after the topic of the war became newsworthy in light of the 10th anniversary, O'Connell began writing down his memories of the war, wondering if he remembered it correctly.

The first time he came back from Vietnam to "the world," O'Connell, like so many other veterans, found it a rather unsettling experience.

"I turned 19 over there. When I came back, I was 30," he says, echoing the sentiments of many other veterans who came back feeling so much older for the experience of the war.

"I came back thinking I'd better hurry up and get married," he says, "before there wasn't anybody left...at 19!"

This feeling of having to rush through life also touched his professional career. At the age of 28, O'Connell was in line for a promotion to captain in the Quincy Fire Department, an honor most hope at 38.

"Time has always been precious to me," he says. "In Vietnam you never really knew how much time you had left."

He remembers flying back after his one year of duty in Vietnam and feeling "very happy, very excited" to get home. He was proud, he says, not necessarily for having fought in the war, but simply because he had done what he was told to do and felt he had done it well.

He had never once been on the losing side of a single battle he fought. He had killed and had seen friends killed before his eyes, but he was proud, because, as he says today, "For once in my life I did what I was told to do."

O'Connell was a high school drop out at the age of 17 when he joined the Marines. At 18 he was in Vietnam returning from there, he says, felt like a "real accomplishment" and one that he was eager to share. He wanted to talk about it.

"I didn't want to go to Faxon Park and demonstrate how to shoot an M16," he says, "but I wanted to relate to people, I wanted to say, 'hey, let me tell you about my year.'"

He never got the chance to do that. After returning he found out very quickly that the topic of the war made people feel "uncomfortable."

"When you talked about Vietnam," he recalls, "people put it together with evil."

How did it feel to come home and not be able to talk about it?

He says it was like a child bringing home a report card full of straight A's, proudly holding it out to his parents, and then watching them cast it aside with a shrug.

"It was like they said 'yeah,

FIRE CHIEF PAUL O'CONNELL in Vietnam last month with Hoa, who served as a tour guide for the "Full Circle" group.

we're glad you got A's, but we wanted you to take a different course."

"You find you lose your pride very quickly," he adds. "You find that the majority really does rule."

Although no one ever called him "baby killer," (one of the few printable monikers Vietnam veterans were rife with when they came home), he says the silence was somehow more damaging.

Returning from Vietnam the second time, O'Connell says he felt much the same way as he did the first time. He was excited, and again he felt proud of his accomplishments, this time on a more personal level. And again, he wanted to talk about it.

"The difference this time is that somebody wanted to listen to me. I really believe that the major problem with Vietnam veterans is that they had no one to talk to. There was a lack of communication."

Communication was a key factor during the Full Circle project. The 12 in the group, which included one woman who had served in Vietnam as a nurse, made time each day to talk to each other about what they were experiencing.

"We'd ask each other how they day went...and we realized that, if in '68 and '69, after a bad day in Vietnam, if someone had just asked 'hey, how was the day, how do you feel?' we wouldn't have had to come back."

But each for his own reasons, they did go back, and there were some emotional moments during the trip.

Each day the group traveled in a van (along Highway 1, in a straight line," O'Connell says, "we couldn't get lost), and each day they would arrive at a place where someone in the group had seen battle during the war. Each day someone would come full circle.

On those days, O'Connell says, "you made them know they weren't alone."

Another emotional moment came when the entire group attended Mass at a small church the first Sunday they were there. Although the service wasn't Vietnamese and not easily followed, O'Connell says he could tell when they came to the part of praying for departed family members.

At that moment, he says, he looked around and noticed the church was filled with what must have been the equivalent of Gold Star Mothers in America. These women, he noticed, were old enough to have lost sons in the war. And he remembers he felt genuine compassion for them. A parent now himself, he can comprehend, as he could not at 19, the grief of losing a child. And he knows now it does not matter which side you're on. It's not a question of politics.

One of the group, a Catholic priest, was able to speak to the women in French and he blessed them. "Some of the women had tears in their eyes," he says.

"No American had ever visited their church before," he adds quietly. "It was very moving."

The group also spent time with Vietnamese veterans of the war and each treated the other with great respect, he says, even though the thoughts were there that these could be the very men who had killed his American friends during the war. Even when the Vietnamese veterans sang for O'Connell the victory song they used to sing when they killed an American Marine during the war, O'Connell says there was always mutual respect.

"That's something they try to teach you (in the project)," he notes, "is to separate the warrior from the war...We were both warriors."

When he speaks of Vietnamese children he smiles and says they're just like the children you'd find in America or anywhere else.

They were thrilled with the baseball cards he brought, and the photos of his wife, family and home.

The children there are fascinated with Americans, O'Connell says, because Americans are "almost mythical" to them.

"I'm kicking myself for the things I didn't bring with me," he says.

But it's easy to see he's happy with what he brought back: A sense of how far he's come since the war, a sense of completion, and a sense of having come full circle after all these years.

But the best part of all, he says, is the chance to talk about it and the fact that finally, after 21 years, there are people who want to listen.

City Refuses To Pay Parking Rent Hike

The City Council once again refused to appropriate money to cover the rent increase demanded by Hia Pearl Co. for land leased by the city as a parking area to the rear of stores on Hancock St.

The city had been paying $175 a month but Hia Pearl raised the rent to $300 a month as of April 1, 1936. The company claimed it was owed $1,125 for unpaid rent in 1936 and $2,100 in 1937.

Rice Crust And Zucchini Pie

When my friend Esther returned from visiting her son in Wisconsin, she called to tell me she had brought me back a cook book. And then in the next breath, she said she had second thoughts as to whether or not I would appreciate it.

Well, today's recipe comes from that cook book and it's true, we can all learn something new every day. I never made a crust out of rice before and was pleasantly surprised at the outcome.

Previously, I always made my quiches crustless, but this came out so delicious, I'm sure you will like it as well.

RICE CRUST

1 cup cooked rice

1 egg

quarter cup of grated cheese (any kind) Salt and pepper to taste

Mix all together in a slightly greased pie plate smoothing the rice so it hits all sides as well as the middle. Bake in a 425 degree preheated oven for about five to seven minutes. Set aside while you make your filling which can be anything from using vegetables to ground beef, etc. I used zucchini.

ZUCCHINI PIE

1 medium sized zucchini (shredded)

2 eggs

1 quarter cup flour

1 half cup milk

one quarter cup grated Romano cheese (you may also use cheddar if you prefer) Salt and pepper to taste

Mix together and when crust is done, pour into crust. I topped it with onion and tomato slices and it not only looked good, but tasted even better. Bake in a 325 degree oven until done (about 30-35 minutes). The leftover pie cut perfectly and heated well in the microwave.

Acupuncture Is Helpful For Nervous Tension

By DANIEL S. KARP, L.L.C.

Nervous tension is a complaint suffered by virtually all of us at some time.

It can be described as a disturbance of one's peace of mind, expressed as mental stress, arising from exposure to life's negative situations.

Most people attribute nervous tension to a psychological (mental) origin. If this were so, then psychological therapy and tranquilizers would help. However, in many cases, they do not. What is the reason for this failure? It is because there exists a second type of nervous tension that has until now gone unrecognized and undiagnosed.

It is a true illness affecting many people and for which psychological therapy and medications cannot help. One can be free of all anxieties, yet in spite of this, a person is still nervous. The reason is that he or she is suffering from physiological nervous tension, which is completely different and apart from psychological nervous tension.

The ailment, physiological in origin, is due to an excessive flow of energy through some acupuncture meridians. There is nothing this person can do but suffer with hyperactivity, tension and anxiety, irritability, restlessness, impatience, speech problems, sensitive eyes, rapid heartbeat, and insomnia.

An excessive energy flow will give rise to hyperactivity. On the other hand, a deficient energy flow will show the opposite: sluggishness, lethargy, and slow pulse. In either case, poor health is the result.

Physiological nervous tension or its opposite, hypoactivity, is quickly diagnosed by a skin resistance test. Acupuncture therapy then corrects the problem by restoring physiological balance.

Example: A 27-year old suffered from chronic "nerves." He was in constant discomfort with restlessness, irritability and anxiety. He said, "I just don't feel good." He received one treatment and returned home to Canada the next morning. Weeks later, a letter arrived. He wrote: "Thank you for the best treatment I received in my life. It took a few days, but I must admit that acupuncture had a wonderful effect. I have never felt better."

Pre-sterilized, disposable needles are used exclusively. For more information please contact: Acupuncture Associates of the South Shore, 12 Dimmock Street, Quincy, MA 02169, (617) 471-5577.

Setting Your Goal Weight

By NANCY STOLFA Diet Center Counselor

Whether old or young, heavy or slim, everyone is interested in his or her weight.

Scales can measure that, but can't tell you whether the number you see is a result of big bones, well-developed muscles, water retention, or just too much fat. What really counts is not how much you weigh, but how much of your weight is fat.

The most scientific and up-to-date method of body composition analysis is by bio-impedance. It's quick, simple and totally painless. An imperceptible radio current briefly reads your body's quantity of fat, lean and water.

A computer print-out lists your body composition both by pounds and percentage, giving your lean-to-fat ratio and your basal metabolic rate. With these tools, it's possible to set a goal weight that's exactly right for you. By combining a nutritious diet with sensible exercise, you can lower the amount of body fat and increase your muscle—the ideal for your health's sake as well as your appearance.

Interestingly, lean tissue (muscle) burns calories, while fat tissue is just the stored for of calories and doesn't need the energy from food to sustain it. This means that you'll be able to maintain your new weight better if it's the result of an increased muscle ratio.

The increased muscle "burns" the food you eat, letting your weight stay the same. The bio-impedance body analysis is offered by the "Diet Center" to each dieter as an integral part of their individual weight loss program. Initially used for goal setting, the dieters progress is tracked by late body analysis. A personalized exercise program is included in the computer print-out. The total Diet Center program of low fat, high fiber diet, exercise and behavior modification has been demonstrated to be effective in maintaining muscle and losing fat.

The Diet Center also offers bio-impedance body analysis to the general public for a nominal fee. It is useful information to anyone interested in a healthful weight-goal. The athlete, the student, the homemaker, the senior citizen are all welcome.

Call the Diet Center of Quincy at 770-3442 for an appointment.

HEALTH HINTS

Practical Healing Tips For Everyday Health Problems

Recent studies have suggested a possible link between dietary deficiencies and chronic eye diseases such as night blindness and macular degeneration.

"The eye has special nutritional demands," says Dr. David Newsome, Clinical Professor of Ophthalmology at Tulane University. "A diet poor in nutrients such as zinc and antioxidants may render the eye more susceptible to damage."

The elderly are particularly vulnerable to degenerative changes in the eye and are frequently found to have nutritionally deficient diets. Each year an estimated 167,000 new cases of macular degeneration, the leading cause of severe vision loss in the elderly, are seen in physicians' offices, and most of these visits are by persons age 60 and over.

According to Dr. Newsome, the key essential elements in keeping the eye, particularly the aging eye, healthy are zinc, selenium and vitamins A, C and E.

This combination of components can be found in OCUVITE®, the first major vitamin and mineral supplement formulated specifically for eye care patients.

Doctors say people put up with far too many health problems that can be avoided. Here are some tips and techniques anyone can use to heal everyday health problems. They're from the editors of Prevention Magazine Health Books.

* If you're allergic to pollen, probably the single most important thing you can do to alleviate your suffering is to air-condition your house. This also helps with two other chief inhalants: molds and dust mites.

* The best way to increase your energy level is to get plenty of rest, eat a balanced diet and exercise. One tip is: give yourself an extra 15 minutes in the morning before you start your day. That way you don't start off feeling rushed and tired.

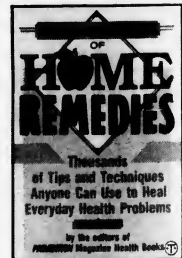

* Arrest those energy robbers. If you have a problem on the job, or if there's a family feud, resolve it.

* If you got a sore muscle, wrap it in an Ace bandage to keep the swelling down. Just be careful not to wrap too tightly or you could cause swelling below the injured area. Compression may stop cramping, too.

* Put your feet up. This is the advice when you've injured your foot or lower leg. Raising the injured body part higher than your heart prevents blood from pooling and causing swelling.

These tips were culled from the recently published The Doctors Book of Home Remedies, by the editors of Prevention Magazine Health Books. In addition to the above tips and hints, the book covers over 2,000 remedies for 138 health problems including bad breath, headaches and pet problems. It's available at most local bookstores in hardcover at $26.95.

One of the over 2,000 remedies in a recently published health book is a quick way to relax and energize at the same time: Breathe deeply.

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT THAT BACK PAIN

Most people will experience some degree of back pain at one time or another in their lifetime. Experts point to the general trend in our society to do more and more sitting, coupled with a general decline in our level of physical fitness, as possible causes. Regardless if the back pain is brought on by an accident, poor posture, straining while working around the house, or playing a sport, or by doing too much bending and lifting, there is a lot of confusion as to what to do for treatment.

There are some general recommendations that often prove helpful to patients suffering from lower back pain. In my practice, I strongly urge patients to apply ice immediately after injuring their lower back. The ice tends to reduce any swelling or inflammation while also serving as a natural pain reliever. People with lower back pain should avoid excessive sitting because the seated position dramatically increases the structural pressure of the lower back. The recommended posture is known as the fetal position, whereby the patient lies on his/her side with both knees brought up toward their chest. Excessive exercise, bending, twisting and/or lifting should be avoided, as these actions tend to aggravate an injured lower back.

While I have taken the liberty of offering some basic suggestions on the care of back pain, there is no substitute for a thorough evaluation and examination to correctly diagnose the cause of the problem. The doctor of chiropractic, with intensive training and knowledge of the spine, is eminently qualified to treat patients suffering from lower back pain.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock St., North Quincy, 773-4400.

A 20-minute run three times a week can help you have a healthier heart.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Burdens. We all have them. We all complain from time to time about them, but they are still there. In our daily lives we continually face difficult decisions, trying circumstances and situations.

It may be hard for us at times to face those issues and realize that even the most strong and most favored persons in life have their share of burdens too. Perhaps the worst burden we ever bear is the burden of our own selfish desires ... the grudges we hold against other people ... the daily routines we have to go through day by day (whether we like them or not). Yet burdens born in the right spirit have a way of building character and making us strong and sufficient as we face the problems in life. Burdens can and often do teach us great lessons. Many a person has had his life made over because he had to bear certain burdens.

Bearing our burdens, helping others bear their burdens ... isn't character made out of such experiences? ...

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Funerals — A Time to Unite?

Children grow up and move away. Friends are transferred out-of-state. You stay in touch by letters and phone calls but it's not the same as being together.

Funerals do bring family and friends together . . . a time to gather and unite.

We should not think only of the funeral as being sad. It's truly a time to unite and celebrate the love we shared for the deceased. It becomes a time to support the friends we love as they struggle with their sorrow and grief.

TARA DONOVAN, 17, of Quincy, is all smiles after being crowned Miss Quincy Bay 1990 at the annual pageant last Friday. The winning announcement was made inside Quincy Center Plaza after rain forced the pageant ending indoors.

Tara Donovan Will Also Help Fight Against Drugs

Miss Quincy Bay Plans Career In Nursing

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Tara Donovan, Miss Quincy Bay of 1990, could probably do well in the field of modeling, but she prefers a career in nursing.

And, the $1,000 Quincy Junior College scholarship she won as one of her many prizes will help her reach that goal.

Meanwhile, she has already accepted an invitation to help fight drug abuse among youngsters.

The pretty 17-year-old, blue-eyed blond was crowned Miss Quincy Bay at Friday night's pageant at Quincy Center Plaza.

The actual crowning took place inside when rain interrupted and then forced the climax inside.

Donovan, who will be a senior at North Quincy High School in the fall, edged her long-time friend, Patrice Dykens, 16, of Squantum, who was selected as first-runner up.

Dykens was also chosen as Most Photogenic by Glenn Caterer and Bill Fitzgerald of Photo Quick of Quincy, the official pageant photographers.

For Donovan it was literally a dream come true.

"I had a dream the night before the pageant that Patrice and I were the final two. But I woke up before they called the winner," Donovan said.

"I was so happy for Patrice," Donovan said. "I was so glad to see that she won Most Photogenic, which I won last year. I was just so glad to see it was her."

Other finalists included Kelli Beatrice, 17, of Weymouth, second runner-up; Tara Bolstad, 19, of Quincy, third runner-up; and Loretta Bonfiglioli, 16, of Braintree, fourth runner-up.

The interview portion of the contest resumed inside but, unfortunately, the majority of the nearly 1,000 spectators missed the end.

"Being inside, the TV camera was right in our face and it was really nerve wracking," Donovan said. However, she maintained her poise during the interview period which helped vault her to victory.

The finalists were asked by emcee Bernie Reisberg what cause they would support if chosen Miss QBRW 1990.

Donovan said she would support the cause of drug and alcohol abuse prevention. Shortly after the pageant she was asked to be a spokesman for D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education). This fall she will speak to middle and elementary school groups on behalf of D.A.R.E.

Donovan's official responsibilities will include visiting the host yacht clubs during Quincy Bay Race Week and riding in the annual Quincy Christmas Parade.

She also said she will join the SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) chapter at NQHS and a new committee against drug abuse which is being formed at the high school.

"I see people at school — good kids — who are throwing their lives away through drinking and drugs. They are worthwhile people and I don't want to see them turn into nobodys."

This year's field of 18 contestants was down from 30 last year but Donovan said it was better from a participant's point of view.

"All the girls were really friendly and helped each other. There were less people this year so we got to know each other better and became even more friendly," Donovan said.

Donovan prepared for the contest by practicing her public speaking and walking. She also exercised and got a lot of sleep before the pageant. Her parents and her boyfriend helped her prepare.

Donovan had some experience. She was named Miss Photogenic in her first try last year and won the Miss Teen Eastern Massachusetts Pageant a few months ago. That victory qualified her for the national pageant but Donovan passed up the chance so she could enter the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant.

Donovan also put a lot of effort into selecting a swimsuit and evening gown for the pageant.

"I tried on 32 gowns in one day," she laughed.

In the end it paid off though. Donovan said she was extremely nervous as Reisberg began to read the results.

"Another Tara, (Tara Bolstad) was called as third runner up and I thought it was me. It was really nerve wracking, my hands and knees were shaking. My parents were shaking too. I think they were more nervous than I was," Donovan said.

"Pam Hall (Miss QBRW 1989) helped me with everything," Donovan said. "She helped all the girls with our dresses and hair. She kept us calm. She was just great."

Donovan also said she was grateful to the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Quincy Bay

Race Week Association, her parents, friends, boyfriend and Chairwoman Beth Ann Streng, Eileen Cohen and Reisberg of the pageant committee.

Dinosaur Program At Merrymount School

Kathleen Fitzpatrick's second grade class at the Merrymount School recently held their annual dinosaur program, a multidisciplinary program involving all areas of the curriculum, as well as anthropology.

In recognition of their hard work and achievement, the children were granted diplomas by retiring school principal Gerald Gowen.

To complement the academic aspect of the program, a dinosaur luncheon consisting of foods named after prehistoric beasts was served.

The Sterling Middle School Players, who had performed at Merrymount earlier in the year and have remained pen pals with the second graders, dined with the children.

Balzano Hits Tax Hike

Judy Balzano, Republican candidate for state representative, calls the recently enacted $3.1 billion state tax hike "a devastating blow to taxpayers, business, and the entire Massachusetts economy."

"Since every Republican voted against this tax package, the blame goes 100% to the Democrats," she said. "For years they've tried to control and tax us from the cradle to the grave, and they've finally succeeded. Their sales tax on services now extends from bronzing baby shoes to the upkeep on cemetery plots. They even plan to tax us for 'rehabbing' though no one seems to know what that is."

"The Democratic party has a socialist mentality bent on redistributing the wealth. To build their perfect society they will rob us working people of our last dime; drain us of our last drop of blood."

"We do have two ways to fight them however. On Nov. 6 we can vote out all Democrat incumbents, and at the same time we can vote yes on ballot question number three, the CLT referendum which will roll back all the taxes, fees and fines that have been loaded on our backs. It is time for the people to fight back."

DROWNING

If you are on the scene when someone is in trouble in the water, here are some things you should know. Because a diving accident may result in head and spinal cord injuries, use extreme care in rescuing a victim. If this type of injury is suspected and the victim is floating face down, turn him over with the least amount of movement, always keeping the head and neck supported and level with the back. Do not remove the victim from the water. Keep him floating on his back until professional help arrives. He will need to be immobilized with a backboard or other rigid support before being moved from the water. If no injury is suspected, but the victim is not breathing, establish an airway and begin rescue breathing even before removing the victim from the water. Begin CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) if the pulse is absent.

For more information about today's column, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550, or visit us at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Hours are by appointment. Deborah Clain Leaving Beechwood For New Job

Deborah R. Clain, Executive Director of the Beechwood Community Life Center, has resigned from the position she has held for the past year in order to take another job which, she says, she "could not refuse."

Her last day at the Beechwood Community Center will be Friday of this week.

The Center researches

Clain said the offer "came up very unexpectedly and quickly," and that she couldn't refuse it.

Clain has a degree in international relations and worked for Oxfam America for four years prior to coming to the Beechwood Center.

"I'm sad to be leaving," she said. "I've made a lot of good friends here and I think I've accomplished a lot over the past year...but this is an offer I had to take."

Morrisette Moves Into State Tourney

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, which finished in a tie with Braintree for first place in Zone 6 with an 18-4 record, eliminated Milton in two straight games in the playoffs for qualify for the state tournament.

Morrisette will open tournament play tonight (Thursday) against the Zone 10-A winner. At press time the opponent had not been decided. The state championship finals this year will be played at Braintree. Braintree is the defending state champion.

In the first playoff game Morrisette walloped Milton, 9-1, behind the three-hit pitching of Erik DeBoer, who struck out nine and walked two and gave up one unearned run. DeBoer's record is 5-3, he has two saves, has a league-leading 88 strikeouts and an impressive 1.07 earned run average.

DeBoer helped his own cause with a double and single and two RBI.

Morrisette put the game away with five runs in the second inning, scoring all its runs after two were out.

Tom Balzano led off with a single and, after two strikeouts, Mark Kelleher and Pat Clifford walked and Balzano scored on a wild pitch. With runners on second and third, Jimmy Glynn singled home both runs. Glynn took second on the throw to the plate, Tony Anderlonis drove Glynn home and went to second on an outfield error. DeBoer singled in Anderlonis.

Brian Taylor had two hits and an RBI and Mike Baylis had a pinch single.

Morrisette played errorless ball and got sparkling plays from Kelleher, Kevin MacDougall and Jeff Calvert.

After its sparkling defensive play in the opener, Morrisette went to Milton Monday night and committed five errors to keep Milton in the game before Morrisette won, 7-5.

MacDougall pitched the entire game to improve to 6-0, had hop hits and errors keeping him in trouble.

Morrisette hit the ball hard against three pitchers, having 11 hits, six for extra bases. DeBoer had a double and a single, Taylor a double and single and three RBI, Glynn two singles and two RBI, Balzano a triple and single, Kelleher a long homer into the tennis courts and Clifford and Calvert doubles.

Morrisette finished the regular season last Friday with a 12-1 romp over Dorchester with 15-year-old Sean Donovan starting and picking up his second win. Bill Warren and Liam Higgins also got in some work.

DeBoer had a triple and single and two RBI, MacDougall a double and single and two RBI, Anderlonis two hits and an RBI, Taylor a double and Higgins, Baylis and Calvert singles.

Earlier in the week Morrisette defeated Quincy, 3-1, with MacDougall the winning pitcher, giving up five hits, striking out six and walking two. Peter McLoughlin pitched well for Quincy.

DeBoer had a home run and single and two RBI, MacDougall an infield hit driving in a run and Balzano, Calvert, Clifford and Danny Ryan singles.

"VETS DAY," 30th Annual Outing for Disabled Veterans by Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club, was enjoyed by (seated) Veterans Ernie Barrett, Joe Callahan and Joe Sullivan, with Mike Ashe, VA therapist, and (standing) "volunteers" Leo Kelly, Senator Paul Harold and John "Jake" Comer, past National Commander of the American Legion.

Harvey's Hosts Over 250 At 30th 'Vets' Day

Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club noted the 30th anniversary of its annual "Vets Day" with more than 250 persons attending a dinner at the Quincy Yacht Club, following a day on the water.

Disabled veterans and attendees came from Brockton, Bedford, West Roxbury and Jamaica Plain VA Hospitals and Chelsea Soldiers' Home for a day of fishing and an outing on 16 boats of the Boston Lobster Fisherman and private owners.

Few flounder were caught but plenty of skates were reeled in and thrown back. Most of the 160 club members were on hand to help with loading and unloading, and the Salvation Army met the groups with coffee and doughnuts.

John J. "Jake" Comer, past National Commander of the American Legion, gave the blessing of the meal.

There were no speeches, but present to talk with the veterans were Mayor James Sheets and former Mayor Francis MacCauley; Sen. Paul Harold, councillors Peter Kolson and Michael Cheney and former councillor Leo J. Kelly.

Fred Wilson, president of Harvey's, received an ovation as chairman of the event.

Funds for the outing were raised by two large flea markets conducted by the club, many donations from merchants and individuals over the past year.

Babe Ruth

6 Teams In Playoffs

The Quincy Babe Ruth League playoffs get under way tonight (Thursday) with the top six teams playing in a double elimination tournament.

Quincy Police, seeded number one, and Barry's Deli, number two, received first round byes.

Quincy Firemen are seeded third, Houghs Neck Legion fourth, Quincy Elks fifth and Granite City Electric sixth.

Tonight the Firemen meet Granite City at 5:15 at Adams Field, and Houghs Neck faces the Elks at 5:15 at Merrymount Park.

Friday it will be Police vs. Firemen-Granite City winner at 5:15 at Adams and Barry's vs. the Houghs Neck-Elks winner at 5:15 at Merrymount.

Saturday the Firemen-Granite City loser will face the Houghs Neck-Elks loser at 10 a.m. at Merrymount.

Sunday the Police-Firemen-Granite City loser will take on the Barry's-Houghs Neck-Elks loser at 10 at Adams.

Barry's Deli won the American League title for the first time in history with a 17-4-1 record after finishing second last season.

Barry's success has come from a combination of fine pitching, hitting and defense. Dave Raftery, Mike Connors, Danny Duncan, Jeff Craig, Derek Thompson, Jeff Tirrell and Ron McGann all have contributed heavily. The defense has been strong, the team playing nine errorless games. Chris Murphy, who has played several positions, has not committed an error.

The rookies played a big part in the team's success with Kenny Ledwak, Charlie Hardiman, McGann, Jimmy Goldrich and Sean Kennerson playing well.

Barry's defeated Bryan VFW Post, 5-3, in its final game of the regular season with Duncan the winning pitcher, striking out 13, walking four and allowing only six hits, three to George Wirtz and three to Tom Nutley.

Murphy, Goldrich, Ledwak, McGann and Hardiman played strong defense. Connors had two hits and Duncan, Craig, Raftery, Tirrell and Kennerson one each.

The players and coaches thank the Tirrell family for its support and for hosting a cookout and pool party.

Bill Kennerson was selected the MVP for coaches and parents and Joe McCarthy and Sean Tirrell were named the players' co-MVPs.

Granite City Electric defeated Bryan Post, 9-6, to capture the final playoff spot.

Granite City rode the strong right arm of 13-year-old Bob Verney, who scattered 10 hits, struck out eight and walked five in winning his seventh game.

Robbie Kane pitched well for Bryan Post, giving up 10 hits, striking out 10 and walking only two.

Mike MacDougall led Granite City's attack with three hits. He also made two fine catches in center field to prevent runs from scoring. Brian Jenette had two singles and two stolen bases, Verney a single and double, Kevin Boylen a long triple and Robbie Guarnieri and Scott Wysocki singles. Wysocki twice cut down runners at the plate.

Defensively shortstop Justin Ackerman, first baseman Dan Burke and outfielders Erik MacFarlane and Steve Tangney played well.

Bryan Post, trailing, 8-1, after five innings, fought back with five runs in the sixth to put the outcome in doubt. Hard-hitting Todd Portesi's triple with the bases loaded was the big blow. He also had a single. Kane had two hits and Wirtz, Nutley, Bill Morrissey, Sean Skahan, Terry Sheehan and Richard Gorman all had hits. Mike Koski, Bobby Shaw and Dan Donahue played well for Bryan.

Five Bryan players, Kane, Nutley, Portesi, Sheehan and Phil Bell, all of whom played key roles in winning last year's Babe Ruth title, closed out their Babe Ruth careers.

Tickets On Sale For Koch MDA Softball Doubleheader

Tickets are on sale for the third annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader to be played Thursday, Aug. 2 at Adams Field, off Southern Artery, Quincy.

At 6:30 p.m., the Quincy Police Department will battle the Quincy Fire Department. The fire squad will be trying to put out a red-hot police team which has won the last five contests. Last year the police won, 21-4.

In the nightcap, the City Officials will slug it out against the News Media All-Stars starting at 8 p.m. Last year, the City Officials won a thrilling, come-from-behind victory, 21-15.

This rivalry has seen-sawed throughout the series with the City Officials now holding a slim edge in games won, 7-6. This year, the News Media will be trying to snap a two-game losing streak and tie up the series.

Tickets are $2 each and include admission to both games and entry into a prize drawing. Among the prizes are two pairs of Red Sox tickets, a baseball glove donated by Colman's Sporting Goods of Quincy, a free carpet cleaning for one house or apartment by Advance Carpet systems, gift certificates, tee-shirts and other items.

One pair of Red Sox tickets is for the Sunday, Aug. 19th game against the California Angels. The seats, donated by businessman Peter O'Connell, are for the 600 Club, the new enclosed luxury section behind home plate.

The other pair, donated by The Quincy Sun, is for the Monday, Sept. 3 game against the World Champion Oakland Athletics.

All proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Tickets for the twinbill and drawing are available at the Mayor's Office at City Hall; The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St.; radio station WJDA, 29 Brackett St.; Quincy Community Television, 81 School St.; and the Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Dr.

Tickets for the game-drawing will also be sold at the Adams Field gate before the doubleheader.

Co-chairmen of the event are Thomas Koch, executive secretary for Mayor James A. Sheets, and Robert Bosworth, editor of The Sun.

This is the 14th year for the doubleheader. Three years ago, the game was renamed and dedicated to the memory of Richard J. Koch Sr. who organized the special event.

Mr. Koch, who served with Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Labor Day Telethon Committee, died in August, 1987.

To date, the committee has raised more than $1 million in the fight against muscular diseases.

In 14 years, the doubleheader has raised $18,300, including $1,800 last year.

For the third straight year, Continental Cablevision of Quincy, Channel 3, will set up a broadcasting booth at Adams Field. The broadcast, to include play-by-play announcers and on-air guests, will be aired after the game Thursday night on a tape delay.

Rain date is Thursday, Aug. 9.

City officials expected to play include Mayor James Sheets, Ray Cattaneo, Richard Meade, Dana Childs, Tom Burke, Helene Walls, Kevin Shea, Jeff Brids, Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie, Helen Murphy, Frank Santoro, Ron Mariano, Jane Powers, Peter Kolson, Tim Cahill, Chuck Phelan, Mike Shaheen, Robert Lafleur, David Kinnecom, and Thomas Koch.

The News Media roster includes John Nicholson, Mike Benjamin, Bill Coleman and Art LaBelle, all of WJDA; Bill Ketter, Katy Corneil, Mark Knowlton and Jason Seiken from the Patriot Ledger; Ed Fidler of Quincy Community Television; and Steve Kavanagh, Ben Harrison and Bob Bosworth of The Quincy Sun.

Lineups for the police and fire teams were unavailable at press time.

NORTH QUINCY'S Erik DeBoer, the top pitcher in the Suburban League this spring, was named to the Boston Globe all-scholastic team and was also named to the Boston Herald all-scholastic team. DeBoer struck out 82 in 58 innings, had a 1.30 ERA with only 14 walks and 21 hits allowed. He struck out 170 in 258 innings during his career. He is a two-time Suburban League all-star in baseball and basketball and will attend the U. of Connecticut in the fall on a full scholarship.

Continental Cablevision Benefit Auction Raises $4,500 For MDA

Continental Cablevision's two South Shore cable systems helped raise $4,500 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association at a recent party co-sponsored with Barrett Family Restaurants at the Ocean Terrace in Marina Bay.

The event, featuring former Boston Celtics star and SportsChannel personality Tommy Heinsohn as auctioneer, kicked off Continental's month-long fundraising campaign for MDA's Greater Boston Chapter.

Through Aug. 10, Continental will donate $10 to MDA for every new cable customer in Quincy, Milton, Randolph, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell or Hanover. New subscribers will get installation at half price as part of the offer.

More than 200 people attended the Continental MDA party, at which some three dozen items and packages of goods or services were donated by more than 50 Greater Boston merchants and businesses. Entertainment was provided by comedian Frank Santorelli, courtesy of HBO, and local disc jockey Michael Tucker.

"We are very happy that so many people turned out and grateful for their generosity in supporting the crucial work of MDA in fighting neuro-muscular disease," said Kathy Taraschi of Continental Cablevision in Quincy, who coordinated the event with Audrey Trieschman of the company's Norwell office. "We also would like to thank the dozens of businesses which contributed auction items and other services to make this fundraiser possible."

TOMMY HEINSOHN, Boston Celtic Hall of Famer and broadcaster with SportsChannel, was guest auctioneer for a benefit auction held at the Ocean Terrace at Marina Bay. The auction, sponsored by Continental Cablevision and the Barrett Restaurants, raised approximately $5,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Items auctioned off included jewelry, weekend get-aways, gift certificates and Red Sox tickets. Helping Heinsohn take bids is Steve Farquhar, general manager of Continental Cablevision in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

"We thank Continental Cablevision, Barrett Family Restaurants and the many businesses and volunteers who made this MDA fundraiser such a big success," said Karen L. Tocchio, program coordinator for the Greater Boston chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. "It is their support, and that of the many people who attended and participated in the auction, that makes possible the comprehensive patient services and research aimed at some day wiping out muscular dystrophy."

Continental Cablevision serves more than 40,000 customers in its Quincy-Milton-Randolph cable system, and another 21,000-plus in its system serving Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell and Hanover.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Protect Your Purse

Purse-snatching is one of the most common forms of crime against women, especially in large cities.

The thief may be a boy or girl, man or woman, and it may occur in a downtown crowded area as well as on the lonely street after dark.

The purse should be held close to your side, under your arm and upside down. If a thief attempts to take your purse simply let it go and let everything fall out of it. Most thieves will not stick around to pick up your valuables.

A loosely held purse offers an open invitation to a deft thief. While shopping, DO NOT lay your purse on store counters, in shopping carts, or on the floor at the neighborhood theatre. If your purse is snatched, DO NOT STRUGGLE. Your life and safety are more valuable than the purse or contents. SCREAM for help immediately, call the police to report the theft, and don't wait until you get home to make that report.

Ladies' powder rooms, rest rooms, and lunch counters are common places where other women may try to snatch your purse.

The crime prevention booth at the Sidewalk Bazaar was busy. Over 1000 pamphlets on Neighborhood Watch, Rape Prevention and other Crime Prevention subjects were handed out. On behalf of the Quincy Police Department I would like to thank Woolworths for providing the booth for us this year.

Presidents Place Promotion Accents Future With Touch Of Historic Past

Presidents Place, the $60 million mixed-use development on the site of the former Bargain Center, is often marketed by Presidents Place Associates as a "Special Place in Historic Downtown Quincy."

During the past few weeks, Presidents Place has been a very "busy" place.

"As we enter the final weeks of construction," said Presidents Place Project Director Dan DeMarco, "the people of Quincy are getting their first chance to see our long-term vision which has now become reality."

That reality includes a beautiful 24-store retail mall called The Galleria at Presidents Place.

"We have created a vibrant 24-store Galleria centered around a three-story glass atrium that offers a unique, spacious, enclosed public space which can be the focal point of exhibits, shows, music, and food at Presidents Place," DeMarco said. "We are equipping the atrium with a custom stage and sound system to prepare for what we feel will be a very busy schedule of events. With the opening of Harvard Community Health Plan and The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank relocation to Quincy this past year, we feel Presidents Place is playing a vital role in the revitalization of downtown Quincy."

The project recently completed an elaborate promotion in July that helped commemorate the 223rd birthday of Quincy born President John Quincy Adams. During July 11-12, Presidents Place celebrated the birthday of John Quincy Adams by inviting company presidents and real estate brokers to visit Presidents Place and view the office and retail space. The event was well received by both parties. "We thought it was a tremendous opportunity to showcase our development and show company presidents that Presidents Place is up to the standards of our former United States President," DeMarco said.

"The fact that Presidents Place is located in a historic center, just steps away from the MBTA, combined with the amenities of The Galleria at Presidents Place retail mall, provides a unique opportunity for South Shore businesses," DeMarco said.

One of the first visitors at the "Presidents Day at Presidents Place" promotion was Mayor James Sheets. Presidents Place has been a big proponent of the City of Quincy, Mayor Sheets said. The development recently donated a 60-foot-long banner, with the slogan "A Cleaner, Greener Quincy—Show Pride in the City of Presidents" to help promote Mayor Sheets' city-wide clean-up program during the spring.

"Presidents Place has been a tremendous supporter to the revival of the City of Quincy," Sheets said. "We certainly appreciate everything they are doing and it is not often you find government and the private sector working so well together."

Much of the discussion during the Presidents Day promotion centered around the coming arrival of Stephen Leigh Jewelers as tenants in The Galleria at Presidents Place retail mall. Stephen Leigh Jewelers, marketed by co-owner Leon Blumberg as "America's Most Exciting Jewelry Store," is one of New England's leading sellers of fine jewelry, crystal, watches and clocks, with locations in Quincy and Hanover.

In June, the Blumberg's announced they would move from their Parkingway location in Quincy to Presidents Place, on the same site they operated a jewelry concession for more than 20 years. Since the early 1900s, the family business operated about 70 jewelry concessions in New England, Maryland, and New York, and one of those stores was located in the Bargain Center.

Today, Presidents Place stands on the old Bargain Center site and Stephen Leigh Jewelers will be joining The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank; Harvard Community Health Plan Optical Shop; Tedeschi Food Shops; Hancock News; Cafe Lazzarino, and Remington's, who have all leased space in The Galleria at Presidents Place.

"As The Galleria nears completion, I am very excited about the potential for community enjoyment of Presidents Place," DeMarco PRESIDENTS PLACE in Quincy Sq. recently celebrated the birthday of the sixth president of the United States, John Quincy Adams.

added. "We are looking forward to having the public introduced to Presidents Place through a number of grand opening events which are being planned for early this fall.

"Presidents Place is truly dedicated to living up to its billing as a special place in downtown Quincy," DeMarco said.

Dear Reader:

One of my favorite food for thought questions, "If you didn't know your age, how old would you think you are?"

Relating this to the real estate market and the economy in general, "If you hadn't read it in the papers, magazines, seen it on TV, heard it on the radio, what is the state of the economy in your home?"

There are some wonderful values out there right now. Like age, the real estate market is all a state of mind ... here's to good attitude!"

rights cases, we've gotten more civil rights injunctions in the last three years than in the entire history of the Massachusetts Civil Rights Act.

"We're going to continue our efforts to prosecute public corruption."

With the state's sagging economy, Shannon was asked whether his office can be effective in its pursuits.

"They're very costly cases but we finally got the legislature to adopt a drug forfeiture law last year," he replied.

Under the law, dealers and traffickers may now forfeit the riches of their illegal trade which will help fund drug investigations and prosecutions, and support drug education and treatment.

"We'll be able to get their 'ill-gotten gains' and give them back to the police and the prosecutors to pay for those cases," Shannon said.

MWRA Seeks Permits For Boston Harbor Cleanup Projects

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority is seeking permission from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to construct shore protection structures, excavate tunnels and outfalls under navigable waters, and place fill in wetlands for the construction of a new waste water treatment facility on Deer Island to improve water quality in Boston Harbor.

Supporting project elements include the construction of a headwork facility for preliminary treatment of sewage on Nut Island, a five-mile inter-island wastewater tunnel between Nut Island and Deer Islands, a 9.5 mile effluent outfall tunnel and diffuser from Deer Island to offshore waters, a sludge processing facility at the Quincy Fore River Staging Area (FRSA), and a residuals landfill in Walpole. Sludge processing facilities are proposed to be built at the FRSA, bringing a halt to sludge discharges to the ocean by 1991. Sludge will be transported via barge to the FRSA from both the Deer and Nut Island treatment plants for dewatering and pelletizing.

Upon completion of the Nut Island Headworks facility in 1995, generation and removal of sludge will occur only at Deer Island. The sludge will be processed into pellets about one-eighth of an inch in diameter to be sold as an effective fertilizer and soil conditioner.

A proposed deep rock Braintree-Weymouth tunnel from Nut Island to the FRSA and planned sludge lines will eliminate the need to barge sludge between Deer Island and the FRSA for processing and the barging of filtrate from the FRSA back to Deer Island for treatment starting in 1995.

The application for the federal permit was filed with the Engineers in compliance with Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act which provides for federal regulation of any work in, under or over navigable waters of the United States and Section 404 of the Clean Water Act which regulates the discharge of dredged or fill material in U.S. waters, including wetlands.

To assist in evaluating the proposed work, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than Aug. 13, 1990.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Peter Kube at the New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 424 Trapelo Rd., Waltham, MA 02254-9149.

Chamber Supports Middleboro, Plymouth Rail Restoration, Undecided On Greenbush

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has reiterated its support for the restoration of the Old Colony Rail Service on the Middleboro and Plymouth rail lines but has tabled its decision on a position on the Greenbush restoration.

At a recent meeting, a majority of the board voted to delay taking a stand on the Greenbush line until further information could be developed by the MBTA on several questions, such as upgrade crossing impacts, the impacts to business, on local traffic, commuter boats and buses, ridership projections, costs for construction, and operation and revenue in light of current state fiscal conditions.

As proposed, the Greenbush line would originate in the Greenbush area of Scituate and continue north to Cohasset and then west through Hingham, Weymouth and end in Braintree where it would merge with the Middleboro and Plymouth lines.

The Chamber made its comments at a recent MBTA public hearing in Braintree on the rail restoration project.

The business group asked that its remarks be included in the official record for the Draft Environmental Impact Statement Report.

In past years, the Chamber's board of directors has endorsed the restoration of commuter rail service on the Middleboro and Plymouth lines, and has supported the construction of a new Neponset River Bridge. The Chamber has also voiced opposition to the use of Braintree as a transfer alternative.

Forrest Cook, Jr. president of South Shore Bank and this year's Chamber president, said, "I give a lot of credit to the Old Colony Rail Task Force for examining all the ramifications of restoration on the Greenbush line. The task force has met for almost two years and has looked at many specific issues related to restoration on the Greenbush line."

The task force also agrees on several rail-related issues. They include:

- Doing nothing for the Greenbush area, rail or otherwise, is not a viable alternative to solving our long-term transportation needs.

Bar Hours Rollback On Case-By-Case Basis

in an "Adopt-a-Sidewalk" program. The mayor will ask owners to commit to keeping the sidewalks in front of their businesses free from litter.

Sheets has asked Gillis, who is also the chairman of the city's License Board, for a list of bar, lounge, convenience store and fast-food restaurant owners. The mayor said he will then meet with the owners in small groups to discuss the vandalism and litter problems and possible solutions.

The mayor shifted his position on the roll-back after consulting with Gillis.

"John believes, in all three cases, there are people who do an excellent job (running their business) and there are very few problems. He suggested that we look at only those establishments which have had a history, a record of problems and take action on a case-by-case basis."

"I think that's a good approach," Sheets said, adding there are six to eight bars in Quincy with consistent problems.

The mayor said some action must be taken because the city's vandalism and crime problem "is becoming much more severe."

As an example, Sheets noted the two stabbings which occurred over the weekend.

One stabbing occurred outside a downtown restaurant and another happened in South Quincy. Police are continuing their investigations.

He also noted the recent destruction at the historic Hancock Cemetery where 12 headstones were broken or chipped and another eight overturned.

"I think we still have a good city. We don't have the intense problems of some of the other cities (in the state) but I certainly think it's on the upswing."

To address the vandalism and crime problems, Sheets has ordered a police crackdown in the open container law. The offense usually involves youths who are under 21 and too young to legally drink in bars.

Asked whether rolling-back the hours at certain bars would promote drinking and driving, the mayor replied, "They'll be on the roadway anyway. The point is, (bar patrons) have to be accountable and responsible."

Furthermore, the mayor does not believe cutting hours at certain bars will hurt business. In fact, he believes the roll-back could lead to a safer, more secure atmosphere in the city's business districts. That, in turn, could attract more businesses here, he added.

As for the litter problem, Sheets said, "I think we're close to getting a real handle on it."

"The fast-food litter problem will be resolved without cutting back hours if they cooperate. If they don't, we'll cut them back."

Barring a change in the city ordinance, Sheets can make recommendations about closing times to the license board. Gillis and the board would then decide what action to take.

Sheets met with two presidential aides, Ronald Kaufman, deputy director of Personnel; and Andrew Card, assistant to Chief of Staff John Sununu.

The others met with Senator Ted Kennedy and Congressman Donnelly.

Two weeks later, Sheets, Meade and Cahill returned to the nation's capital to meet with Connie Harriman, undersecretary for the Department of the Interior's Fish, Wildlife and Parks division.

Sheets thanked everyone who helped this effort. He singled out Mimi Brody, legislative assistant to Sen.

Kennedy, and Donnelly, who contacted Congressmen Silvio Conte and Sidney Yates.

Conte is the ranking member of the House Ways and Means Committee and Yates is chairman of the House Subcommittee for the Interior.

In addition, the mayor praised Kaufman who also contacted Conte as well as Harriman.

Sheets also said O'Connell, his opponent in last fall's mayoral run-off, "was very helpful in dealing with Senator Kennedy's office."

"(Peter) was a key contact," the mayor added.

HAVE YOU HEARD

by Stephen Tobias

Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

IN RECOGNITION OF A PROBLEM

Hearing impaired persons may be able to derive great benefit from hearing aids. However, unless they are willing to accept the idea of their hearing loss, they are one step away from ever finding out if their quality of life might be improved by a hearing aid. The National Hearing Aid Society estimates that nearly 21 million Americans are deaf or hearing impaired. Of these, it is believed that 80 to 85 percent can be helped by a hearing aid. However, only 4 million people are wearing hearing aids. Judging by these figures, about 13 million Americans are depriving themselves of the potential for better hearing because they do not recognize that they have a hearing problem. It is hoped that this column and other informative sources will turn this situation around.

If you know someone who needs to see a hearing specialist take him/her by the hand and bring that person to STEPHEN TOBIAS HEARING CENTER. Our staff will make you feel at ease and explain fully what is important about a hearing aid and how the stigma of wearing one has greatly diminished. When you can feel relaxed talking about your problem you can deal with the entire situation more rationally. Let us help you by coming in to 488 Quincy Ave. Call 770-3395 for an appt.

Local Aid Loss Fallout: Rehiring Unlikely, More Layoffs Loom

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With the city slated to lose $1.5 million in local aid this fiscal year, Mayor James Sheets said it is unlikely 47 laid-off workers will be rehired and its possible more employees will be cut from the payroll next year.

On Friday, the state legislature voted to reduce local aid by four percent to balance the state budget. With the governor expected to approve the measure, Quincy's local aid will drop from $35,535,759 to $34,100,000.

On Tuesday, Sheets called the legislature's action "the worst news of my administration" because it's really the first time the legislature has in itself cut local aid.

"It indicates, in the future, local aid will be an area that they will cut and that will be bad. We have no other sources of revenue."

"We can only go up two and a half percent (in property taxes) but that increase is basically wiped out by the lack of local aid," Sheets said.

"If we don't reach our $1.4 million projection (in new growth), we're in difficulty and that's very possible," he added.

The mayor had hoped to rehire the city's 47 laid-off workers with the $3 million in local aid which was impounded by the governor two years ago. Dukakis was ordered to release the aid and the city received the money on Friday, Sheets noted.

However, the $1.5 million loss in local aid and $1.5 million in delinquent tax revenue wipes out the $3 million in released aid.

"The city will lose four percent or $1.5 million in local aid in fiscal 1991. If you couple that with the fact that the city has $1.5 million in delinquent taxes, we really have wiped out the $3 million we're getting from impounded local aid money."

"At this point," Sheets continued, "it does not appear we can bring anyone back."

The mayor said preliminary budget information shows "it would be very difficult to bring anyone back."

The 47 laid-off workers represent 18 fire department positions, 13 police positions and 17 from the school system, mostly teachers.

Because of the $3 million in released aid, Sheets said the city will be stable this fiscal year.

However, next year, the city will be $1.5 million down in revenue. That, the mayor noted, "increases the probability of additional cuts next year."

"If the cost of health premiums continue to rise and we have an additional two million dollars in that area, along with the other fixed costs included, we could be in the position that we'll have additional layoffs."

Downtown Issue

Merchants Oppose Left Turn Ban Off Hancock St.

A group of local businessmen is trying to modify a traffic proposal in Quincy Square but Mayor James Sheets is undecided.

At issue is a plan to prevent a left turn from Hancock St. onto Chestnut St. from the north. The proposal is part of the Quincy Center traffic improvement project now underway.

Merchants in the area of Chestnut, Hancock and Maple Sts. oppose the plan, saying it will cut them off from their customers and hurt business.

In today's struggling economy, some merchants fear the left-turn ban will drive them out of business.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he will make a decision next week. He appears to be leaning in favor of the left-turn ban.

"If we're really going to get through the reconstruction and redevelopment of Downtown Quincy, there are going to be some inconveniences and some changes."

"The city, through the planning department, will meet on a relatively regular basis with the storeowners in the downtown area to make sure they are kept informed about the downtown," Sheets said.

"We all want to improve downtown, but it's not going to be painless," he added.

Sheets said he sympathizes and understands the merchants concerns. However, he also said he believes business would not be impacted by the no-left turn.

Chestnut and Maple St. while others could use Hancock St. to Cottage Ave. to Chestnut St.

"I really feel the people who do business with them will continue to do business with them," Sheets said, referring to the merchants in the area.

However, Councillor Tim Cahill, who owns Handshakes Cafe on Hancock St., disagrees.

"If anything that has to do with downtown revitalization puts people out of business or seriously affects business then I think we're going in the wrong direction," Cahill said.

The no-left turn issue was discussed by members of the Sheets administration and merchants Monday morning.

Attending were Thomas Koch, executive secretary for Mayor Sheets; Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom, Planner Kevin Shea, Cahill, and other merchants. They are: Bob Barker, owner of Quincy Typewriter on Maple St.; Thomas Laitinen, owner of TAJ Coin and Stamp Co.

on Maple St.; Russell Afssa, owner of Hair Place I and II, corner of Chestnut and Maple Sts.; and Malcolm Levine of Fine Stock Company on Hancock St.

At the meeting, merchants asked for the left-turn to remain legal while the administration explained why the no-left turn was proposed.

According to Kinnecom, the no left-turn is designed to eliminate confusion at the Hancock-Granite Sts. intersection.

"Making that intersection more standardized will make the area safer for motorists and pedestrians," he said.

To prevent left turns from Hancock onto Chestnut St., Christmas Island would be extended some 200 feet and end just prior to the Hancock-Granite Sts. intersection.

If the plan is modified to allow left turns, Kinnecom said the island would not extend as far. However, he said the left-turn would create four points of conflict at the

Public Hearing Aug. 7 On Hazardous Waste Incinerator

Quincy residents concerned about a proposed hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree near the Quincy line are urged to attend a public hearing Tuesday, Aug. 7 at the Broad Meadows Middle School.

The hearing will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. and again from 7 to 10 p.m.

The hearing regarding the proposal by Clean Harbors,

Inc. will be conducted by the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Residents will be able to respond to five topics allowed under the test of site suitability.

They are: transportation, buffer zones, population density, proximity to sensitive receptors such as schools, nursing homes, elder housing facilities and hospitals and the method of evacuation.

Bernice Mader, administrative assistant for Mayor James A. Sheets and a staunch opponent of the incinerator plan, said the site suitability is the crucial issue.

"If we're really going to stop it, this site suitability is really the crucial issue," Mader said.

The Sept. 1 date is "a self-imposed deadline," he noted. Falco and Mullen are the two contenders to become the city's next police chief. Falco was the top scorer in a Civil Service examination and Mullen finished second.

In the interim, Capt. Paul

Nestor is the city's acting police chief.

School Committee To Hold Separate Meetings On QJC

The Quincy School Committee has approved a proposal by Committeeman Stephen Durkin to hold separate school committee meetings for Quincy Junior College issues.

Durkin's proposal was originally made June 6 and was adopted at last week's meeting.

The policy calls for six additional meetings during the calendar year.

The School Committee adopted the policy in light of a developing trend toward unusually lengthy committee meetings with agenda filled with numerous QJC issues. In addition to setting policy for the public schools, the Committee serves as the governing board of QJC.

The new policy comes at a time when QJC President O. Clayton Johnson and others are arguing for changes in the governance structure at the college. Some observers see the new School Committee policy as representing one further step in distancing the college from the public school system.

Currently, President Johnson reports directly to School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, who serves as secretary of the School Committee. Dr. Johnson has indicated he would rather report directly to the School Committee, a step that would weaken the college's connection to the school system.

At the July 25th committee meeting, Durkin said, "During the past School Committee has dealt with an inordinate amount of Junior College issues at the expense of public school K-12 issues. The number of college issues the committee has been required to deal with has reached the point of being ridiculous," Durkin said.

"We could have a three-day retreat each month and still not deal with all of the issues coming out of the college," he added.

"School Committee members are elected primarily to deal with Quincy public school pre-school to grade 12 issues," Durkin continued. In addition to setting policy for the Junior College.

He argued that "under the present format of mixed agenda meetings the committee cannot do justice to both obligations."

Durkin and fellow committee member Mary Collins pointed out that the committee often meets from 6:30 p.m. to after 11 p.m. with half the agenda often consisting of QJC concerns.

Durkin proposed the new policy in response to concerns expressed by the City-Wide Parents Council as well as individual parents and teachers who often must wait until very late in the evening at committee meetings before the committee reaches the issues of concern to them.

The new policy was adopted by a 4-2 vote with Durkin, Collins, Mayor James A. Sheets and Frank Santoro supporting the measure.

Ron Mariano and Mary Jane Powers opposed.

Golden Readies Suit If MWRA Rates Are Not Lowered

Sen. William B. Golden (D-Weymouth) has begun legal proceedings against the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) because of unfairly high water rates paid by thousands of average families.

Golden, who filed the original lawsuit to clean up Boston Harbor in 1982, as Quincy city solicitor, said the MWRA's rates are anti-environment, illegal, and unfair to thousands of average people in Massachusetts.

In announcing that he will file a lawsuit in 60 days unless polluters' rates are hiked and consumers' rates are lowered. Golden was joined at a recent Boston press conference by Irene Gillis of Brookline, whose water bills have doubled over the past year, and Gary Cohen, executive director of the National Toxics Campaign.

"In 1982, we filed a lawsuit to save the harbor and save the bay. Today, we're beginning another lawsuit to save the ratepayers," Golden said.

"Why on earth should polluters pay the same rate for water as average families when they are doing all of the damage to our environment?

The National Toxics Campaign and Golden announced last February that water rates were illegal and called upon the MWRA to change its billing structure. According to the Toxics Campaign, the average family of four now paying $250 to $300 a year, will be charged over $1,200 annually by the year 2000 under the current rate plan.

"This system does not encourage the reduction of toxics in our water," Golden said. He added the current rates are based on volume and not toxic content, and said that there is no correlation between the cost of treatment and the rates.

"Thousands of middle class families in the Greater Boston area want to see the harbor get cleaned up. But we are going to lose their vital support if we don't start showing some common sense in the way we bill them," Golden said.

Merchants Oppose Left Turn Ban

intersection in front of South Shore Bank.

"The no left turn simplifies the intersection and flow of traffic, which makes it much more efficient," Kinnecom said.

Laitinen asked Kinnecom whether a green arrow time at 15 or 20 second intervals could solve the traffic problem and still allow left turns onto Chestnut St. To do that, Kinnecom replied, traffic would have to be stopped at the intersection and that would be more confusing.

The proposal also calls for three lanes of traffic on Hancock St. southbound from United First Parish Church to Granite St.

The far right lane will be right only onto Granite St. and the far left will be straight through on Hancock St.

Kinnecom said the direction of the middle lane has not been finalized yet but it could be a right turn only or a right-turn and straight lane. Some 15 parking spaces are also planned for the right side of Chestnut St. leading up to Hancock St.

Newspapers, Plastics, Glass To Be Separated City Starts Expanded Recycling On Aug. 6

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
With Quincy's expanded recycling program set to begin Monday, Aug. 6, city officials emphasize the key to success will be participation by residents.

At a City Hall press conference last week, officials from Quincy and Browning-Ferris Industries kicked-off the voluntary program which is the largest BFI operates in Massachusetts.

Beginning Aug. 6, 31,000 residents will be asked to separate newspapers, plastics and glass from their regular trash and place them in a plastic bin. The blue and white bins should be put out the same day as rubbish collection by 7 a.m., rain or shine.

Each week, BFI will use four trucks made by Cann called curb sorters throughout the city. The white trucks, valued at $65,000 each, will allow residents to place all recyclable items in the same blue container.

The driver will then sort them at the curb and leave the bin behind to be reused. BFI is distributing a bin to every household and to apartment owners up to four units per building.

On hand for the kick off were Mayor James Sheets, DPW Commissioner David Colton, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and the chief executive officer of BFI, William Ruckelshaus. About 100 other officials and residents also attended.

Officials agree the program will save the city thousands of dollars and help the environment if residents participate.

"Our community, like thousands of others across America, is out of sanitary landfill space," Sheets said. "Society as a whole is consuming valuable natural resources, some of which are non-renewable," the mayor said.

Sheets, who called recycling a key environmental issue for the 1990s, commended his predecessor, Mayor Francis McCauley, for allocating $249,000 to start the first recycling program in Quincy. In May, 1989, the city and BFI began a bi-weekly collection of newspapers.

In one year, 3,038 tons of paper were collected, saving the city $200,000 in waste disposal costs, said Michael Wheelwright, a city planner and member of the recycling committee.

"For a program that isn't mandatory, I was pretty pleased with the results," Wheelwright said. With more volunteers creating more awareness combined with a less-confusing weekly program, Wheelwright said the participation rate will likely increase.

"I know we can do a lot better," he added.

With the new program, officials hope 6,000 tons are recycled, thereby reducing the amount of waste going to a landfill in East Bridgewater by 15 percent.

When Sheets took over in January, he considered expanding the recycling program. After several months of negotiations, the city and BFI agreed to expand the program to a weekly collection of newspapers, plastics and glass for the same cost as the bi-weekly collection of newspaper: $249,000.

In addition, BFI agreed to spend $260,000 on four new curb sorter trucks. In the fall, the company will also collect and transport leaves to the city's composting facility behind the Department of Public Works building at 55 Sea St.

Sheets, who was a member of the Recycling Committee when he was a Ward 4 councillor, called the city's new program a model for the rest of the state.

"I think it's one of the best in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and we believe the City of Quincy is going to be a model for other cities in the commonwealth to follow," the mayor said.

Ruckelshaus, appointed the first administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency in 1973 and the fifth EPA administrator in 1983, said the city's program is a "forerunner" of future recycling programs.

"It clearly is a forerunner of what is going to be happening in this next decade. We're going to see an awful lot more reduction of waste by recycling of waste.

"We're still going to need facilities to ultimately dispose of it but this is going to be a very large part of our lives in the future," he said.

With the program now in place, citizen participation is needed to make it work, officials emphasized.

"The infrastructure has been put in place. The leadership has been taken by the mayor and the city council and I think it's now up to the citizens to respond and show how much they're willing to change their own lifestyles, albeit very slightly, simply by remembering where to put these materials which can be recycled and carried out to the curb," Ruckelshaus said.

"The city should feel very good about participating. It will make this a cleaner city and in the long run, save everybody money," he added.

"We're proud of it," Sheets said. "I'm convinced the citizens of this city are going to get behind it 100 percent and they're going to make it an even greater success than it has been."

Kolson a member of the Recycling Committee agreed.

"It's now up to the citizens of Quincy to participate and get into the program. We've done all we can do. And I know that the citizens are going to participate."

Kolson, who commended Sheets and Recycling Committee chairman Lawrence Chretien for their leadership, added, "Today is sort of the summit of our achievements."

Other members of the committee are: Colton, Linda Stice, Jane Sullivan, Joan Pierce, Tracy Lang, Suzanne Norton, Jean Mackey and Dan Corbin.

Many volunteers have also assisted. At a recent meeting, 38 volunteers agreed to erect recycling awareness signs, be block wardens and distribute leaflets.

Others have helped answer phones and mailings.

QJC's New Name: Quincy College

Students at Quincy Junior College will have to attend another school this fall—sort of.

On Tuesday, the State Senate approved a bill which changes the name of QJC to simply, "Quincy College."

The bill, which was sponsored by Quincy's three state representatives, Michael Morrissey, Steve Tobin and Robert Cerasoli, passed the Senate on a voice vote Tuesday, said Senator Paul Harold (D-Quincy).

The bill was expected to be signed by Gov. Michael Dukakis "within the next few days," Harold said.

The college was established by the legislature in 1957. As a result, the name change had to be approved by the legislature, Harold pointed out.

The college will still offer associate degrees but Harold said the new name will help the school's promotion efforts.

The name change was requested by the Quincy School Committee and the college's governing board.

Harold said the name change is consistent with other name changes throughout the state.

Last year, the City Council approved a request by hospital administrators to change the name of Quincy City Hospital to "Quincy Hospital."

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT

That was the title of a popular song of some decades ago, but nowadays that seems to be the theme song of injured parties who have no compunction to sue, whether it be for real or imagined grievances. For this reason, everyone, especially those with considerable assets, needs a low cost Excess Liability Insurance Policy to cover their personal everyday activities.

Whether or not you're held personally responsible, should someone be injured on your property, or hurt accidentally (through no fault of your own, but by virtue of an action on your part) you could be sued, and a judgment returned for a million dollars!

The Excess Liability Plan is designed to provide liability protection for most personal, nonbusiness activities. This policy provides a million dollars of excess protection should someone win a judgment against you for that huge sum. Best of all, the Excess Liability Policy works along with your present insurance to provide even greater liability protection.

For professional advice on all of your insurance needs please contact the experts at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Call us at 471-8200 or stop by our office at 1080 Hancock Street in Quincy.

Roseanne, Bah!

Quincy's John (Jake) Comer has never been a fan of Roseanne Barr.

"Frankly, I could never stand her," says the past National Commander of the American Legion. "She's a slob with no class. A lousy role model for young American women."

And after what she did in San Diego last week, he'd like to have the plug pulled on her TV show.

For openers he plans to write letters to the producers of the show and to the sponsors protesting her actions as guest singer of the Star Spangled Banner before a San Diego Padres-Cincinnati Reds baseball game.

BARR

Barr had trouble with the sound system as an echo of her own voice came back on her as she sang. So she plugged her ears with her fingers and screamed her way through the rest of the national anthem as she stood before a microphone near the pitcher's mound.

This triggered a wave of loud boos from the big crowd.

When she finished, she grabbed her crotch in a gesture toward the boos and spit on the field.

"She might as well have thumbed her nose at the flag while she was at it," says Comer. "I was incensed. It was disgraceful. She shouldn't be allowed to get away with something like that."

Barr said she was only grabbing her crotch like baseball players do.

"Well, I've never seen baseball players gesture like that to fans," says Comer.

Comer says he can understand the problem of an echo in a sound system. He has had that happen to him as a speaker.

He thinks, however, that she could have faced the dilemma in a different manner.

She could have stopped, he says, and told the crowd she was having a sound system problem and invited them to "let's all sing it together."

"It would have been the lady-like and professional thing to do," Comer says. "And there would have been cheers instead of boos."

Comer, who as past National Commander of the American Legion has many speaking engagements, says he will use those occasions to remind his audience of Barr's behavior and urge boycotting her sponsor's products.

Performers like Barr, Comer says, have a bad influence on young people. Young people are looking for role models, he says, and they get someone like a Barr who projects a wise-cracking do-what-the-hell-you-want slob image.

"Khrushchev predicted the US will destroy itself from within with moral decay," reminds Comer. "Performers like Barr could prove him right."

And, he adds, "like Jane Fonda, too."

Comer resents Fonda for her trips to Vietnam during the war urging American POW's to "throw down their arms."

"And when they refused," says Comer, "our POW's became victims of atrocities."

Comer wouldn't walk across the street to see a Jane Fonda movie.

And he won't talk across the living room to turn on the "Roseanne" show.

MOST OF THE stationery used by City Hall departments is printed with black or blue ink. A tradition down through the years.

An exception is the office of City Treasurer Dana Childs whose stationery is green.

City Rehiring Unlikely, More Layoffs Loom

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"I think we're looking at a very difficult budgetary process for FY 92," Sheets said. Compounding the fiscal problem is the city is already $400,000 in deficit for FY 91

The most common first name of U.S. presidents is James.

Police Working With Kids

Quincy PAL: Helping To Break Down Barriers

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

One night approximately two years ago, a young man left his girlfriend's apartment in South Boston to drive home. As he drove, he reached an intersection and continued on because he had the right of way.

As he passed through, the man was suddenly hit by a stolen car. The car hit the man broadside, pinned him against a building, and killed him.

Police had no suspects and didn't know where to turn.

Then, a youngster who witnessed the incident came forward and told police who did it. An arrest was made and the driver was convicted of motor vehicle homicide.

Why was this crime solved while many other violent acts aren't?

The youngster was part of the Boston Police Athletic League and had come to know and respect policemen. Likewise, the police had come to know and respect him as well.

The chances of solving that crime (without the witness) would have been nil," said Robert Hanna, Quincy Police Crime Prevention officer and co-organizer of the Quincy Police Athletic League.

For the past two years, Hanna, along with Officer Robert Clark, have worked with other law enforcement officials to locate a league in Quincy.

The program is designed to help break down barriers between police and youth as well as ethnic and racial barriers between youngsters. Presently, 36 Quincy officers volunteer their time setting up and participating in various sports programs with youth.

"The objective of PAL is to work with the kids of Quincy so that they get to know us and we get to know them. We're trying to break down barriers between cops and kids as well as racial and ethnic barriers," Hanna said.

"We hope to establish athletic leagues, such as basketball and softball, so that these kids can take out their frustrations in sports instead of their neighbor's property," he added.

To help the league obtain its goals, the Quincy PAL is appealing to local businesses, organizations and residents.

A 1990 TOYOTA Celica GT is the grand prize of a drawing to benefit the Quincy Police Athletic League. Tickets are $1 each and are available at the Tent at Marina Day. Specifically, Hanna said the league has set a first-year fundraising goal of $52,000.

To date, PAL has raised $10,500 through various fundraising activities and donations. Hanna said the money will go toward purchasing a new 18-foot medium duty box truck and sports equipment for basketball, softball, street hockey and volleyball.

In addition, the league needs $15,000 for operating costs every year.

"We'd like to get $52,000 this year and get the program into full swing as soon as possible," Hanna said.

In the meantime, PAL is organizing special outings and activities at parks as well as cookouts and games. Thus far, three functions have been held and all were well-attended.

In May, 100 youth participated in a basketball shootout at the Quincy Vocational-Technical gym. Later that month, a second shootout was held at the Tent at Marina Bay for children at St. Coletta's Day School.

PAL also sponsored a bicycle rodeo in Germantown in June. The event attracted some 50 youngsters.

Throughout the rest of the summer, the league is planning other activities.

Next month, a sports day will be held at the Marina Bay Tent for special needs children at St. Coletta's, Happy Acres and Mass. Hospital. "We anticipate over 100 children," Hanna said.

Also during August on Tuesdays and Thursdays, various neighborhood youth groups will be treated to sports days at the Tent. The Quincy PAL will set up the outings through various civic organizations. PAL will transport the children to the Tent where they can play basketball, volleyball and horse shoes among other games.

At the end of the day, PAL will return the children to the civic center.

Frank Barrett, owner of the Tent, is donating free hotdogs, hamburgers and soft drinks for the youth at all the sports days.

"Mr. Barrett has been very good to us. He's a big supporter," Hanna noted.

In addition, Barrett helped obtain a 1990 Toyota Celica GT from Toyota as the grand prize for a drawing to benefit the Quincy PAL. Toyota donates only 15 cars a year. The corporation decided to donate one to the Quincy PAL after Barrett inquired about it.

Tickets are on sale now for $1 each at the entrance at the Tent. Hanna said the league hopes to raise $15,000 from the drawing.

Another local businessman pitching in is Louis DelPido, proprietor of the Baja Beach Club on the Parkway. Now through mid-September, the club is holding non-alcohol dance nights on Sundays. A portion of the admissions proceeds will go to the Quincy PAL.

Local organizations are also assisting the league. The George F. Bryan Post has donated $2,000 while the South Quincy Bocce Club, South Quincy Social Club and the Quincy Unity Club have all given $1,000 each.

Hanna said he hopes the Quincy league can duplicate the efficiency of the Boston PAL which spends 82 cents of every dollar on youth. "That's a very high return rate. We hope to equal that."

Assistance has come in other forms as well. Hanna noted the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department and Norfolk County Commissioners have donated an old van. The van will be used to transport sports equipment until the light truck is purchased.

To help the Quincy PAL, contact officer Clark or officer Hanna at the Quincy Police Station, 479-1212. Donations are tax deductible.

Besides Hanna and Clark, the Quincy PAL Board of Directors includes Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, president; Richard Coran, treasurer; Frances McGann, clerk; Mayor James Sheets; Quincy District Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin; Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall; retired Quincy Police Chief Francis Finn; Councillor Michael Cheney; Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth; Forrest R. Cook, Jr., president of South Shore Bank; William Dunn, Joseph Kintagos, Frank Barrett, John Graham, Betty Yau and Jay Cashman.

Citizens' Group Formed For Lower Water, Sewer Rates

A recently formed citizens' group calling itself The Quincy Committee to Lower Water and Sewer Rates and Clean Up Boston Harbor, meets each Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Children's Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center. During the meetings members discuss strategy and planning for ways the community can organize to lower sewer rates by having industrial polluters pay higher rates to clean up Boston Harbor.

The group, which is comprised of some 30 concerned citizens, has a steering committee of seven members.

The steering committee hopes to meet soon with Quincy representatives of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to discuss its concerns.

All meetings are open to the public. Concerned citizens are encouraged to attend.

Balzano Concerned Over Edison Plant Impact

Judith Balzano of Quincy, a candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, recently stated her concerns regarding the proposed construction of a new Boston Edison plant at the Fore River in North Weymouth near the Quincy line.

At a public hearing held by the state energy siting council, Balzano said, "I'm concerned about the proposed Edison Plant's impact on the quality of life in our community."

"I recognize the need for an increased energy supply, and I'm supportive of the opening of new power plants to provide that energy. I question, though, whether this is the proper time and the proper place for such a plant," she said.

According to news reports, the plant will have two smoke stacks, each 245 feet tall, which will emit sulphur dioxide and carbon monoxide, which are pollutants by federal definition.

"In the Fore River basin area, we are already treated to the fumes of a soap plant. We are slated to live with the pollution of the MWRA sludge plant. We expect to face the diesel fumes of Old Colony rail restoration, and we may very well be threatened with the toxic waste emissions of Clean Harbors."

"My concern is about the combined and cumulative effect of all these pollutants together. Will the addition of another plant here add to the devaluation of our homes?"

Balzano asked.

Continuing, she said, "Will the three to four million dollars Weymouth receives, which I know is badly needed, come at the expense of the health and lives of our families."

"This plant, which we are told might add another six smokestacks in the years ahead, is not being built in a vacuum. It's being built in a congested residential area already overburdened with pollution."

"I believe much more study is needed before a final decision is made, and that all these factors need to be considered."

"Until all the questions are answered, I will have serious reservations about the project," Balzano added.

Eaton Takes Campaign To Nursing Homes

Francis "Sandy" Eaton, independent candidate for state representative in the third Norfolk District, recently told 40 residents, relatives and staff of the Quincy Nursing Home of the need to build a community instead of isolation.

Eaton decried what he termed "demagoguery" in this year's election campaign with attempts to pit young against old, students against retirees.

"This nation's priorities," he said, "redirected to serving the people of this great country, could supply acute and long-term health care to all, without any talk of rationing. Education also from headstart to university could be financially available to all who qualify and need it."

Eaton stressed the need to switch from regressive taxation to progressive taxation, taxation according to the ability to pay.

"The states and cities must petition Washington for the long overdue peace dividend," he added.

Entertainment was provided by folk singer and campaign worker Jim Badger and many of the residents joined in the sing-a-long.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

They say an elephant never forgets. Maybe not. But nobody's ever said that about people. "I forgot"

- is one of the most common expressions in any language. Human memories are short, and unless you tie a string around your finger, or write yourself a note, it can sometimes be a real effort to remember. Since we're all forgetful, it should be easy to forgive another's short memory. But it's not. Yet the art of forgetting can make our lives more happy and successful ... An unknown author expresses this thought quite beautifully ...

"Be a good forgetter. Life is too short to remember that which prevents one from doing his best. 'Forgetting the things that are left behind, I press forward,' said a brave old man in the first century. Yes, the successful man forgets."

He knows the past is irrevocable. He lets the dead past bury its dead. He is running a race. He cannot afford to look behind. His eye is on the winning post. The magnanimous man forgets. He is too busy to let little things disturb him. He forgets quickly, and forgets easily. If any man does him wrong, he keeps sweet. It is only the small man who cherishes a low revenge. So, be a good forgetter. Business dictates it, and success demands it."

EARLY DIAGNOSIS

The old saying that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," has a lot of truth in it.

Preventive medicine scores dramatic advances when the emphasis is placed on preventing disease. Early diagnosis holds enormous life-saving potential. Untold numbers of people die unnecessarily today. This does not happen because they have a disease for which there is no known treatment. Instead, they did not visit a doctor for investigation and treatment soon enough. Fifty years ago, most deaths occurred because no effective treatment was available for many serious illnesses. Under these circumstances, early diagnosis made little difference to the outcome. Today, early diagnosis can make a major difference.

New Computer Software For Residential Real Estate Valuation

The Quincy assessors office has commenced using new computer software for residential real estate valuation.

This will replace the computer software system that they have been using since 1972.

The new system was developed and written entirely by the City data processing staff. The largest system written by the 'in-house' staff, it has required two man-years to write according to Robert Brennan, Director of Data Processing.

Incorporated into the new system has been the latest computer technology—shared data bases, on-line help, and enhanced graphics for building footage calculations.

According to Assessors Chairman Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund, the old system had served the office well but it was becoming impossible to obtain technical support personnel to incorporate new requirements, such as condos, multiple garages, new construction materials, etc.

The Board asked the data processing department to provide them with a new system that could be maintained with in-house staff and incorporate the new requirements.

A search was made for third party software but none was found to be suitable. The Massachusetts Department of Revenue has a software package to run on a 'mini' computer but is only recommended for communities with less than 10,000 real estate parcels. Quincy has 25,000. Since the data processing staff had some experience in trying to maintain the old software, the decision was made to write the new system in-house.

In addition to the above stated desired improvements the following requirements were specified.

- Eliminate the need for entering sales information twice, once to the sales data base and then again to the current data base.
- Provide for year round data entry; under the old system data could not be entered between the time the first bill was issued and the final bill was printed—usually November thru May.
- Have the data entry format appear as close as possible to the old format so 'the assessors' staff would not require extensive retraining.

• Clean up any erroneous or obsolete data in the old file before converting it to the new file.

The in-house staff of Ellen Garofalo, Principal Programmer and Dominic Venturelli, Senior Programmer had outside help only with the computer sketching of the building footprint. This help was provided by the local consulting firm of Perlmutter Associates. The new system was written and tested by July 1. The file conversion and training was completed by July 13 and the new system went 'live' July 16.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Beats Fog, Zone 10-A Champs

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, Zone 6 co-champion, enjoying its finest season since the World Series season of 1975, finally beat the fog and defeated Spartan A.C. of Brockton, Zone 10-A champion, in two straight games in the opening round of the state playoffs.

Monday night Morrisette traveled to Fall River to face the Zone 9 champs and lost a heartbreaking 10-inning 2-1 decision.

Morrisette and Fall River were scheduled to play the second game Tuesday night and a third game, if necessary, for last night (Wednesday) back at Fall River.

The winner will enter the state championship finals at Braintree with four other sectional champions beginning Friday night.

Monday night's second round game at Fall River was one of the finest of the season with outstanding pitching and brilliant defensive plays.

Kevin MacDougall pitched for Morrisette and went the farthest he has ever gone, nine full innings. After a leadoff single in the 10th he was relieved by Pat Clifford, who had seen only limited pitching action early in the season.

Clifford got two outs but, with the bases loaded and two outs, he walked in the winning run. Despite his excellent pitching, MacDougall was charged with his first loss after six wins.

Clifford struck out his first batter and the next batter flied to MacDougall in center field, who made a fine running catch. He tried to get the base runner going back to first but the throw hit the runner and he moved to second. Following an intentional pass, an infield hit filled the bases. The next batter walked to force in the winning run.

Morrisette opened the scoring with a run in the top of the first inning on doubles by Jeff Calvert and Erik DeBoer.

That was the extent of Morrisette's scoring. It had several good chances to score but left 14 base runners stranded. The Fall River pitcher fielded his position extremely well and had nine assists, starting a pitcher-to-home-to-first base double play in the sixth.

Fall River tied it in the fourth on a sacrifice fly. It had other fine chances to score but Mark Kelleher threw out a runner at the plate and Danny Ryan nailed a runner at second base.

Kelleher also momentarily saved the day in the seventh with a sparkling diving catch in left field with two runners aboard.

MacDougall was in trouble all day long but was saved by several exceptional fielding plays. Clifford at third base had several outstanding plays and shortstop Tony Anderionis at short, Calvert and Mike Baylis at second, DeBoer in center field, first baseman Tom Balzano and catcher Brian Taylor all made fine plays.

Calvert, Clifford and DeBoer had two hits each and Anderionis, and Kelleher one apiece. Balzano walked four times.

Morrisette coach Dave Perdios missed the Fall River series as he was stricken ill en route to the site and taken to Quincy City Hospital.

Manager Ray Cattaneo, who coached Morrisette for many years, came out of retirement to handle the team with assistant Tom Malvesti.

The first round series with Brockton made history as the first game was twice postponed by heavy fog that rolled in at Adams Field. It is believed to be the first time this ever happened.

"I've been watching Legion ball for 45 years and I don't remember this ever happening once, let alone twice," said longtime Morrisette athletic officer Frank Osborne.

The first night the game was called in the third inning. The game never got started the second night and the teams played a day-night double-header last Saturday.

Morrisette rolled to a 13-2 win in the day opener at Brockton behind the seven-inning, two-hit shutout pitching of ace pitcher DeBoer. Young Sean Donovan pitched the last two innings and gave up one earned run, three hits and one walk.

Morrisette put this game out of reach when it sent 12 men to bat in the eighth inning and scored eight runs on five hits, a walk and three errors.

Balzano had three hits, including two doubles, and four RBI. Clifford had three hits and two RBI. Anderionis two hits and three runs scored, Kelleher two hits and an RBI. Taylor two hits and an RBI and Calvert and MacDougall a hit each.

Anderionis had a big day at shortstop and handled eight chances flawlessly and turned two double plays.

In the night game at Adams Field the fog began to roll in again but the teams got an official game in with Morrisette winning, 8-2, with the game being called in the bottom of the fifth with Morrisette having the bases loaded with no outs.

Gary Rawdon was the Morrisette pitcher and improved his record to 6-0 as he allowed four hits, struck out three and didn't walk a batter. Both Brockton runs were unearned.

Morrisette exploded for seven runs in the second inning, the first four coming without a hit as the Brockton hurler walked six, two runs scored on passed balls and another on a wild pitch.

A run scored on a double steal and the other three came in on RBI singles by Anderionis, Balzano and MacDougall. Calvert also had a hit and DeBoer drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

CAROL MAGRATH of Quincy, right, gives bike trek tips to South Shore trekkers Gerald, left, and Ken Goode as they leave Springfield on the 550-mile, seven-day New England Discovery Bike Trek sponsored by the American Lung Association of Massachusetts. The Goodes raised over $2500 in pledges to help support the programs of the Norfolk County-Norfolk Lung Association. Magrath and her husband, Paul, both veterans of the lung association's 350-mile TransAmerica Bike trek, were volunteer support staff for the New England Discover Trek.

Andrew Spader In Special Program

Andrew Spader, sales manager for the Century 21 Tullish & Clancy Real Estate of Quincy, has been chosen to participate in the region's unique "Operation Springboard" program.

Operation Springboard, which addresses career development and company growth, is blueprinted with the professional manager in mind.

Spader is among eight such managers chosen for the specialized course.

Although the Quincy hockey team had only a 1-15-3 record this season, veteran coach Bob Sylvia was a much happier man than he was a year ago when the Presidents finished at 1-18.

Future Looks Better For Young Quincy Team

"I was really discouraged last year as interest hit a new low and we were lucky to have enough players every game," he said. "We almost had to cancel a couple of games due to a lack of players and I was very worried about this year. I felt it was possible we couldn't have a team this season."

"But we had a wonderful group of freshmen report this year and, despite our record, I was pleased with the way our young team performed in most games. About 75 percent of our varsity players were freshmen and sophomores and we had by far the youngest team in the Suburban League. We had seven freshmen and five sophomores playing varsity hockey and it is a lot to expect these freshmen to face much more experienced teams."

The only seniors were goalie Craig Galligan, who did a fine job despite the record and was named a league all-star; defenseman Dave Mellynn and forwards Paul Shine, Fred Regan, Steve McInnis and Scott Curtin.

Leading the returnees will be sophomore Scott Mac-Pherson, who scored 25 points, including a pair of hat tricks this season.

Freshmen Dave Mullen, who played very well; Jim Schatzl, Jeff Craig, Sean McArdle, Duane Holmes and Mike Dern all should do well next year after gaining considerable experience this year.

Other returning forwards will be sophomores Jimmy Smith, who came on strong this year, and John Lewis. Others will be Dan Morrell, who looked good, and Tom Balzano, who came along well.

On defense, sophomore Shane Abboud had an excellent season and freshman Mark Gilmore and juniors Jim Marani and Chris Lewis should be excellent players next season.

"We have two fine goalies coming back in sophomore Steve MacPherson and Doug Mann," Sylvia said. "Steve did well in his appearances this year and Mann, a transfer from Thayer Academy, who was ineligible, is an excellent goalie from whom I expect big things next year."

Sylvia feels a key to next year's team, which will leave the Suburban League for the newly realigned Old Colony

League, will be how many freshmen will be coming out. "We are going to need a good third line and we will have to have another good crop of freshmen," he said.

"People talk about how Quincy and North will fare much better in the Old Colony League than we did in the Suburban League, but I feel in hockey we are going into a stronger league. Such schools as Plymouth, Silver Lake, Weymouth North and Bridgewater-Raynham have outstanding teams and I feel the Old Colony is stronger overall than the Suburban League."

"I don't think the school enrollments mean that much, it depends on how many boys come out for hockey. I think we should be competitive next year but it will probably be another two years before we get back to where we used to be."

Sylvia paid tribute to his veteran assistant, George Peachey, and his new aide, Robbie Craig, who took over when Bob Troup resigned after 10 years. "George is my good right arm and Robbie did a fine job for us this year," Sylvia said. "Bob Troup had been just great for 10 years."

Alumni Theatre

Awards Three Scholarships

Three college students will receive assistance with school expenses thanks to the North Quincy Alumni Theatre.

The students received scholarships taken from the proceeds of last summer's production of "Brighton Beach Memoirs," totaling $500.

The former Drama Club members and the colleges they will enter as freshmen in the fall include: Christine Carroll, Salve Regina College; Jeff Cluett, McGill University; and Beth Ross, Suffolk University.

"Over the past three years, we have awarded a total of $2,000 in scholarships," said Carol Steeves, NQAT president. "We hope to increase the amount of scholarships in the future."

NQAT will present Michael Frayn's comedy hit, "Noises Off" to raise funds for 1991 graduates. All proceeds benefit the Gregory P. Toland Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Founded in 1987 by a group of NQHS Drama Club Alumni, the troupe has grown tremendously over the past three years, incorporating members from all over the Boston area. Past productions include: "Lovers and Other Strangers," (1987); "A Shot in the Dark," (1988); and "Brighton Beach Memoirs," (1989).

Graduates run the not-for-profit theatre independently, gaining practical business and acting experience.

The theatre will conclude its comedy hit, "Noises Off" at 8 p.m. Aug. 3 and 4.

Ticket prices are $6 for adults and $4.50 for students and senior citizens. Performances will take place in the Black Box Theatre at North Quincy High School.

NQAT receives some funding from local businesses that advertise in the playbill as well as support from the Quincy Arts Lottery. Anyone who wishes to make a contribution may send it to North Quincy Alumni Theatre, P.O. Box 92, Wollaston, Ma. 02170.

There will be some new names and new faces playing in the third annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Double header tonight (Thursday) at Adams Field off Southern Artery, Quincy.

At 6:30 p.m., the Quincy Fire Department will battle the Quincy Police Department. The fire squad will have its hands full as they try to stop the police team's five-game winning streak. Last year, the police won, 21-4.

In the second game under the lights, the News Media All-Stars will slug it out against the Quincy City Officials.

This rivalry has seen-sawed throughout the game's 13-year history, with the City Officials holding a slim 7-6 edge in games won. Tonight, the news media will try to snap a two-game losing streak and tie up the series.

Tickets are $2 each and include admission to both games and entry into a prize drawing. Prizes include two pairs of Red Sox tickets, a free carpet cleaning for a home or apartment, a baseball glove, gift certificates from area restaurants, tee-shirts and other items.

Tickets will be sold at the Adams Field gate prior to the games.

All proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

of Richard J. Koch Sr. who organized the special event.

Koch, who served with Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Labor Day Telethon Committee, died in August, 1987.

To date, the committee has raised more than $1 million in the fight against muscular diseases. In 13 years, the doubleheader has raised $18,300, including $1,800 last year.

Playing for the Quincy Fire Department will be:

The media were also planning to reclaim some past media personalities off the waiver wire.

The games will be shown on a tape delay by Quincy Community Television Channel 3 after tonight's games.

Doing the play-by-play and color commentary for Channel 3 during the first game will be Quincy Firefighter Dan Polvere and Quincy Police Officer Dick Churchill.

In the nightcap, Peter Kenney, executive secretary for former Mayor Francis McCauley will do the play-by-play. Adding the color will be Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Babe Ruth

Barry's Advances To Playoff Finals

Barry's Deli has qualified for the Babe Ruth League's championship series for the first time ever by defeating Houghs Neck and Quincy Police in its first two playoff games.

Barry's defeated Houghs Neck, 11-5, with Derek Thompson, the winning pitcher, allowing only three hits, striking out six and walking four.

The game was suspended in the top of the seventh inning due to heavy fog and continued the following day with Barry's ahead, 11-1. Thompson's arm stiffened up and, with two outs, Jeff Craig relieved and got the last out.

Mike Conners led the attack with three hits, Danny Duncan and Thompson had two apiece and Craig, Dave Raftery, Sean Kennerson and Jeff Tirrell one each.

Barry's defense was led by Chris Murphy, Jimmy Goldrick, Charlie Hardiman, Kenny Ledwak and Ronnie McCann.

Matt O'Toole pitched well for Houghs Neck and had a single.

Barry's also topped Quincy Police, 15-3, behind the six-hit pitching of Raftery, who struck out six and walked five. He also had two hits.

Craig led the offensive with four hits, Murphy and Thompson had two each and Raftery, Duncan, Kennerson and Tirrell one apiece.

Craig played an outstanding game at shortstop and Conners, Ledwak and McGann also played strong defense.

Noel DiBona and Danny Kelly pitched for the Police and Adam Calvert played well at shortstop and had two hits.

Granite City Electric stayed in contention, eliminating the Elks, 9-5, after losing its opener to the Firemen, 4-2.

Scott Wysocki scattered eight hits in the win over the Elks and was afforded excellent defense as Granite City played errorless ball, led by the play of Bob Verney at third base, Justin Ackerman at shortstop, Kevin Boylen at second base and Brian Jennette at first base.

Lefty Mark Cahill went six innings for the Elks but had control problems and was victimized by his mates' errors. He was relieved by Pat Connelly.

Robbie Guarnieri had a double and single for Granite City, Jennette had a single, reached three times on errors, stole three bases and scored three runs. Mike MacDougall, Verney, Wysocki and Ackerman all had singles.

For the Elks Cahill had a double and single as did Pat Bryan and Scott Kohler two doubles and a single. Steve Barrett played well in left field and had a single.

Andrew Joyce, Erik MacFarlane, Dan Burke, Ryan Ackerman and Steve Tangney all played well.

Closing out fine Babe Ruth League careers for the Elks were Kohler, Sean Murray, Bill Skatal, Mike Linnane and Chris McCulley.

WEEK OF: August 2

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You are a natural leader and role model, but you sometimes don't appreciate the worth of group efforts. Family matters dominate the next six months, weaving their way into career and travel pursuits. A series of steady financial gains may begin around late Fall, early Winter.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Good week for making your point loud and clear-but not for harping on an issue. A nagging friend or relative may at last get the hints you've been providing. Musical events are spotlighted.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

A super period for catching up on assorted tasks-avoid procrastination and distractions as much as possible. Travel prospects are highlighted. Keep your journal and camera handy.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Artistic streak surfaces and you may choose to experiment in a new medium. Gardening and nature-related activities are also in the picture. Personal relationships benefit from a lighter touch.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

You may build the courage to take a chance on a relationship. Sense of duty is as strong as ever, but obligations may be lightened. Excellent week for completing various chores.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Several recent questions are solved, generally to your satisfaction. Check calendar carefully-you tend to overlook. Cultural events are highlighted; you may be visiting galleries and museums.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Week may find you stargazing-both figuratively (romance is sweet) and literally (you may be visiting an observatory). Outdoor activities are also indicated but prepare for changing conditions.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Changes in lifestyle, generally positive, are indicated at this time. Keep abreast of goings on in your neighborhood; you may soon be playing a major role in upcoming events.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

It seems that everyone is offering advice, and in fact you may prove your own best counsel. A natural look is favored at this time; if decorating or planning a wardrobe, consider earth colors.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Expect some intriguing invitations-which should be neither declined nor accepted without some thought. Week has a poetic, romantic flavor. Friends may have trouble articulating true feelings.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Financial details must be addressed without delay. Travel options broaden and a spontaneous trip may be on tap. Willpower is stronger; this may be the week for breaking a bad habit.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Combination of events leads to a promotion or a bonus by the end of this period. Novel ideas pay off, but don't ignore conventional approaches. Routine tasks are spiced with some adventure.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

A few small risks can pay off, provided you have a plan. Joint efforts require some reappraisal. Week is favorable for evaluations of both relationships and material objects.

New Report On Drugs At Library

A new report on the impact of drugs on communities in Massachusetts is now available at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy.

The report was prepared by the subcommittee on Narcotics and Terrorism which is chaired by Senator John Kerry.

"We found that drugs coming to the state from abroad are a principal cause of crime in Massachusetts," Kerry said. "But more importantly, the report found that our police and our prosecutors simply do not have the resources to cope with the rising level of the crime these drugs bring with them."

Kerry continued, "This report also makes it very clear that without providing the resources for treatment on demand at treatment centers and for more comprehensive and available drug education programs in our schools, the drug war will never be won."

The report, Drugs in Massachusetts—the Domestic Impact of a Foreign Invasion, is based on hearings chaired by Kerry and conducted by the subcommittee hearings all across Massachusetts last summer. Kerry met with local law enforcement officials at Quincy City Hall last August to identify their needs and concerns in the war against drugs.

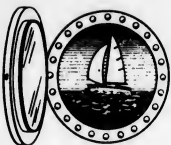

In all, Kerry's subcommittee heard testimony from 53 witnesses and the report represents information from several hundred additional sources including the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

In the 98-page report, Kerry called on the federal government to increase the availability of drug treatment centers, education programs and law enforcement agents.

Hancock St. Left Hand Turn To Stay

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Merchants in one section of Downtown Quincy can rest easier: Mayor James Sheets has decided to forego a plan to ban left-turns from Hancock St. onto Chestnut St.

The proposal, which was part of the ongoing Quincy Center traffic improvement project, was met with stiff opposition by several merchants with businesses on Hancock, Chestnut and Maple Sts. They said the left-turn ban would cut them off from their customers and hurt business, perhaps even force them to relocate.

Sheets, who still believes the ban would not have hurt business, decided to keep the left-turn because the "character" in the area has not been defined.

"We do not know what is going to go in the parking area across from South Shore Bank, nor do we know what the character of the Hancock parking area is going to be."

The bank's lot is located on Chestnut St. near the street's intersection with Hancock St. The Hancock lot is also located on Chestnut St. near the street's intersection with Revere Rd. and McGrath Highway.

If the left-turn ban had gone through, Christmas Island which divides Hancock St. between South Shore Bank and First Parish Church would have been extended 200 feet ending just prior to the Hancock-Granite Sts. intersection.

"If we extend the island, we could end up ripping it out next year. That makes no sense."

Sheets said he believes the left-turn ban would not have impacted businesses because customers could have used alternate routes. With the revitalization and traffic improvements in the area, the mayor said business should increase.

Councillor Tim Cahill, owner of Handshakes Cafe on Hancock St., praised Sheets for his decision.

"I think it's a wise move. I applaud the mayor for having the vision to see beyond what we have now in Downtown Quincy and for caring about small business which is feeling the pinch right now," Cahill said.

Could Save $675,000 In First Year Expanded Recycling Off To Good Start

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

If the first day of the city's expanded recycling program is an indication, Quincy could save approximately $675,000 in disposal costs during the program's first year.

"Recycling has been an absolute overwhelming success," Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday, one day after helping launch the city's new recycling program which calls for weekly collection of newspaper, plastics and glass.

On Monday, employees from Browning Ferris Industries collected a total of 34 and a half tons of recyclables in Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and parts of Wollaston. Specifically, 32 tons of newspaper, one and a half tons of glass and one ton of plastics were recycled.

With 34 and a half tons collected, the city saved $2,600 in disposal costs. "That one day is better than the poorest week (under the bi-weekly newspaper program)," Sheets noted.

For every ton of solid waste the city takes out of the waste stream, $76 is saved. If the city collects 3,000 tons, $228,000 will be saved.

If 6,000 tons are collected, Quincy will have saved $228,000 plus cover the $249,000 it paid BFI to start the expanded program.

Furthermore, if Monday's pace is factored out over the course of a year, Quincy could collect 8,970 tons for a savings of $675,000.

The tonnage collected Monday represents 22 percent of the city's average daily solid waste. "That's a high figure," Sheets noted.

On an average day, 152 tons are collected.

Sheets, who drove with BFI driver Thomas Rogerson in the company's new curb sorter for four hours Monday, attributed the program's high participation rate to advertising in local newspapers and radio as well as public awareness.

The mayor also said residents are rallying around the program because Quincy typically has a cooperative spirit.

"I think it's just the attitude of the people. As with Cleaner, Greener (effort), they have responded. It's typical of Quincy. We have very strong neighborhoods," he said.

During his pick-ups in the Wollaston area, Sheets said participation on most streets ranged from 80 to 100 percent. BFI, he noted, put out an additional truck and did not stop collecting until 7:15 p.m.

The program was launched at 9:30 a.m. at the home of former Mayor Francis X. McCauley in Houghs Neck. Besides the two mayors, Public Works Commissioner David Colton and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson helped launch the program by sorting materials into the proper bins.

Under the McCauley administration, the city began its first newspaper recycling

Neighborhood Watch To Be Set Up In Wollaston

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Officer Robert Hanna of the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit, will hold two public meetings to set up a neighborhood watch. The watch will be designed to help residents protect themselves and their property.

The meetings will be held: Tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Wollaston Methodist Church, 40 Beale

St. Tuesday, Aug. 14 at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Community Life Center on Fenno St.

Phelan urges all those interested to attend the important meetings.

LA FAYETTE DAY was recently celebrated with a program at the State House. Among those who attended were, from left, Senator Paul Harold, Comte Gilbert de Puzy LaFayette (a direct descendant of the Marquis de LaFayette) and Alain Briottet, consul general for France.

W. Squantum St. Pizzeria Rejected By License Board

By JANE ARENA
Amid strong opposition from neighbors and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, the License Board Tuesday denied a request from James Kuzminian to open a pizzeria at 224 West Squantum St. on property owned by John Blathras of Braintree.

Several neighbors attended the hearing to voice their opposition to the proposal, which, they say, they were not informed of.

Their concerns are traffic, noise, odor and loitering. Kuzminian proposed to open the pizzeria, which would serve subs, salads and pizza, with operating hours of 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Chretien told the board he had not been informed of the proposal and said he is "strongly opposed to it."

"The last thing that the public wants... is a pizzeria," he said. He said there is already a problem with teenagers loitering in the area and said he thinks a pizzeria would only increase the problem.

"A pizzeria generates a lot of odor problems... dumpster problems, and there is no way that can be avoided."

Chretien also noted that West Squantum St. is "one of the busiest streets in the city" and said he envisions added traffic and parking problems in the area if the proposal goes through.

"There are a lot of things that could go in there," he said, "but a pizzeria isn't one of them."

Chretien said that he has had calls from several residents in the area who were unable to attend the hearing, but wished to go on record as being opposed.

Currently the owner is constructing a four store addition to a present dry cleaning store on the site. Neighbors in the area have been trying to negotiate with the owner over the possible uses for the stores.

Atty. Jeffrey M. Graeber, who wrote to the board both as an abutter to the property and as an attorney representing several of the neighbors, said that there have been problems concerning the property for over four years, including fumes from the dry-cleaning equipment, traffic problems from the present construction equipment and employees, and power outages in the neighborhood.

"Our present dispute with the owner is over the potential uses of the four store addition he is building onto his dry-cleaners," he wrote. "Our concerns are that these units not be used in a way that will unduly increase traffic on West Squantum St.... or create odors, garbage problems or late night loitering since some of our residences are only 10-15 feet away."

Graeber noted that area residents have filed a zoning appeal on the plan for the property in an effort to impose some use restrictions. The suit is scheduled to come to trial August 22.

Graeber said that meanwhile, the residents have tried to negotiate an agreement with the owner which "would have excluded any food establishment as the worst possible use for our neighborhood."

Acting police Chief Captain Paul Nestor agreed that the street is among the busiest in the city, noted that the opposition to the proposal is "overwhelming."

Nestor offered Kuzminian an opportunity to withdraw his request without prejudice.

Kuzminian, who told the board that he knew nothing about such opposition from the neighborhood when he viewed the property, did not withdraw his request.

"I'm sure he would run a very good operation," Chretien said of Kuzminian, "but even if the construction went off without a hitch, I still couldn't support a pizzeria."

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey, acting board Chairman in the absence of John Gillis, said that he "couldn't see the board approving any food establishment at the site" in the face of such strong opposition from neighbors and abutters. He invited those abutters in attendance to sign their names to a list of those opposing.

The board unanimously denied the request. Because he did not use his option to withdraw the request, Kuzminian will now have to wait one year before applying for another license for the proposal at a different location.

Non-Alcoholic Nightclub Gets Go-Ahead

By JANE ARENA
The License Board Tuesday gave its approval for a non-alcoholic nightclub to open in Quincy Center.

The board granted a common victualer license, a Lord's Day license, and a cabaret license.

John Blythe of Quincy and William Collins of South Boston had been before the board with the request twice in June, but the matter was continued until the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association could review the proposal.

In July the QCBA Board of Directors gave its approval. The club, to be called Footprints, will be located in the basement level of Hancock Plaza, 1515 Hancock St.

The club would be open from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Monday and Wednesday through Saturday, from 7:30 p.m. to midnight on Tuesday, and from 1 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sunday.

The establishment will serve no prepared food, other than coffee, for which they will seek a permit from the Health Department.

Non-alcoholic drinks including soda and fruit drinks would also be available.

Footprints would have a different theme each night, including a sports theme and a senior citizens dance night.

A cover charge, ranging from $3 to $7, would be charged each night.

According to the proposal, Metropolitan Parking systems has agreed to allow the club free use of the parking lot behind the plaza.

Blythe has said he hopes to have the club open by September.

License Board Briefs

Sheets Seeks $256,662 To Cap Landfill

Mayor James Sheets will ask the City Council to appropriate $256,662 to finish the capping of the closed West Quincy landfill.

The appropriation is the first item on the agenda at the Council's special meeting Monday, Aug. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

The city budgeted $2 million this fiscal year to finish the capping. However, Sheets explained an additional appropriation is necessary because bids for the work came in higher than expected.

Quincy is under court order to cap the landfill by November.

"I hope the City Council supports it. It's an appropriation we need in order to fulfill the court's mandate," the mayor said Tuesday.

With Quincy under tight fiscal restraints, Sheets said he hopes the city can save money to pay for the capping.

"We're going to tighten the budget up," he said.

Although he does not foresee any additional cuts in personnel, Sheets said he will begin scrutinizing department budgets with department heads in September. Next month is the end of the first quarter of FY 91.

"I'll go over each budget with a fine tooth comb. My indications tell me we'll be making additional cuts in FY 92," he added.

Bids to cap the landfill came in higher than expected because the project is being overseen by the state Department of Environmental Protection, the mayor said.

"Contractors are afraid of that. They feel the department will order them to do something (additional at more cost)," he explained.

ONE OF TWO Boston Harbor Project roll-on/roll-off (ro/ro) barges pulls up to the pier at the Fore River Staging Area at the Quincy Shipyard. The 260-foot long, 64-foot beam Seaworthy 1 can carry as many as 25 tractor-trailers on each trip. A tugboat pushes the barge miles across Boston Harbor between Quincy and Deer Island where the Massachusetts

Water Resources Authority (MWRA) is building a new wastewater treatment plant as part of the Boston Harbor cleanup. The trip takes approximately two hours. Boston

Towing and Transportation Co., Inc. of East Boston has a $29.8 million contract with the MWRA for the barge service.

Donut Shop Wins 5 A.M. Opening Despite Opposition

By JANE ARENA

Despite a request from Mayor James Sheets and a petition signed by 19 residents, the License Board Tuesday voted to allow Donut King on Copeland St. to continue opening at 5 a.m. rather than 6 a.m. for another three months.

The board had granted a temporary early opening license to the shop about 90 days ago. Shop owners, Joseph and Louise Melchione told the board at that time that there was a need from customers for the earlier opening.

This week the board received a letter from Mayor Sheets asking that the opening be returned to 6 a.m., along with a petition signed by 19 residents.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing Donut King, told the board that he was "somewhat mystified" by the petition because he had a petition signed by 200 customers, some of them area residents, who support the earlier opening and attest that there has been no "appreciable increase in traffic."

He also told the board that Ward Councillor Thomas Fabrizio had received no complaints on the issue.

Robert Campbell, an abutter and the only signer of the petition present at the hearing, told the board that the abutters signed the petition in an effort to exercise some control over the shop.

He said the 5 a.m. opening was "voted without notice to the residents in the neighborhood," and told the board that residents would have objected.

The reason that Councillor Fabrizio had received no complaints, he said, is because most neighbors have air conditioning on during the night in the warmer weather, which helps to block the noise from the shop. He said that once the cooler weather comes people will start complaining.

"There is no reason for that shop to be open at 5 a.m.," he said. "The situation on that corner is ridiculous."

Atty. Fleming said that there were several area residents in attendance at the hearing who would be willing to speak in support of the 5 a.m. opening.

"They will tell you that there has been no appreciable increase in traffic," he said.

The board voted to allow the earlier opening for another three months and to monitor it during that time. The board will also write to Councillor Fabrizio about neighbors' concerns and ask him to look into the situation.

License For 10 Used Cars Approved

The License Board Tuesday granted with conditions a request from David P. Osis, Jr. manager of Dave's Automatic Transmission, 481 Quincy Ave., to increase his Motor II Used Car license from two to 10 cars.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey said there is "definitely enough room for ten vehicles" on the property.

Ward Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, present at the hearing, said he would have no objection to the action as long as he could be assured that no cars would be parked on the street. He said that another car dealer nearby has caused problems with parking vehicles on the street.

"That corner is now a mess because of what goes on at the whole corner," DeCristofaro said. "I've had a lot of problems with it...I'll raise hell if I see any cars in the street."

Mulvey also noted that the property has been storing vehicles from a towing company which is not licensed to store anything there. He said those vehicles must be removed.

The license was granted subject to the removal of all unauthorized vehicles and that no cars be parked on the street.

Owning City Hall

You might say that Asst. City Clerk Tom Burke, who has been there 31 years, is married to City Hall.

Well, actually, to the land on which old City Hall sits.

The land belonged — and could revert back — to the family of Burke's wife, the former Connie Roberts, a direct descendant of early settler Daniel French.

French and his wife, Hannah, deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 in 1884 to be used as the site of a "town house" (town hall, city hall).

The deed was conditional on the promise that the property only be used as a town house (town, or city hall).

French's deed stressed: "Always, however, upon this condition that said parcel of land shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a town house for said inhabitants and upon any breach of this condition, this conveyance shall be void to all intents and purposes."

So, it would appear, if the city ever abandons the building as part of City Hall, the land will go back to the French family.

Burke says the French family also owned the land which is now historic Hancock Cemetery.

Burke has been assistant city clerk since 1959 when he was elected unanimously by the City Council with the blessing of long-time friend John Gillis.

Gillis had held the post under Allan Cole and when the latter died in 1958, he too, was elected unanimously by the City Council.

The assistant clerk's real job was a popular one back then. There were 61 applicants for it when Burke was picked. The salary back then was $5,300 (now over $33,000) but the money was steady.

And, did you know that Burke came close to being a state representative? In 1958, he finished just 268 votes behind Joseph Brett for the First Norfolk District seat. Burke, who has become an institution around City Hall, is a shrewd political observer and is an expert in tossing darts. He fires them machinegun style.

If Quincy ever reneges on its promise to use the land as the site of a "town house" and abandons the present old City Hall and the land went back to the French family, what would they do with it?

"The city got a great deal for $1,000 back in 1884," says Burke.

"Just think what that land is worth today. Prime downtown location. Boy, what a spot for a hotel. It would be worth millions."

But, what would you do for off-street parking? "Well, there's the Hancock Cemetery," he says. "That would make a handy parking lot."

He's only kidding folks. Honest. He likes to rattle people — in fun. Right, Tom?

SPEAKING OF BURKE, he's no longer the only Tom Burke in City Hall.

For years all you had to do was tell the City Hall switchboard operator, "Tom Burke, please."

Now she will ask you: "Which Tom Burke?"

The new Tom Burke is the executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging.

RETIRED POLICE CHIEF Francis Finn will be honored at a testimonial dinner Oct. 3 at Lombardo's in Randolph.

The committee is headed by Acting Chief Paul Nestor with Lt. Normand Goyette as treasurer and Nancy Griffin, secretary.

Committee members in alphabetical order:

Tickets are $40 per person and may be obtained from any committee member.

LEO KELLY says he can't believe how many people are interested in his mustache.

"I'm absolutely amazed at how many people have commented," he reports.

He's referring to an item here last week that asked readers (without Leo's prior knowledge) to let him know whether they like or don't like his mustache.

When you see him, tell him whether he should keep it or shave it, we suggested.

"I've had at least 100 people tell me what they think," he says. "I've even had people driving by, toot and give me the thumbs up or thumbs down. I go into a supermarket or a bank and I get comment."

He says one person told him: "Here we have the Persian Gulf crisis, the savings and loan scandal, the poor economy and the mess in Massachusetts and everyone's talking about Kelly's mustache instead."

Well, how's public opinion running. For or against? "I would say," says Kelly, "that it's running 2-1 in favor of the mustache."

There must be some more precincts to be heard from.

ANYONE WHO LOST a softball glove at last week's Dick Kock Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader at Adams field should call Recreation Director Barry Welch at 773-1380 ext. 204. Welch found a glove after the second game.

WHAT INSURANCE IS ... AND WHAT IT IS NOT

As businesses and technologies progress and advance, the spectra of risk rides side by side. In simplest terms the basic function of insurance is to control risk by limiting its financial consequences. It is, however, intended not to provide an ever-thirsty sponge to absorb unlimited losses.

When the small business owner buys liability, fire, theft or any other kind of commercial insurance, the risk which his or her business bears is distributed among a large number of policy holders. By means of the payment of premiums which are aggregated by the insurance company, losses are able to be compensated.

This is not, however, a one-way street. If claims become excessive, premiums must rise to bear the increased load. This system maintains the risk-sharing principle, and keeps it on an even keel. In other words, keeping premiums down is a cooperative effort. The best way for the individual policy holder to manage his or her own premium cost is to observe prudent rules of safety, common sense and foresight.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rieley Agency, Inc. Please visit our office at 1080 Hancock Street in Quincy or give us a call at 471-6888.

Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Baherman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

SHOCK

There is a significant difference in the way that most people use the word "shock" and the way that doctors use it. In the ordinary manner of speech, a shock generally is a sudden event that gives rise to an unpleasant surprise. In medical terms, a shock is a condition in which collapse of the circulation is a central feature. Shock develops because of the way that the heart and circulation work together. Shock is said to occur when the heart either fails to pump properly or there is not enough blood for it to pump. The result is an insufficient amount of blood circulating to sustain the vital functions of the body. Loss of blood after accidents is one of the most common causes of shock.

No Stand On Toxic Waste Incinerator Corruption Would Be Sawyer's Main Target

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

If elected, Republican attorney general candidate William Sawyer says he will crack down on public corruption, fight crime and drugs and improve coordination among state law enforcement agencies.

However, the 60-year old lawyer's platform does not include an official stand on Clean Harbors' proposed hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree near the Quincy line.

During a recent campaign visit to The Quincy Sun, Sawyer stated his goals and concerns for the attorney general's office which he calls the most important elected position in the state, second only to the governor.

Asked whether he supports or opposes the hazardous waste project, Sawyer replied, "I think you're just not going to be able to take a good position on this issue until the process is over."

Sawyer, who is married to Joan Gardner, the executive secretary to the Hazardous Waste Facility Site Safety Council, said, "The process is designed to assure thoroughness of fact-finding and fairness of result. I can tell you the fact that people oppose it does not mean it's a bad idea or it's the wrong thing to do because the fact is you can't put anything anywhere in the Commonwealth or in society for that matter without the people around finding fault with it."

Sawyer, who noted the site feasibility will be decided by a team of representatives from state agencies and private citizens, added, "I think to take the position that whatever they decide is terribly bad is cuckoo."

Sawyer also said he's

Lawrence Hickey

A.F. Airman

Lawrence P. Hickey, son of Daniel T. and Jane A. Hickey of 16 Monmouth St., has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of airman.

A 1989 graduate of North Quincy High School, Lawrence is an apprentice fabrication and parachute specialist at Torrejon Air Base, Spain.

undecided on the incinerator because all the "critical" facts aren't known. Noting that $11 million has been spent in two and a half years to study the project, he said the incinerator would create less traffic and less pollution than what is presently there.

"As I understand the science is that the environmental impact of (the proposed incinerator) is less than the impact of what's there now."

"They'll be less traffic, less air pollution with the new facility than what's there now."

Furthermore, Sawyer said if hazardous waste facilities are not sited, the waste will "end up in your backyard and my backyard."

As for the site's feasibility and local opposition, Sawyer replied, "If I lived in this area, to tell you the honest God's truth, I'd feel threatened too. I can understand that but the fact that they feel that way doesn't mean that should make the decision."

To Sawyer, the real issue surrounding the incinerator project is proper management. "If there is an issue, the issue is proper management and that is something the community should get right in there now and create structures and arrangements that assure proper management."

"If they don't get in that bargain they'll lose it."

As attorney general, Sawyer said he would "re-orientate" the priorities of the office, with "less attention to consumer matters, more attention in the application of resources to crime, drugs, public corruption and environmental concerns."

"We should have an attorney general who has the courage and the professionalism to pursue public corruption wherever it leads, no matter the political risk."

As attorney general, Sawyer said his first priority would be lowering the crime rate. As the crime rate dropped, so too would the murder rate, he added.

In addition, he said he would seek stiff sentences for illegal possession of firearms and would work to tighten up the furlough system in Massachusetts.

Referring to incumbent Attorney General James Shannon, Sawyer remarked, "(He) has run the office as primarily a consumer affairs office," largely neglecting the issues of crime, corruption, drugs and the environment.

Sawyer also criticized Shannon for "brushing off" the 75 State Street and PEBSCO scandals.

Besides his crackdown, Sawyer said he would create and lead an early intervention program designed to detect and assist youngsters who may "go wrong."

As for prison overcrowding, Sawyer said innovative measures like "boot camp" style programs for first offenders and drug users and alternative methods of imprisonment must be looked at as both cost saving measures and as a way to save youngsters from a life of crime. He also said new prison facilities must be built to deal with the problem.

A partner in a Boston law firm and former Acton selectman, Sawyer said he is not interested in a political career. "I'm not in this as a career. I have the interest of good government at heart."

"I think that's what we need. We need a professional who's knowledgeable, who's dedicated to service and that's what I am."

Quincy's Yesterdays License Board Denies Fuel Storage Permit

The Licensing Commission refused to grant a permit to Thomas H. Reardon Jr. of Somerville to establish a storage depot for gasoline and fuel oil on Hancock St. near the Neponset River.

The Commission, which was composed of City Clerk Emery L. Crane, Fire Chief Alfred L. Mead and Police Chief Ernest H. Bishop, issued the following statement:

Aug. 9-15

64 Years Ago

"While the Board has no desire to restrict the development of the waterfront of Quincy, they feel that it is a grave question whether an oil storage plant would not hinder, rather than help, the proper development of the waterfront."

The storage facility would have included seven tanks to hold 227,500 barrels of gasoline and one tank for 32,500 barrels of fuel oil.

UNLUCKY THIRTEENTH

James Wood, a driver for the Whiting Milk Co., returned to the barn from his daily rounds with the vow that "never again will I work on Friday the 13th."

Wood had barely started on his route that morning when his wagon was upset while making a turn and $30 worth of milk spilled out on Houghs Neck streets. He returned for a new load.

Then his horse bolted and crashed into the side of a house owned by Herman Erhardt, 46 Center Rd., causing $100 damage to the wagon and tearing a 12-inch hole in the living room.

NEW LIGHTS ON HANCOCK ST.

Mayor Perley E. Barbour directed the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. to proceed with the installation of new and more powerful lights on Hancock St. from Dimmock to School Sts.

"They will eventually take the dark spots out of Hancock St. and intensify its illumination," said John F. Scott, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who had sought the lights for 15 years.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON CLOSINGS

Petitions were circulated requesting all merchants in Quincy Center to close their stores Wednesday afternoon all year 'round instead of just during the summer months.

Clerks in many of the stores were working 10 hours a day, five days a week, and 13 to 14 hours on Saturday.

Strawberry Rhubarb Pie

My sister-in-law Anita called one day because she had the most delicious strawberry rhubarb pie made by her friend Kay. So she mailed me Kay's recipe and with such a plentiful supply of strawberries and rhubarb you won't have any trouble finding these ingredients.

KAY'S LUSCIOUS

STRAWBERRY RHUBARB PIE
1 pint of fresh strawberries (aliced)
1 Lb of rhubarb
(equal to 3 cups or 4 or 5 stalks)
1½ cups sugar
3 Tbsp quick cooking tapioca (uncooked)
¼ tsp salt
¼ tsp nutmeg
Pie crust for top and bottom
(I used Pillsbury fold crusts)
1 Tbsp butter or margarine

Combine the sugar, tapioca, salt and nutmeg and set aside. Cut the rhubarb in half inch pieces and mix with the strawberries. Mix with other ingredients and let stand for about 15 to 20 minutes.

Put in pie plate with bottom crust. Dot with butter or margarine and arrange the top crust. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

Houghs Neck Legion Essay Winners Announced

Houghs Neck Legion Post winners in a recent student essay contest are announced by Alice Scribner, chairman.

Students in grades 4 and 5 in area schools wrote essays of 300 words or less on the subject, "Our Flag, Our Country, Ourselves."

Mary Teresa Damata of Grade 5 was the winner at Atherton Hough School; Karen Maher, Grade 5, Snug Harbor School; and Kosanna Poon, Grade 5, Merrymount School.

R.O.T.C. Awards and citations presented recently by Commander Raymond LaRue went to Cadet/Lt. Col. Lorraine Swanton for Military Excellence and to Cadet/Lt. Col. John Brady for Scholastic Achievement.

MARY DAMATA Gr. 5

Atherton Hough
Our flag: to me the flag means freedom and responsibility.

The freedom to speak as we please and to live like we want—comfortably.

Our flag stands for many things, for instance, the people who fought and died for our country and our freedom. The flag is like a thank you card for them from us. The flag also stands for the 50 states. Each and everyone has it's own star and the stripes (13 of them) stand for the old thirteen colonies. The flag is the symbol of our country and we should be proud of it.

Our Country—Our country is one of many countries but many countries are not as easy to live in comfortably. Many countries don't give the right to vote, this one does. Because of our government we can hang out in the streets we want. We can choose what school or college we want. To me our country is the best it can possibly be.

Ourselves—We are the people who make up the United States of America. We have to take pride in our flag and our country as well as ourselves. We have to learn what the flag is. Many of us think that it's a piece of cloth with stars and stripes on it but it isn't. Our ancestors came to America many years ago. When they saw the land they said that they would take care of it and so should we. That flag stands for our ancestors and us and that should make us proud to live here.

KAREN MAHER Gr. 5

Snug Harbor
What the Flag means to me, the flag means to me what our country fought for. And what did our country fight for? Freedom!

That means a lot to me, because if we didn't fight for freedom of speech and freedom. We wouldn't be able to say what we feel about our country. Or to be able to stand up against someone who is criticizing someone else.

What does our country mean to me. This is what it means to me:

Our country means a lot to me, our country stood up for what it was, and what it wanted to be. Because if we didn't have a war with Britain or any other countries we would be in control by those countries. I feel proud to be living in a country that knows what it stands for, and what it is.

Ourselves, what does ourselves mean to me! It means to me everything. Ourselves means everything to me because if it weren't for ourselves, nothing would have happened. I mean a lot of people died in those wars. There families and relatives fought against each other. Why? They stood up for what they believed in. The people just wanted to have what was best.

Everything we fought for was for us or others. Ourselves made peace. Put together Our Flag, Our Country, Ourselves what do we get?

Peace, happiness, love, enjoyment, freedom of speech freedom and our flag, our country, ourselves.

KOSANNA POON Gr. 5

Merrymount School
How do we show respect to our flag? What does the flag stand for?

We show respect to our flag by saluting it every morning. The flag is very important to us. It is a symbol that stands for Freedom and an Independent Nation. We should never, ever, ever put the flag on the ground.

Our flag has 13 stripes that stand for the thirteen colonies and fifty stars for the states. Our first flag had thirteen stripes and thirteen stars. Betsy Ross was the lady who made the first flag.

Our country faced many troubles and dangers to fight for freedom, especially against Britain in the Revolutionary War.

Eaton Wants Tax Burden Shifted Off Working Families

Francis (Sandy) Eaton, independent candidate for state representative in the third Norfolk District, recently told supporters that "the way taxes and budget cuts are being dealt with in the State House is not addressing the real issues."

"The people of Massachusetts are being asked to choose between high taxes and decent public services. We're being told that if we want lower taxes we have to accept cuts in education, health care, aid to dependent children and other basic services. Meanwhile some of this state's wealthiest individuals and corporations are able to manipulate the tax laws to get out of paying their fair share."

"My wife and I both work hard to support our family and we are painfully aware of the heavy tax burden working people are asked to shoulder. At the same time, our daughters attend public colleges in this Commonwealth and I can see the deterioration of our educational system. It's no wonder people are up in arms."

"It's no wonder people are unwilling to accept an increase in their taxes and cuts in their services. What we need is a legislature that has the courage to look the big corporations and their owners straight in the eye and say, 'You make a lot of money in this state and from now on you're going to pay your fair share in taxes. The free ride is over.'"

"I am in favor of shifting the tax burden off the shoulders of Massachusetts working families and small businesses and onto the corporations and wealthy individuals who have for too long used their political clout to leave the rest of us holding the bag."

"There is a lot of grandstanding going on right now about waste, fraud and patronage. These are certainly problems that need to be dealt with. Those who abuse the public trust should be prosecuted and punished. But we should remember that Ronald Reagan used the issue of government waste to justify some of the most vicious budget cuts in our country's history. And yet waste and fraud during the Reagan years reached unprecedented proportions. We mustn't be fooled by empty rhetoric about budget cuts solving this problem. Cuts will only hurt direct service providers and those receiving services."

"It's time for a change," said Eaton.

MWRA Renews Van Parking

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has renewed a one-year license agreement with the Boston Guild for the Hard of Hearing to provide continuation of van parking at the Fore River Staging Area in Quincy.

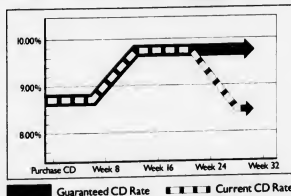

The Boston Guild for the Hard of Hearing is a non-profit agency that provides hearing tests to communities and industries in the Boston area. The Guild delivers this service through its mobile testing van.

"We are happy to provide this service to such a worthy organization," said MWRA Executive Director, Paul F. Levy. "We will continue to work with the community to make certain that Fore River property is put to good use."

The original agreement was approved in April of 1989 and would have expired May 26, 1990.

The Fore River Staging Area was purchased by the MWRA in September, 1987 as the site for the staging area for construction activities of the Boston Harbor Cleanup Program. A portion of the facility will also be used to convert sludge to fertilizer.

Van Schaick Supports Zero-Based Budgeting

Upset by the legislature's recent decision to cut local aid by four percent, State Senate candidate Paul Van Schaick of Quincy says he supports zero-based budgeting.

In addition, Van Schaick, who is seeking the Senate seat in the Braintree-Quincy-Holbrook-Avon district, has identified $400 million in cuts in the state budget.

Van Schaick said: "Massachusetts taxpayers inherit a legacy of debt while legislators leave for summer vacation after passing a mind boggling increase in our taxes and making mindless cuts in the budget. These legislators feel they deserve the summer off after a job well done! Apparently, they are legends in their own minds, which can account for the fact that most of them are running for reelection.

"As always you can count on cuts from necessary state services and local aid, rather than from the fat of state government. This is their way of punishing us, the taxpayer, for our reluctance to pay any further higher taxes. Would our legislators lie to us about fat in government due to their own self interests and incompetence? Well, they lied to Mayor Jim Sheets about local aid and they lied to us over the last two years when they knew this fiscal crisis was going to materialize.

"After years of the persistent fiscal fiasco on Beacon Hill, this is the best our legislators could do? It should be clear as crystal that new people need to be sent to the Hill and reclaim our state government from the professional politicians.

"To illustrate my point, I have identified $400 million in the state budget which could have been intelligently explored, such as:

- Reducing and restructuring the 07 accounts
- Centralize accounts receivable
- Cut 20% of state administrators making over $50,000 a year
- Privatize the Hynes Auditorium
- Employee attrition through early retirement incentives
- Maximize efficiency of retroactive billings for state medicaid plan
- Utilize correction alternatives to prisons; boot camps etc.
- Change dates for assessing new construction
- Consolidate state agencies such as the State, Capitol, MDC and Registry police

"These are only a few examples. Also, the state should implement 'ZERO' based budgeting. Zero based budgeting would hold state government accountable for spending by closely evaluating every state agency," Van Schaick said.

"Empowered by a mandate from the electorate and free from the 'IOU'S' of special interests and political bosses, fresh faces, full of new ideas must replace the incumbent politicians whom have brought us to the brink of fiscal disaster," he added.

HEARING AIDS CONNECTED TO THE HEART

Ask any hearing aid wearer what the most important aspect of getting a new hearing aid is, and chances are the answer will be getting the aid fitted correctly. This task is the direct responsibility of the hearing aid dispenser. Choosing the right person for this job can make the adaptation to a hearing aid more comfortable for the first-time wearer. Once the aid is fitted, the dispenser should provide the wearer with written instructions pertaining to its use and make every effort to see that they are understood. After all, the dispenser will guide the user through the adaptation period - listening to complaints, responding to them, making adjustments, providing encouragement, and standing by the product. Behind the success of the hearing aid hardware lies a dispenser's soft heart. Know what your hearing aid dispenser offers before you do business with him.

There are many places around that offer you "great deals." However, you want more than a bargain. You want people who are professionals, reliable, who care for you and give you a trustworthy product. Find all these things when you come to STEPHEN TOBIAS HEARING CENTER. With the modern equipment we have we can tell within 15 minutes if the sign of a hearing loss is present. We'll explain your options and you will be able to make an intelligent decision. See us by appt. at 488 Quincy Ave. Tel. 770-3986. A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

History is the biography of mankind. Just as names make news, history is about people. Records of ancient, medieval and modern times are not primarily about events that took place. They are about things people did, how they reacted, and how they responded.

The Old Testament is more than just the relating of events. It is more than the writings of Hebrew poets and prophets. It is the story of people. It is history of God's dealings with his people. It is like Emerson said: "There is properly no history, only biography."

Today as history is being written it is not about governments. It is about national leaders. It is not the records of wars and conquests; it is about soldiers and civilians. The birth and death rates are not cold statistical charts; it is the lives of human beings.

Does it not make sense if we are to understand the present, evaluate the past, and anticipate the future, we must do so on the basis of the personal interaction of men with their environments, and each other, and with God?

Rape Prevention: General Precautions

Be aware that assaults, including rape, can happen to anyone, anytime, anywhere. Observe your environment and be alert to your surroundings at all times. Know your neighborhood and neighbors. Look for potential danger areas and safety areas. What stores etc., are open late and may serve as shelters; who is likely to be home in your neighborhood. Take note of unlighted or little traveled areas and avoid them when possible.

Trust your gut feelings. If someone or something looks suspicious to you, get to a safe place and call the police immediately. It is better to be embarrassed than hurt.

Be familiar with your own limitations and think about how you react under stress. Some people can respond effectively by physical struggle or fighting, others by fleeing the scene and others by distraction, screaming or talking. Know your style.

Never hitchhike and don't accept rides from strangers.

Always carry enough money for an emergency phone call or taxi ride.

If you are assaulted and you see a weapon, your first priority is to not get hurt. Use your good judgement, some of the tactics described here may not be appropriate.

Simple Rules of Self Defense

In Case of Threat of, or Actual Assault:
Make sure there is a genuine threat. If the threat is genuine:

- RUN to the nearest place where other people are likely to be in the greatest numbers.

- SCREAM, or do anything else necessary to make as much noise as possible in order to attract the attention of others. Yell "FIRE!" It gets more attention and response than screaming for help.

- If you see a well-lit private residence, go directly to the door as if you live there. This will usually scare off the offender. You can explain your dilemma when the door is answered. Most people will understand.

- If you are assaulted for THEFT and there is no indication of your being hurt, DO NOT RESIST, give up your belongings.

- If you are personally assaulted you must make a very crucially difficult decision. Total non-resistance minimizes any physical danger and harm and could save you from serious injury. If your life is at stake, however, FIGHT FOR YOUR LIFE. If you decide to use basic self-defense techniques, use them with maximum force.

No matter what self-defense techniques you can use, use them only as a means to be able to SCREAM AND RUN!

Cerebral Palsy Offers Supportive Options Living Program

Adults with severe physical disabilities now have the opportunity to live independently with the help of a program provided by Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc., 105 Adams St. Quincy.

The program, entitled "Options" provides individuals with personal care attendants (PCA's) who assist clients with such daily tasks as bathing, dressing, cleaning, shopping, etc.

Although the Options Supportive Living Program provides the participants with the PCA's, the participant is the individual who hires, pays and dismisses the PCA. About 50 adults on the South Shore are presently in the program, including six from the Quincy area. The funds to pay for the PCA services come from Medicaid as a result of a change in regulations as of October, 1988.

The Options Supportive Living Program office, located in Taunton, is headed by Ann Shor. Shor points out that the program also provides such support services as case management, coordinated services and housing assistance.

To encourage the independence of the client, some homes have been modified to make bathrooms and kitchens accessible to clients using wheelchairs. In addition, some Options members have "graduated" to no longer having the need for a Case Manager after working with an Independent Living Skills Trainer says Shor. In time, many clients have learned to do their own bookkeeping, interviewing, hiring and scheduling of Personal Care Attendants.

An added benefit to the Options Program includes the PCA's themselves says Shor.

Many of the attendants are people who have overcome disabilities themselves and "can help themselves while helping others" says Shor. The PCA can learn job skills and develop self-esteem. "They are sensitive to the needs of others," says Shor.

For more information on the Options Supportive Living Program, write to: Options, S.L.P., 447 Broadway, Taunton, Mass. 02780, or call (508) 880-7577.

therapist at Milton Hospital.

Her new responsibilities will include managing physical, occupational, and speech therapy at Milton Hospital, and directing Horizon Ventures' newly opened off-site clinic, Sports and Industrial Therapy Associates. Located on Route 138 in Canton, Sports and Industrial Therapy Associates offers sports medicine, physical therapy, and therapy for industrial injuries.

Mass. Businessmen's Association Opposes Incinerator Proposal

Massachusetts Businessmen's Association (MBA), an organization of more than 40,000 small businesses throughout Massachusetts, has joined the fight against a new hazardous waste incinerator on the Braintree-Quincy line.

Last week, MBA stated its strong opposition against a proposal by Clean Harbors, Inc. for the new treatment facility. In taking its stand, the Association stated the proposed site is not the proper location for an incinerator because of its close proximity to a densely populated area.

The MBA acknowledged the state needs an incinerator but advocates finding a site near a major highway in a sparsely populated area.

According to MBA President Richard Valentine, the Association has received countless letters and phone calls from members opposed to construction of the facility in the densely populated region.

"There are 50,000 residents within one mile of the site and 200,000 people within a five mile radius. That entire population, which includes a great many children and elderly citizens, will be put at great risk if a toxic waste plant is built there," Valentine said.

"The potential emissions from the incinerator can be deadly and there are other hazards that pose risk for everyone in the region."

The Coalition for a Safe Environment agrees with Valentine's concerns about the dangers of the toxic waste incinerator. According to a Coalition newsletter, "With stack emissions and residue burn-off there exists the potential to emit some of the most highly toxic substances known to man.

"These toxic substances exist in minute particles that enter the air and go into the bloodstream and are deposited in the organs of the body. This can cause long-term lethal health problems."

Clean Harbors says its facility will burn more than 99 percent of the toxic waste. However, Valentine said this still isn't sufficient.

He referred to a recent Channel 5 editorial which pointed out, "whatever does escape through the stacks will affect the health of the 50,000 residents within a mile... and the 99-percent-plus clean burn is at peak performance."

"What about when the equipment wears out? And how could you evacuate the area in the event of a catastrophe?" the editorial asked.

Morning Races New Feature

Large Boat Turnout Expected For QBRW

By TOM SULLIVAN

The 53rd edition of Quincy Bay Race Week got under way yesterday (Wednesday) and there is something new in the program.

Race Week Association President Dick Hendry of Squantum Yacht Club announces that morning races will be tried for the first time.

"We have had requests to have morning races and we are experimenting with them," Hendry said. "There will be morning races for the Ensign and Coronado classes."

Hendry said he is expecting more boats this year than last year, especially in the 420, 210 and 110 classes.

"I am hoping that having morning racing will stimulate more interest," he said.

Hendry added that some people have requested that Race Week be limited to three days instead of the present five.

"You need five days to get all the racing in," he said. "Marblehead Race Week tried three-day racing in the past but it didn't work out."

Last year Race Week survived heavy thunder-showers and the threat of thundershowers nearly every night with only one race, that for youngsters, being canceled.

One of last year's highlights was the record of Wessagussett's Jack Willy, who had a perfect 5-for-5 week to win the Laser Class.

The five straight wins gave Willy a perfect 3/34 winning score for the second year in a row.

In the Blue Fleet Keith Garland of Hingham came back after a seventh place finish on opening day to win the title.

Matt Devine of Hingham was another who had an outstanding week as he won four of his five races to score an easy win in the Red Fleet.

The Quincy Bay Race Week Association was formed in 1937 with the Quincy, Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs the original members.

The first Race Week was held in 1938 when 20 classes of boats competed in the racing program.

The regatta was so successful that plans were made immediately for a bigger Race Week the following year.

Later the Town River, Wessagussett, Braintree, South Shore and Metropolitan club joined and those eight clubs currently make up the QBRWA.

The regatta is open to all clubs and many other clubs around the state have sent boats to compete.

Marblehead Race Week had been the main attraction in interclub sailboat racing for years and Quincy Bay Race Week has grown steadily until it is now challenging Marblehead as the most popular race week in the area.

Juniors are the backbone of Race Week. There were no junior sailing programs in the early years of Race Week. Now all clubs have outstanding junior programs. Town River has a particularly excellent program with more than 80 young people involved.

All clubs in the association donate and participate in the racing. Any money raised during the year is spent in one year, mainly for trophies.

To keep Race Week in the forefront every year, the association enters a float in the annual Christmas Parade and four years ago the association won the Mayor's trophy.

OFFICERS OF QUINCY Bay Race Week Association. Treasurer Jack White, Secretary Dave Maloney, President Dick Hendry, first Vice President George Jackson and second Vice President Dan Falvey.

Sailors Of All Ages Compete For Trophies

When the 53rd edition of Quincy Bay Race Week got under way Wednesday, several handsome trophies were up for competition among hundreds of sailors—men, women, boys and girls.

These trophies include:
Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy—Presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Albert W. Finlay, his father, for competition during Race Week. Presented in loving memory of a son who, during his lifetime, did much to advance the sport of yachting on Massachusetts Bay. The trophy is presented annually to the yachtsman considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some single act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy—A perpetual trophy presented annually since 1946 by the Patriot Ledger in memory of the man who served the newspaper for more than three decades as yachting writer and editor. A deep-water sailor and a racing enthusiast, Hunt played a major role in the success and growth of Quincy Bay Race Week and the sport itself.

The trophy is awarded annually to a person who has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship and a willingness to help others in the advancement of the yacht racing sport and who has contributed to the success of Race Week. The trophy is held until the succeeding Race Week by the home club of the winner, who is awarded a keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Pepsi Trophy—Presented by the Pepsi Cola Company to stimulate interest in overall competition.

1300 Trophy—Presented each year since 1960 to the QBRWA by radio station WJDA to demonstrate its interest in Race Week and to aid in the stimulation of racing interest among the junior class.

This trophy is awarded annually to the winning skipper in the Turnabout Class and becomes his permanent possession.

Commodore Isadore Bromfield Trophy—Presented in 1976 to the QBRWA by the Metropolitan Yacht Club. The trophy is awarded annually to the Race Week winner according to the deed of gift. The winner is presented an engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Commodore Charles Wing Memorial Trophy—Presented to the QBRWA in 1981 by his friends and family as a perpetual trophy to be awarded annually to the winner of the Red Fleet on Town River Yacht Club's day of Race Week.

City of Boston Bermuda Cup—This beautiful and historic punch bowl has been in the custody of the Quincy Y.C. for over 50 years. It was presented by the City of Boston around 1905 for a race from Boston to Bermuda.

This race was never held and in 1911 the city again put the cup up for an ocean race to be held Labor Day of 1911 to become the permanent possession of the winner. The race was won by Hollis Burgess, Quincy Y.C. member, in his sloop Marie I. Mr. Burgess generously made the Quincy Y.C. trustee of the cup which was to be placed in annual competition as a perpetual trophy. In 1968 the QYC presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition. This valuable trophy is to be presented to the annual winner to be held by him until the succeeding Race Week. The winner is presented a suitably engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Harry Warren Memorial Trophy—Presented to QBRWA in 1968 by the Warner family and the Town River Y.C. as a perpetual trophy to be raced for by cruising-type trimarans. It is to be annually engraved and is to be held by the winner until the succeeding Race Week. A suitably engraved keeper trophy is to be presented the winner for his permanent possession.

Co-Op Trophy—Presented last year for the first time by The Co-Operative Bank for Thunderbirds. Three perpetual trophies will be presented for the first three finishers, with the skippers receiving keeper trophies for their permanent possession.

Legion Baseball

For Morrisette It Was Just A Hit Away

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team saw its hopes of a state championship disappear when it dropped a second 2-1 decision to Fall River, enabling Fall River to enter the championship series at Braintree with Norwood, Brockton, Amherst and Grafton Hills.

The exciting series with Fall River will come back to haunt Morrisette, as it received amazing pitching in the three games and was just a hit away from winning the series.

In the first game Morrisette dropped a 2-1 10-inning decision at Fall River and left 14 runners stranded. After Erik DeBoer pitched a two-hitter for a 4-1 win at Adams Field, Fall River pulled out another 2-1 decision despite being outlit, 13-5. In that game Morrisette left 13 runners stranded.

"I have seen over 600 Legion games during the last 20 years, including many state and regional tournaments, and this was the best pitching I have ever seen by a losing team in a three-game series," said scorer-statistician Richard "Berger" Ryan. "When you allow only three earned runs in 28 innings, you very seldom, if ever, lose."

Kevin MacDougall went nine innings in the first-game loss, DeBoer was sparkling in his Legion finale and in the final game Gary Rawdon was outstanding, pitching his best game of the year despite suffering his only loss after six wins.

Morrisette had its best season since making the state finals in 1977 and had its best record (23-6) since its Legion World Series season of 1975 when it won the Northeast Regionals to make the World Series in South Dakota.

For six innings Rawdon pitched two-hit ball in the final game and allowed only three base runners. He was responsible for the lone Morrisette run in the third inning as he doubled (one of his three hits), stole third and scored on Mike Baylis' single.

Morrisette put the leadoff batter on in five innings but could not get any of them in scoring position with less than two outs. Fall River, which had five double plays in the series, had three in this game. Fall River played sparkling defense throughout the series, making only one error in the three games.

Rawdon walked the first batter in the seventh and the second batter grounded to short. The throw to second was just too late.

The runner on second stole third and scored when the throw went into left field. The next batter reached on an infield error and Barrett Jones singled in the winning run.

In the eighth Tony Anderlonis singled with one out and in the ninth Morrisette had a golden opportunity as Rawdon led off with a single and Jeff Davis, who pitched the opening day win, relieved for Fall River. He struck out the next two batters, one being a third strike bunt attempt, but DeBoer kept the inning going with his third hit. Tom Balzano walked to load the bases but MacDougall popped out to end the game.

In the second game of the series DeBoer was outstanding as he took the mound with only two days rest. He allowed one run and two hits and struck out 10, giving him 101 strikeouts for the season. Morrisette scored in the first inning on a Jeff Calvert walk, a DeBoer single and Balzano's fielders choice.

Fall River tied it in the second on a walk, ground out and single.

Morrisette went ahead, 2-1, in the fifth on Brian Taylor's single and Calvert's triple. The third run scored in the sixth on singles by DeBoer and Balzano, a walk to MacDougall and a double play. In the eighth Baylis had an infield hit and MacDougall a triple.

DeBoer tired as he loaded the bases on three walks in the eighth but struck out the next two and ended the inning on a foul pop up.

DeBoer and Balzano had two hits and Calvert, Baylis and Taylor one each.

Fall River advanced to the state finals against Amherst. The teams met Tuesday night and a Fall River win would give it the title and a berth in the Northeast Regionals in Connecticut. An Amherst win would force another game last night (Wednesday).

Morrisette coach Dave Perdios, who played on both the 1975 World Series team and the 1977 state finalists, was disappointed, but had nothing but praise for his team.

"I feel we had the better team but we just couldn't get the hit when we needed it," he said. "We should have put their pitcher away early in the deciding game, but he hung in there and they made all the big plays. We knew we could be the team to make the playoffs. This was a senior team. We'll lose our top two pitchers and will have up to five starting positions open. We'll be young, but we expect to be back in the playoffs next year."

Murphy Inducted Into Bentley Hall Of Fame

Former football star Kevin Murphy, a 1979 graduate and a Quincy native currently living in North Falmouth, was one of seven recently inducted into the Bentley College Athletic Hall of Fame.

A fixture on the Bentley defensive line during the late 70s, Murphy had a major impact on the Falcon football program, both on the field and off.

During his three seasons in a Bentley uniform (1976-78), he was among the team's leading tacklers each year, averaging over eight a game during his career. He once made 14 tackles against league power Worcester State and 13 against St. Michael's.

His accomplishments were noted by the opposing coaches. He was voted first-team all-New England Colonial Football Conference as a sophomore and was a second-team all-conference pick in 1978.

Murphy, who starred at Abp. Williams High and Tabor Academy, was also selected as a club football All-America in 1976.

"For a kid his size, he had a lot of agility," said current Bentley coach Peter Yetten, an assistant during Murphy's playing career.

"He was a good player and did a fine job for us. With him at nose guard, nobody trapped us for four years. They also didn't move us on goaline stands."

A tri-captain in 1977 and 1978, Murphy was also a leader off the field, serving as president of the Football Club for two years.

Murphy and his wife, Karen, are parents of a three-year-old daughter, Kate.

Koch Doubleheader Raises $2,000 For MDA

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Last week's Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader produced lots of highlights and most significantly it raised about $2,000 bringing the 14-year total over the $20,000 mark for Jerry's Kids.

The Quincy Police Dept. held off a tenacious Quincy Fire Dept. team, 8-1, in a well-played opening game. It was the sixth straight win for the Police.

In the nightcap, The News Media All-Stars rallied to defeat the Quincy City Officials, 13-12, to snap the City Officials two-game win streak and even the series at 7-7.

The Police led 4-0 through seven innings and made some fine defensive plays to snuff out the Fire Dept.'s scoring chances. Steve Igo's home run was the key hit for the men in blue.

Other members of the Police team included, Rich Tapper, Bill Brazazon, Brian Tobin, Richard Churchill, Sgt. Jim Buhl, Lt. John Mulligan, Sgt. Tom Malvesti, John Ryan, Paul Crump, Bill Shea, Wayne MacDonald, Jim Silcox, Rich Gibbons, Joe Manning, Gerry O'Rourke, Peter Gallagher, Barry DeFranco and Ed Kusser. Rob Churchill served as batboy.

In the second game the City Officials led all the way into the ninth after overcoming a 1-0 deficit in the first inning. The City squad appeared to be on the way to its third win in a row despite the absence of Mayor James Sheets. The mayor and his wife, Joann, were celebrating their wedding anniversary.

Media hurler Bill Ketter pitched a steady game for the win while City Officials pitcher Ray Cattaneo took the loss after winning the previous two years.

Trailing, 11-8, in the top of the ninth the Media squad rallied for five runs. All with two outs. Kate Pennell of WJDA and Brendan Daly of The Patriot Ledger started the inning with base hits. After the next two batters made outs, Eric Schwarz of The Ledger and Bob Bosworth of The Quincy Sun delivered key hits. Both scored on a home run by John McKay of Thompson & McKay Publishing.

Key hitting by Bosworth, Schwarz, Daly and Jason Seiken of The Ledger helped keep the Media All-Stars close. Other team members included, John Nicholson, Bob Cusack and Art LaBelle of WJDA, Ed Fiddler of Quincy Community Television, Bill Ketter, Mary Travers, Katy Cornell, and Mark Knowlton of The Patriot Ledger and Steve Kavanagh of The Quincy Sun.

Summer Storytelling Series Concludes Aug. 14

The Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Sq., will conclude its Summer Storytelling Series Tuesday, Aug. 14, with a performance by storyteller, Jo-Ann Wanh.

Children ages five and older and adults are invited to attend the program at 7 p.m. in the Central Children's Room.

Wanh is a story writer, songwriter and a drama consultant, with a varied background as an opera singer, dancer, mime and actress. As a storyteller she is known for bringing her characters to life through her use of gestures, voices, facial expressions and humor. She has a degree in Child Study from Tufts University and believes strongly that learning takes place from hearing, creating and telling stories.

'Foolsproof Follies' On Ch. 3

The Quincy Recreation Department and QCTV-3, the local programming channel for Continental Cablevision in Quincy, pooled their resources last week for the video production of "Foolsproof Follies" which will air on Ch. 3 tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m.

The program was taped at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater by QCTV volunteers and students in the Quincy Recreation Department TV Production Workshop using the QCTV mobile van and equipment provided by Continental Cablevision. 14 students, grades 6-9, participated in the production, using the skills they have learned in the three week TV Production workshop taught at Continental.

The performance was divided into two parts; the "Foolsproof Follies" performance featuring Linda and Rob Peck in their vaudeville style revue of comedy juggling, mime and acrobatics, and a hands-on workshop offered to the audience after the show. During the performance, the students rotated as camera operators and technical advisors with the assistance of QCTV staff and volunteers. However, the students produced the entire workshop segment, running cameras, technical directing and directing from the QCTV mobile van.

Darlene Mendoza, Community Productions Coordinator at Continental Cablevision and teacher of the TV Production Workshop said, "The kids did a great job and had a good time producing the show. We try to teach them the technical aspects of video while encouraging the kids to be creative and have fun."

The "Foolsproof Follies" performance was co-sponsored by The Quincy Community Television Council and The Quincy Recreation Department, providing both an enjoyable learning experience for the Recreation Workshop students and a free performance for families of Quincy at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater.

Make Your Home Safer For Children

Each year thousands of children nationwide will be victims of household accidents.

Many accidents around the home will be minor, while others may be of a more serious nature. As a result, an ounce of prevention should be practiced, advises Maureen McCaffrey, Director of the relocation division of the Jack Conway Co.

"It's nearly impossible for adults to keep track of children's whereabouts all of the time. Thus, child home safety... particularly now when school is out for the summer... can become more of a problem," McCaffrey said.

Jack Conway Company is a member of RELO/The International Relocation Network, the nation's oldest and largest referral network of independent real estate brokers. The RELO network, headquartered in Chicago, provides a wide range of relocation services to assist transferees and their families sell a house in one community and purchase a new home in the new community. The network is celebrating its 30th anniversary this year.

"It's widely known that most accidents happen in kitchens and bathrooms... the first places homeowners should look for potential dangers to children," cautions McCaffrey.

"Kitchen cupboards may look like an attractive place to kids, but household cleansers and chemicals stored there can be lethal. By storing chemicals on high shelves and placing tamper-resistant locks on the doors, the temptation for children is reduced and contents are not as readily available."

McCaffrey also encourages adults to remove any potentially dangerous items such as medicines, cleansers and grooming items like razors from medicine cabinets.

"Smaller children can't tell the difference between items... it's up to homeowners to take that responsibility," she says.

Electrical outlets as well pose a serious threat to younger family members.

McCaffrey notes: "Covers for electrical outlets can be easily installed, reducing the chance that a foreign object will be placed in the receptacle. Additionally, small measures, such as using non-toxic house plants for decoration and lowering the temperature so that water runs no hotter than 125 degrees, can further reduce the chance of injury."

In addition to parents, those grandparents, relatives and other people with whom children spend time should also take precautions.

"Children move quickly..."

it only takes a few minutes of an adult's time to remove some of these hazards and reduce some of the worry," explains McCaffrey.

McCaffrey also encourages adults to take the time to teach small children what and why certain household objects are dangerous.

"Children need explanation and constant reminders to better understand household dangers," she says. Pre-school is an ideal age to start teaching them because these are the children most likely at risk."

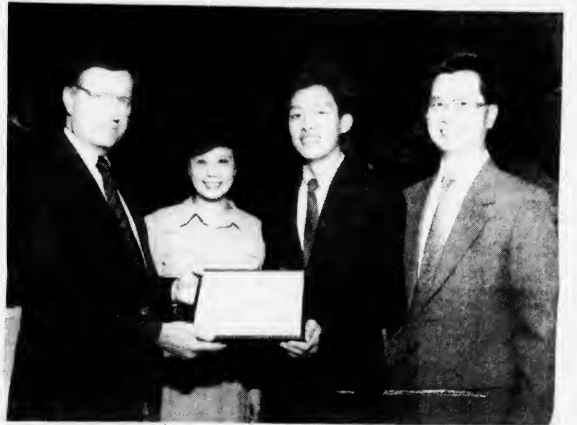

The RELO network, of which Jack Conway Company is a member, is composed of nearly 1,400-member companies with approximately 4,000 member offices nationwide. The RELO network has representatives in 13,000 cities in the U.S. and 19 foreign countries.

In addition to providing a wide range of relocation services, the RELO network has entered an agreement with the Dallas-based Associates Corporation of North America, allowing Jack Conway Company and other RELO members to further help homebuyers as well as sellers by offering an array of financial services.

Founded in 1957, the Jack Conway Company is the largest independently owned real estate company in Massachusetts.

Expanded Recycling Off To Good Start

program last May. In one year, the bi-weekly newspaper program collected 3,038 tons for a savings of $200,000.

Commenting on Monday's response, Sheets said, "All neighborhoods were extremely responsive."

The response was so great BFI has to empty the newspaper roll-off or bin after one day. Normally, the bin is emptied every three days.

During his route, Sheets said the presence of the blue, 14-cubic foot recycling bins reminded some residents that the program has begun. On at least six or seven occasions, the mayor said residents saw the bins, heard the truck, and brought out their own bin.

Moreover, the mayor likened the recycling atmosphere to a major snowstorm in the winter.

"Everybody was out there helping. There was a spirit of being a part of something bigger than yourself."

"If we can keep that spirit alive, I think it will be tremendous for us."

Word of Quincy's new program and high participation is reaching officials in other communities. This week, Sheets received a call from radio station WMEX in Brockton looking for information on the program.

"A lot of towns pick up their own trash. They're now looking into privatization," he said.

Sheets reported only two minor problems from the first day. Some residents put heavy, non-recyclable plastic into the bins. The mayor noted clear plastic like milk containers and heavy plastics with a recycling label can be recycled.

Also, some residents became confused when BFI sent out a "packer" rubbish truck to pick up newspaper toward the end of the day. Sheets pointed out the packer did not dispose the newspaper at a landfill. Instead, the paper was headed for recycling.

Balzano Hits Local Aid Loss

"When the legislature passed its $13.4 billion budget, the city of Quincy was robbed of $1.5 million in local aid money," said Judy Balzano, Republican candidate for state representative.

"All our local legislators voted for this scandalous budget," Balzano said, "including my opponent, the incumbent Mr. Cerasoli. Instead of trimming the fat-cat jobs in state government, or eliminating the new half-million dollar clock they just hung in the capitol rotunda, they chose instead to shortchange their home towns, weakening our police and fire protection, taking teachers out of our classrooms, and robbing the sick, the elderly and the retarded."

"These same legislators, who loafed from January to May, but who seem to enjoy socking it to us on Halloween night and the July 4th weekend, were at it again."

After meeting for a few weeks in complete confusion, they hit us with the biggest tax increase in Massachusetts history, followed up by a bloated budget for FY '91, passed at 2 a.m. just before they adjourned to vacation till fall.

"The cuts they did make were the most cruel they could make, and as we see our local services suffer, we should all remember in November who they were talking about when they wrote 'Send in the Clowns'," she said.

Quincy Hospital Sponsors Voter Registration Drive

Residents of Quincy and surrounding communities can register to vote at Quincy Hospital Wednesday, Aug. 15, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Quincy Hospital is participating in "Project 90," the Massachusetts Hospital Association's nonpartisan voter education campaign, which has registered more than 1,000 members of the health care community in its first six weeks of activity.

The registration drive will take place near the entrance to the hospital's cafeteria, located on the first floor of the West Wing. At this time, citizens may also take care of address, name, or party-affiliation changes. Residents of all towns may take advantage of this voter registration drive.

"Project 90" is one of the state's largest and most comprehensive voter registration drives. "Project 90" is designed to bring the concerns of hospital employees and care-givers to the ballot box. Our initial success shows that we can mobilize the hospital community to be a force in this year's elections," said MHA President Stephen J. Hegarty.

Hegarty said that Massachusetts hospitals and the state's entire health care industry "are among the largest employers and most important parts of the state economy. We want candidates to realize that a healthy medical community in Massachusetts is important to a healthy economy."

More than 165,000 people are employed at Massachusetts hospitals, which are widely viewed as being unsurpassed in quality. Hospitals contribute nearly $7 million to the state's economy and represent the second largest employment base in the service sector.

$256,662 For Capping Landfill

The City Council Monday night unanimously approved an appropriation of $256,662 to the Fiscal Year 1991 Sanitary Landfill account for the purpose of completing phases I and II of the capping at the West Quincy facility.

The city is obligated by court order to complete the project by November 15, 1990, Public Works Commissioner David Colton told the Council, and the time restriction puts a very tight schedule on the project.

The appropriation is needed above the current appropriation of $2 million because the lowest bidder for the work was in excess of that figure. The low bid, by Derbes Bros. of Quincy, was for $2,256,661.75, Colton said. The next lowest bid is over $1 million more.

Colton explained that, although the current state of the general economy is pushing construction prices down, landfill capping prices have not been affected by the downward forces.

Colton suggested two possible reasons for the stability of landfill capping prices: One, because the city is under court order to get work completed, contractors are able to charge "demand" prices; secondly, he said, increased scrutiny by the Department of Environmental Protection decreases a contractor's confidence in his pricing and causes prices to rise.

Councillor Michael Cheney suggested that the city could save money by taking some of the clay from the Central Artery project in Boston for use in capping the landfill.

Colton said that the clay constitutes about $441,000 of the project's total cost, but said that the figure includes not only material, but transportation and labor as well. He said the potential for saving money is "not as much as it might appear at first."

Colton also said that the process of taking material from Boston would take up too much time because the clay would have to be tested for standards by the DEP while the clay available now had already been tested.

Cheney questioned whether an extension on the court order might be requested.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said he doubted whether a judge would be "sympathetic" on the issue.

"The city is much better off to comply with the court order and complete this phase by November 15," he said.

Colton said he believes the Derbes Bros. bid is the lowest possible price the city will find for the work. He cautioned against any delay which might cause the low bidder to back away from the project and force the city to pay over $1 million more for the next bid.

The landfill capping project involves one layer of clay, a layer of stone for drainage, and a layer of sand or loam topped by a plastic layer to prevent water from leaking into the fill and impacting the groundwater supply.

After the initial capping activities there is still remaining work to be done in phase III of the project and in replication of the surrounding wetlands, Colton said, but the court order applies only to the capping activities. About $1 million for the remainder of the project can be appropriated in the FY 92 budget, he said.

Council Supports Rate Increases For Yellow Cab

The City Council Ordinance Committee Monday night indicated its support for a proposed rate increase for Yellow Cabs in Quincy.

George Parker, president of Yellow Cab of Quincy, Inc. is seeking a rate increase of $1.50 for the first three-sevenths of a mile and 25 cents for each additional one seventh of a mile.

The increase would mean that the rate for the first mile would increase from $2 to $2.50, two miles would increase from $3.40 to $4.25, and three miles would increase from $4.80 to $6.

In addition the rate for "use time" of a cab, the time the vehicle is used for the trip, would increase from $14 to $18. Parker said that use time does not typically apply in Quincy and is intended more for when a car is stuck in traffic on the expressway for any length of time during a trip.

Parker explained that the rate increases would still keep Quincy's rates among the lowest Yellow Cab rates in the Boston area. In the City of Boston, he said, Yellow Cab charges $2.70 for one mile. In Cambridge the one mile rate is $2.75. In other areas, including Chelsea and Brookline, the rates are $3 or more for one mile.

Parker explained that the rate increase is necessary due to the rising costs of gasoline, maintenance, insurance and the vehicles themselves.

Although the councillors were sympathetic to the rising costs and the real need for the rate increase, Councillor Peter Kolson questioned whether the rates would apply to senior citizens. He suggested that seniors should be given a break on the cab rates because they often depend on the cabs as their only means of transportation.

Parker, who noted that Quincy's seniors would still have "almost the lowest rates in the state," with the increase, said that a different rate system is difficult to implement.

Furthermore, Parker said, if seniors get a preferred rate then so too should working families who are facing financial struggle.

Councillor Thomas Nutley agreed with Parker, adding that the city has seven shuttle vans available for senior citizens.

Councillor Lawrence Chretien, who noted that Quincy's senior population has been documented as one of the highest in the state, noted that the shuttle vans are constantly overbooked and have a long waiting list for use.

Chretien noted that Somerville has a senior citizen rate and suggested that one could be implemented in Quincy as well. For example, he said, the use time rate for seniors could be lowered to lower the price of the entire trip.

Nutley, though, maintained that the senior rate would be an "administrative burden" to the cab drivers, especially if the driver had doubt as to whether or not a passenger was a senior citizen.

"It could present problems," he said.

Although councillors in both Ordinance Committee and Special Counsel Meeting Session indicated their approval of the rate increase, no action can be taken until the issue is properly advertised.

Civil Fines Proposed For Zoning Code Violations

By JANE ARENA

A proposed ordinance which would allow the Building Commissioner to pursue civil fines against violators of the city zoning codes rather than require him to make a criminal complaint through the courts was referred to the Ordinance Committee Monday night by the City Council.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath explained that under the current system the Building Commissioner must seek criminal charges against violators of the zoning bylaws which is time consuming and often unsuccessful. It is often difficult to prove criminal intent in cases of zoning violation, he said, even though, in many cases, criminal intent may be an issue.

As proposed the ordinance would impose a civil fine system without having to go through the courts. A first offense of a zoning violation would carry a $50 fine, a second offense $100, $200 for a third offense and another $200 for each additional offense.

Although the concept was met with unanimous support by the council, discussion centered around the specifics of the ordinance.

Councillors agreed that zoning violations, especially in the case of illegal apartments and other public safety issues, are all too common throughout the city and that something must be done about them.

"The judicial system is way overbooked," Councillor Lawrence Chretien said, "justice is not swift...and without something like this (ordinance) we're slapping (zoning violators) in the wrist."

Council President Ted DeCristofaro agreed.

"There are several situations in the Ward 2 area where people have broken the zoning rules continuously for 20 or 30 years," he said. "We have got to do something to correct it...the only way you can make some people learn is to take money from them."

Councillor Charles Phelan, who said he "basically" agrees with the ordinance, questioned whether there is a need for some sort of appeals process.

McGrath said he would look into that.

Councillor Tim Cahill noted that the ordinance, if used "correctly" would be a help to city councillors plagued by flagrant zoning violations, but said he worries about putting too much power in the hands of one person. He suggested that there be some sort of an appeals process or a check system to make certain the fines are not issued "indiscriminately."

Councillor Michael Cheney said there should be a warning issued to violators before the first fine is issued because some violations are nothing more than honest mistakes by residents who are not well-versed in zoning law.

Councillor Patricia Toland agreed with the need for a warning, but said that some sort of time frame should also be implemented to distinguish between separate offenses and fines.

Cheney suggested that each day of violation should constitute a separate offense, so that unless a violator made some progress to correct a violation within 24 hours, a separate offense would be recorded.

Toland suggested a seven day time frame because in cases of illegal apartments and other serious zoning violations it is not always possible to take corrective action within 24 hours.

Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said he would support a time frame amendment to the ordinance, but added that he did not think it necessary.

"If the violation is done," he said, "then you have violated it already."

DeCristofaro agreed.

"A good many of these violators know they're committing a violation when they're doing it," he said. "A lot of people make honest mistakes, but a good number of people do it for profit."

Councillor Thomas Nutley argued that the seven-day time frame between separate violations is needed not only to allow violators to correct their actions, but also to allow the Building Inspector to address violations according to their severity.

Other councillors argued that three working days between fines would suffice to constitute a separate violation, but Nutley said that seven days would work better from an administrative point of view because it would allow the Building Inspector more time to get a notice out to an alleged violator.

Cheney noted that before any action can be taken on the issue it must remain in the Ordinance Committee for further discussion and a public hearing must be held. The ordinance would also require the approval of the Planning Board, he said.

Correction

Last week The Quincy Sun reported that Mayor James Sheets had asked, in a letter to the License Board, that the opening hour of Donut King on Copeland St. revert back to 6 a.m. rather than 5 a.m.

Louise Melchione, co-owner of the shop, told The Sun this week that the Mayor had asked only that the matter be brought up for discussion because of the concerns of abutters.

$100,000 In State Budget For Dorothy Quincy Homestead Repair

The inclusion of $100,000 in the MDC capital outlay budget to repair the roof of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead is announced by Senator Paul Harold.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead at the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Road is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission. Its furnishings and other contents are the property of the National Society of Colonial Dames of Massachusetts which provide interpretative programs and tours, as well as upkeep.

This was the original home of Edmund Quincy, for whom Quincy was named, head of the family. Its most famous occupant was Dorothy Quincy, for whom the Homestead was named and who became the wife of John Hancock.

Sen. Harold reported that at a Tuesday meeting with Ilyas Bhatti, MDC Commissioner, his preservation group, and representatives of the Colonial Dames, there was a discussion of scheduled roof work which would cost $50,000, with approximately ten to fifteen thousand dollars needed for gutter work, and $15,000 for repair of the balustrade.

Specifications are being drawn up, and the project will go out for bids in approximately two weeks. Estimates will probably be available in November, and construction should begin in the spring, Harold said.

"We were glad to secure money to help preserve this important historic home for

DOROTHY QUINCY HOMESTEAD - Edward Quincy dresses up like his ancestors in 1984 to welcome relatives to a reunion of Quincy family descendants at the Homestead.

Quincy, and also for the State of Massachusetts. It is one of the most significant buildings in the state," he said, "and without these necessary repairs, it could be damaged permanently."

Harold said he will work with the MDC on details for the work on the Homestead which will include repair of the windows, repainting and structural work which may be more than $350,000.

This is not the first work of restoration in which he has been involved. While in the Quincy City Council he was involved in securing funds for repair of the Adams birthplaces, and repairs to First Parish Church, subject to agreement of the congregation.

McCauley Councillor At Large?

Former Mayor Francis McCauley could be back in the local political arena in the near future.

Not next year. But maybe 1993. And, not as a candidate for mayor.

But, for city councillor-at-large. McCauley didn't close the door on his political career when he left City Hall last January. And, he still has it open, acknowledging he is giving some thought to running again.

"But not next year," he says. "And, not for mayor."

McCauley says he would enjoy returning to City Hall as a councillor at-large in the role of "elder statesman."

Other mayors, he notes, have gone back to the City Council after serving as the city's chief executive.

The most recent, of course, was Joseph LaRaia who lost the mayor's office to Arthur Tobin in 1977 but came back two years later to win a city council at-large seat. And from there in 1987, almost unseated McCauley.

But LaRaia, with his youthful looks, did not exactly fill the image of elder statesman as say, for example, did an older Thomas Burgin.

Burgin's tenure as mayor bridged the Depression and the start of World War II serving from 1935 to 1941.

He returned to the City Council in 1949 under Plan E and was elected mayor by his council colleagues under that charter.

Burgin projected both an elder statesman and fatherly image in the 1950's as young councillors like James McIntyre, Charles Shea and John Quinn were coming along.

Other mayors who went back to the City Council were Charles Bryant, Joseph Whiton and Russell Sears. The latter, incidentally, was the youngest ever elected mayor at age 27.

Quincy's first mayor, Charles Porter, served 15 years in the School Committee after leaving office.

And, of course, on a national standpoint, John Quincy Adams was elected to the House of Representatives after serving as President.

McCAULEY

"There is a lot of precedence for former chief executives to later serve in the legislative branch of government," notes McCauley.

Right now McCauley is doing financial consulting work with an office in Quincy Sq. — in the Monroe Building across McIntyre Mall from City Hall.

He is also doing consulting work for the law firm of Murphy, Hesse, Toomey and Lhane.

He won't say when he might make an "elder statesman" move, but his political blood apparently is stirring and he seems to be itching to get back in the thick of things.

INCIDENTALLY, the McCauley family marked a happy double milestone this week.

Frank and Sandra observed their 36th wedding anniversary Monday.

And, got a special gift from daughter, Julie, and her husband John Tympanik who presented them with a new grandson on the same day: Matthew Francis, who weighed in at 9 pounds, 9 ounces at Quincy Hospital — in the McCauley Building named after Gramps.

Matthew is Frank and Sandra's fourth grandchild.

PRESERVING QUINCY'S HISTORIC sites is high on Senator Paul Harold's priority list.

Harold recently got $100,000 into the state capital outlay budget for repairs to the roof at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead. It was signed by Governor Dukakis last week.

A few years ago he was instrumental in having the birthplaces of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams placed in the National Park System.

By doing so, it relieved the city of the financial burden of maintenance and repairs of the two birthplaces. The National Park System has done a nice job with these two historic sites.

Back in 1981, Harold also got legislation passed to place United First Parish Church in the National Park System. That is still pending, however, until a few points are worked out.

The Army newspaper "Stars and Stripes" was first published in 1918.

TAKING TO THE AIRWAYS

Airway obstruction can be caused by an object at the back of the throat, such as a piece of food, a loose denture, or even sand or mud. In an unconscious person, the tongue may fall backward and block the airway. An object, such as a coin, small toy, or lump of food, may become lodged in the windpipe. This situation demands immediate first aid, especially if the patient is unable to breathe. First, open the patient's mouth and feel for anything at the back of the throat with a finger. If possible, scoop it out. If the obstruction cannot be removed, first give several hard slaps between the shoulder blades, and then perform the Heimlich maneuver. Wrap your arms around the victim's waist from behind. Put one fist with its thumb edge on the upper abdomen, then clutch the fist with your other hand. Thrust hard, inward and upward. Repeat until blockage is forced out. P.S. If the patient loses consciousness, use mouth to mouth resuscitation. The windpipe spasm will relax enough to permit the passage of air around the blockage.

Every year, many people are saved by others who know the Heimlich maneuver. This simple technique is easy to learn, and may enable you to save lives. # Council Raises Questions On Anti-Litter Ordinance

Mayor James Sheets' anti-litter ordinance, which would authorize the Health Department to issue civil fines of up to $300 to property owners who fail to keep their property clean and well-maintained, was referred to the Ordinance Committee by the City Council Monday night after some discussion.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said the ordinance would extend to sidewalks in front of homes and businesses.

Although the city already has a litter fine, he said this proposal by the mayor is a "far stronger attempt to promote a cleaner appearance of the city."

Council President Ted DeCristofaro said enforcement of the ordinance may pose a problem, especially if the alleged violator is an elderly couple or another citizen who cannot be expected to keep property clean at all times.

McGrath said the issuance of fines would be at the judgement of the Health Department and that the department would surely be sympathetic to certain cases.

McGrath said the ordinance is not aimed at private homeowners so much as it is at city businesses and others who habitually keep property littered and unsightly.

While councilors generally indicated support for a tough anti-litter ordinance, they raised several questions about the proposal before them.

"We would all be derelict in our duty if we voted against a tougher litter ordinance," Councilor Lawrence Chretien said, but he added that the proposed ordinance needs to be "tightened up and improved."

Chretien said the ordinance should include a concrete definition of "litter" and "maintenance" as it applies to private property.

Councilor Tim Cahill added that he is concerned about the small businessman or resident who could be fined if litter from another area were blown onto their property by the wind. He also said it is difficult for small businesses to keep a shared sidewalk clean and maintained.

Cahill said residents should be "encouraged" to keep property and sidewalks maintained and litter-free through programs such as recycling and adopt-an-island, but he is concerned that this could "force the clean-up of downtown Quincy."

Councilor Toland agreed that the present ordinance is "vague" and might possibly allow for neighbors and residents to "harass" each other.

"I understand what the Mayor is trying to do," she said, "but it doesn't seem enforceable."

Councilor Cheney noted that "an over-ambitious health department employee could fine us for leaving weeds on our property."

"This ordinance, if passed in its present form," he said, "will undoubtedly come back and haunt each and every one of us. This is a little bit too much too soon."

may contact Chretien at the City Council office at City Hall.

Cheney also commended Michael Wheelwright, city planner and a member of the Recycling Committee for his "willing role" in the program. "The enthusiasm of the residents is unbelievable," Council President DeCristofaro added.

Cheney agreed, saying recycling "has been a case where (citizens) have been sitting back waiting for government to take an active role."

Councilor Tim Cahill said that the program is proof that the "best way to make something succeed is for the City Council to work with the private sector."

"We should use this as an example in the future," he said.

Chretien said that the city stands to realize a substantial monetary savings from the program if the success continues.

Volunteers have already begun manning phones to answer residents' questions about the recycling program, he said. Anyone who has a question may call 770-B-I-N-S for information.

Residents are also asked to call and order a free "WE RECYCLE" sign for their front lawns which will be helpful in encouraging cooperation from neighbors.

Volunteers are also needed to distribute flyers on the program, and to answer phones, Chretien said. Anyone wishing to volunteer

Residency Must Proposed For License Board

the community, board members should make their decisions as members of that community, he said.

Councillor Patricia Toland questioned the effect of the ordinance on civil service requirements.

City Solicitor McGrath

said that, taken to its limit the ordinance could take away some of the power of the mayor in appointing a police or fire chief from a civil service list. If the top scoring candidate lives outside the city, he said, the Mayor might have a problem appointing him.

McGrath suggested that there might have to be language in the ordinance which would allow a non-resident member of the board to assign a permanent designee who is a resident of the city.

Councillor Tim Cahill said that, while he does not necessarily agree with the requirement of residency for License Board members, he would strongly support a study of the License Board as a whole.

Cahill noted that under the current system, if a business person wants to open a restaurant or business in the city he must meet first with the police and fire chief and the Health and Building Departments to get the necessary permits. Meeting with the License Board afterward seems repetitive, he said, suggesting that the concept of who sits on the board should be studied.

Cahill added that the meeting time of the board, Tuesdays at 10 a.m. should perhaps also be studied because the hour is inconvenient for business people and residents alike.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien agreed with the suggestion of a study, but criticized the ordinance proposal.

"The License Board has been incredibly sensitive to my concerns," he said. "They have done what I have asked them 100 percent of the time...the current license board has done a very good job for Ward 3."

Chretien also argued that if License Board members should be required to live in the city then so too should several other city employees if the rule is going to be consistent.

Referring to the old school rule of thumb, "if it ain't broke, don't fix it," Chretien said "I don't see what's broke."

Unique Fundraiser Aug. 22

5 Quincy Charities To Benefit From Hawaiian Luau

By JANE ARENA

The City of Presidents Fund Committee, a diverse and dedicated group of 10 people brought together by businessman Peter O'Connell, has come up with a unique way to raise much-needed funds for five worthy Quincy-based charities while providing a fun time for all who contribute.

An authentic Hawaiian luau, complete with a fire dancer and a buffet of Polynesian and Hawaiian delights, will be held at the Ocean Terrace at Marina Bay Wednesday, Aug. 22 from 5:30 to 9 p.m.

For $25 per person Quincy families can enjoy a night in paradise, or at least as close as you can get without actually leaving Quincy.

For $25 per person Quincy families can enjoy a night in paradise, (or at least as close as you can get without actually leaving Quincy). Entertainment will include a Polynesian dance review just like you'd find on the island itself.

Anyone who buys a ticket will also be eligible to win the real thing. Prime Travel of Marina Bay has donated a one week Hawaiian vacation for two.

All this and knowing that you'll be helping five local charities as well.

Proceeds from the event will be split among:

- The Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution Committee, which will put the money toward the athletics department of Quincy Public Schools.

- The Sacred Heart Brother and Sisters Table, which will use the funds for feeding needy families throughout the city.

- The Quincy Visiting Nurse/Hospice which will put the funds toward its hospice program.

- Quincy After School Day Care which will use the funds to broaden its programs throughout the city.

- And Father Bill's Place which will use the funds for furthering programs for the homeless.

Whether you support one, two, three or all five of these groups, your tax-deductible contribution will be put to good use.

The City of Presidents Fund was established in January of this year as a 501(c)(3) tax-deductible charity which is organized and chartered by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. This assures that the contribution for the ticket price is tax-deductible.

Each of the charities are funded at least partially by city or state funds, committee member Bob Galligan notes, and, in light of the recent fiscal crisis, all of them are in need of community help.

And these causes stand to earn a lot of help thanks to the volunteer efforts of this committee.

A $100 per person preview dinner the night before the event has already entirely sold out, committee members note. And they hope to sell about 4,000 tickets for the actual luau.

A ticket-selling booth at Marina Bay last week, manned by members of the Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution Committee, generated much interest in the event. According to committee members, out-of-state visitors bought tickets just for the sake of contributing even though they won't be able to attend the luau.

The charities involved this year were selected by the committee through initial interviews and follow-up. Beginning in October the committee will begin taking applications from other charities in the city to select five beneficiaries of next year's event. The committee has no idea what next year's event will be yet, but hope to begin planning it soon after the luau.

A great deal of effort and community spirit has gone into the planning of the luau, and all of those involved deserve recognition:

Frank Barrett of Barrett's Restaurant is contributing to the cause by providing food at a reduced rate; the entertainment will also be provided at a reduced cost.

The City of Presidents Fund Committee, which is all volunteer, consists of: Peter O'Connell, chairman, Mayor James Sheets, honorary co-chairman, Thomas Kiley, David Spillane, Anthony Agnitti, Judy Brams, Roger Kineavy, Robert Galligan, Sheila McIntyre, and Father William McCarthy.

Tickets for the event are available through a number of locations and organizations in the city, including City Hall. Contact Tom Koch, Mayor's office, at 773-1380.

The luau will also include a cash bar and will be held rain or shine.

30-Year Tradition Ends Bethany Church Worship Services Discontinued On WJDA

By JANE ARENA

For 30 years the weekly worship service at Bethany Congregational Church has been part of the regular Sunday morning programming on WJDA radio.

Until about two years ago the 10 a.m. service was taped and rebroadcast at 11 a.m. After that it was broadcast live at 10 a.m.

However that longstanding tradition came to a close on July 1 with the final broadcast from Bethany.

"It was part of an overall programming change for Sunday mornings," James Asher, WJDA President, said Monday. "We still do have some religious elements in the earlier part of Sunday morning, until 8 o'clock, then we have the Sunday morning news block and then pretty much music and entertainment."

Lisa Andre, who served as moderator for the Bethany "radio ministry," said that the church is "disappointed" with the station's decision.

"Over the years countless numbers of people have been touched spiritually through the broadcast. We have received many calls and letters from people of all faiths commending us on the quality of our worship."

Asher said that the station has received "a modest number" of phone calls and letters concerning the cancellation, but added that "some of them suggest that they're not listeners themselves but that they think (the broadcast) is a good idea for other people."

However, Asher defended the station's decision as one that had to be made for the sake of program consistency.

"The previous format on Sundays had been pretty much back and forth between religious, music, news, back to religion...the type of programming changed every half hour," he said, "and that's not real good programming."

The station has been trying to tighten up its weekly programming schedule since about October, Asher noted.

He also explained that when Win Bettinson retired from the station this year, much of the religious programming went with him. Bettinson handled most of the station's religious programs, including "Church of the Wildwood," Asher said.

"It's sad to take (the radio ministry) off the air in some respects," he said. "But the kind of programming that we do on a Sunday is now reflective of what our programming is like throughout the week...we look at it as an opportunity to bring new listeners into the station...Sunday is an important day for radio, when there is nothing really on television for adults."

But, in a letter to The Sun, Andre said that the programming change came at the expense of homebound citizens who counted on the radio ministry as their only church experience.

"Persons have found that tuning into Bethany's services has been a way to gain the spiritual comfort of a service of worship that would otherwise be impossible," she writes.

Asher noted that he has spoken to Bethany officials and to other churches in the city about the possibility of some other format of radio ministry in the future. No firm plans have been made as yet, he said.

Asher also noted that WJDA is perhaps "one of the last stations" in the area to include a one hour church program on Sundays.

In her letter, Andre commends WJDA for its long support and commitment to their radio ministry, but stressed that the church views the change as a loss to the community.

"Maybe taking them off wasn't something they wanted to have happen," Asher said. "But amidst all of this, I feel proud of what we've given them. I think we've made a significant contribution to their church...I think a real hard-nosed operation might have taken them off ten years ago."

Will Continue Priesthood At Another Parish Fr. Downey Retiring As St. Joseph's Pastor

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Like the closed General Dynamics shipyard, St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point has had its share of ups and downs, too.

The Washington Street church was built in 1917 during the midst of World War I when 20,000 workers were employed at the yard. Then, the armistice came and work ceased. As a result, people found it difficult to pay for the new church.

Then, in 1927, a convent was built for the church school. As the parish prepared to pay for it, the Great Depression of 1929 hit.

Many years later, in 1988, a new $1.5 million church hall was built after the yard closed. The first day the hall opened in September, 1988, it rained and water ruined the hall floor. Since then, water has come in on two other occasions, the most recent two weeks ago, because the rain backs up on Pray St.

Like the shipyard, St. Joseph's Church has experienced many changes. In a month or two, the church will begin another transition when its pastor, Fr. Joseph Downey, retires to take on another assignment.

However, unlike the shipyard's closing, Fr. Downey sees his departure as a positive step.

"I've been here 20 years and the parish deserves a change, a change is good. Somebody else can come in and accomplish a lot more than the last pastor."

"People should give the new pastor a chance to do what he wants and to make what changes he wants," he explained.

Fr. Downey's priesthood spans 45 years. He was ordained by Cardinal Richard Cushing in Holy Cross Cathedral in Boston June 29, 1945. He was assigned to St. Raphael's in West Medford from 1945-48; St. Paul's in Hingham from 1947-55; Our Lady of Lourdes in Jamaica Plain from 1955-63; St. Thomas in Salem/Peabody from 1963-67 and St. Joseph's in Hyde Park from 1967-70.

On August 13, 1970, he became pastor of St. Joseph's. "I thought I was privileged to come here," Fr. Downey recalls. "I remember the first day I walked into the church and saw the beautiful church and thought 'that's going to be your first parish.'"

"The people here are very warm and love their priests. I was following in the footsteps of Monsignor John Alston who had been pastor here for 25 years who was very much loved.

FR. JOSEPH DOWNEY, who has given countless sermons from the pulpit in St. Joseph's Church in Quincy is retiring as pastor after 20 years.

"Monsignor Alston and myself were blessed with many wonderful curates. This parish has been noted for, you might say, breaking in a lot of young priests," Fr. Downey said, noting the church will celebrate its 75th anniversary in 1992.

At age 70, Fr. Downey is the oldest active priest in Quincy. That fact alone played a large part in his decision to retire.

"I'm 70 years old going on 90," says the witty pastor. "Twenty-five percent of my classmates are retired."

Besides being pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Fr. Downey is pastor of St. Joseph's School which has classes in grades kindergarten through eighth.

"It's too hard to be pastor of a school—it's like being pastor of two parishes. There's so much work it kind of wears on you when you get older."

Fr. Downey admits he has guilty feelings toward leaving St. Joseph's. He's also a little scared.

"I have feelings of guilt that I'm leaving these people that I like so much and have meant so much to me." Referring to the Stoughton police chief who recently stepped down and was anxious about his retirement, Fr. Downey said, "It's the same way with me. I'm going to leave here and be very important because I'm the only pastor of St. Joseph's church that's living."

"I'm kind of important because of that I am going to go to another parish where I'll possibly be the substitute janitor. It is kind of a concern to be leaving a busy parish and then going to another place where I'll just be another worker in the parish under another pastor."

One accomplishment that Fr. Downey will take with him is the new $1.5 million school hall.

"It was a beautiful labor of love," he says.

"Pastors come up to you and say how many convents have you built and how many churches have you built. Well, I felt helpless because the only thing I built before the school hall as I put a new toilet in the church and that's the extent of my building."

Turning serious, he says, "to build this hall was a labor of joy and it proved how much people were kind to you."

Fr. Downey praised and thanked all the volunteers who helped make the new school hall a reality. Others have donated time and money to many other parish projects and activities.

He noted one parishioner, Georgette Nickerson, donated $200,000 toward the hall and another $150,000 for a 60-space parking lot across from the church. The lot is adorned with a large marble statue of St. Joseph.

Others have been just as giving in their own way. For example, a professional painter has volunteered to paint the outside of the church.

If there is one disappointment, Fr. Downey says it's not having one man with a vocation to the priesthood. Although four men were encouraged to enter the priesthood after attending St. Joseph's Charismatic program," Fr. Downey adds, "every priest would love to have someone to replace him."

As for his new assignment, Fr. Downey said he'll be reassigned to another church near Brockton. When and where won't be revealed until a new pastor at St. Joseph's is named, perhaps by Sept. 1 or Oct. 1.

For Fr. Downey, Brockton evokes memories of Rocky Marciano, the world heavyweight boxing champion from 1952-56 who came from Brockton. He once had an autographed photo of Marciano given to him by a priest at St. Patrick's. Fr. Downey was an altar boy for him in Newburyport when he was growing up.

The priest, who gave communion to Marciano's mother, gave Downey the boxer's photo.

As he left Brockton with the photo, Fr. Downey headed for Norwood to bless the home of one of his friends.

"I went into the house and there was this 10-year-old boy and I wanted to brag as I do and I showed him my autographed picture of Rocky Marciano. A half hour later when I was leaving I asked for my picture and the kid cried," he recalls.

"The Kid said 'ge gave me that picture.' I really only owned it for 15 minutes and so I went out in the car and cried because I lost my picture of Rocky Marciano."

Asked how he would like the parishioners of St. Joseph's Church to remember him, Fr. Downey closes his eyes, and pauses to concentrate. Putting his hands together in front of him, he replies, "I'd just like to be remembered as a spiritual father and a pastor who tried to give them advice concerning life, concerning the church."

"I'd like to be remembered as a pastor who challenged everybody to be better spiritually than they are right now."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

WHO AM I?

I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world.
I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations.

I do not spare anyone. My victims are the rich and the poor; the old and the young; the weak and the strong.
I can be found casting my shadow over every field of labor.

I can and do hurt thousands of wage earners each year.

I hover in unseen places; I do most of my work silently. You are warned against me, but you do not heed me.

I bring sickness, dishonor, and death. I destroy. I crush and maim. I take all. I give nothing. Yet, few avoid me.

I am your worst enemy.

WHO AM I?

I am CARELESSNESS... Author Unknown

Saturday A Washout

Race Week A Success Despite Weather

By TOM SULLIVAN

Despite the torrential rains which canceled racing Saturday, Quincy Bay Race Week Association president Dick Hendry was pleased with the results of last week's 53rd edition.

"Things went along well except for the Saturday downpours and I was especially pleased with the number of boats on the inside line," said Hendry, whose father, Frank, was the second president of the association in 1939. Incidentally, the Hendrys are the first second-generation family to hold the position.

"We had a wonderful turnout for the inside line and had some highly competitive races. But I was disappointed with the number of boats in the outside line.

"The Turnabouts, in particular, had some excellent races. Our experiment with morning races laid an egg and that will be the last time we'll try that. I was against it but had several requests for it and I decided to try it, but never again.

"The Marine Parade was outstanding, as usual, with an excellent turnout of boats.

There were fewer decorated boats than I had expected, but Saturday's weather was not conducive to decorating boats."

Adding excitement to the racing on Friday was the appearance of a shark opposite Quincy Yacht Club.

A skipper in a Boston Whaler saw the shark and notified Quincy assistant harbor masters Sal Gallinaro and Al Petta, who were patrolling the bay in the City of Quincy-owned boat.

The basking shark whose fins were out of the water, went out to deeper waters and things went along as scheduled.

The Willys of Wessagusset Yacht Club have been dominating the Laser division.

Last year Jack won the title and Sunday his daughter Janese won the final race of the series in dramatic style and won this year's title by overtaking clubmate Joey Hanrahan.

Bob Reis of Hingham Y.C. won his fourth 210 championship, beating out clubmate Sue Epstein.

Joe Carven, Jr., who has made a habit of winning the Hustler title, won again in the 14-boat fleet, adding

The Orange Fleet was dominated by John Mullane who won all four races. Sammy DeJong of Hull was another QBRW trophy to his growing list.

Trophy Day will be held on second with Ed Cotter of Hull third.

Other finishers included: 4.

Oct. 7 at 2 p.m. at the Squantum Yacht Club when awards will go to the top finishers in all classes as well as the Marine Parade winners.

Harvey, Cottage Park. Eric Vissochi of Town River won the Novice Laser title.

Jago Wins Best Decorated Boat Honors

The annual Marine Parade at Quincy Bay Race Week drew over 50 boats past the judge's reviewing boat at Town River Yacht Club.

The boats then proceeded to parade past the other participating clubs Sunday afternoon.

Maura Jago won first prize for Best Decorated Boat. Jago, of Squantum Yacht Club, decorated the "Sekema" in tribute to Squantum Yacht Club's 100th Anniversary.

Most Original Boat went to Norman Gilblair of Germantown Yacht Club. "The Boxer II" crew converted Gilblair's power boat into "The Little Mermaid" with a live "mermaid" on deck.

South Shore Yacht Club's Barry Wood won Best Decorated Auxiliary for the handsome display of flags on his sailboat "Narrow Escape."

Inside Line Committee Makes Right Decisions

Although the Outside Line did get in a race Saturday, Inside Line Chairman Bruce Swan said the Inside Line Committee decided to cancel Saturday.

Swan cited the relative inexperience of the Inside Line sailors as part of the reason for cancellation along with the heavy rain and lightning.

The committee tried to get in two races on Sunday but light winds forced cancellation of the morning race.

Inside Line Committee members also included Shirley Swan, Arlen Freil, Bud Freil, Marion Knudsen, Mike Knudsen, Ed Synan and Jean Burgess.

Squantum YC Wins 3 Outside Line Classes

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Squantum Yacht Club is celebrating its 100th anniversary year and Squantum skippers gave the club a boost by winning three of five Outside Line classes at Quincy Bay Race Week.

Joe Carven II, of Squantum Yacht Club, finished first overall in the Hustler Class edging out clubmates Harry Carleton (second) and Henry Welsh (third). Welsh edged Paul Rugg of Squantum by 1/4 point for third overall.

Carven, both of Squantum, placed fifth and sixth and Alex Randall of Hingham Yacht Club, last year's champ, took seventh.

Bonnie Marcel was eighth, Mary Gallagher ninth, Steve Morrissey tenth, Carl Wicklund eleventh, Doug Randall twelfth and Dick Casey thirteenth.

Joe Carven II, Welsh, Ted Randall, Alex Randall and Marcel each won individual races in the five race series.

Squantum's Ken MacLeod skipped the Flying Gull to two wins in four starts to capture the Thunderbird Class title. Quincy's Don Kavanagh of Savin Hill Yacht Club and Peter Gilson of South Boston Yacht Club tied for second. Defending champion Brian Pitt won the final two races of the series but missed Thursday's race and finished fourth overall.

Dave Lewis of Squantum had two wins and two seconds in the Tornado Class to earn a first place overall finish. Cindy Smith of Eastern Yacht Club was second with Marianne Borowski and Mike Marcel, both of Squantum, placing third and fourth.

The Bermuda Cup Ocean Race, part of Quincy Bay Race Week, has been rescheduled for Sunday, Aug. 19, at 11 a.m.

The Ocean Race was cancelled Saturday because of rain and lightning. The PHRF sailors tried again Sunday but there was insufficient wind to start a race, according to Ocean Race Committee Chairman Lynn Ingram.

Quincy's Ralph DiMatia will be trying to defend his title in the A Fleet. Last year Bob Garvie won the B Fleet and Bea Sprague was tops in the C Fleet.

The starting line will be off Channel Bell #3, Mark #13 on Point Allerton, Hull, near the race circular.

Rape Prevention At Home, In Car

Precautions to take at home:

Make your home as burglarproof as possible. Install locks on all windows and doors and use them.

Always ask a repairman or deliveryman for identification before opening the door. Check with their supervisor by phone if you are suspicious.

If someone wants to use your phone, offer to make the call for them rather than letting this person into your home.

Never list your first name on your mailbox or in the telephone directory, use initials.

Report lewd or obscene phone calls. When you receive such a call, hang up immediately or blow a loud whistle into the mouthpiece.

It is better to enter an elevator alone than with a strange man or men. Be sure the elevator has not been summoned to the roof or basement before getting on. Stand near the control panel so that you can push the alarm if necessary.

Remove your door keys from your purse before you get to your door. Your keys will be ready to open the door and you don't have to stand in front of your door fumbling in your purse.

If someone drives you home, ask them to wait until you are safely inside before they leave.

Precautions on the street:

Know where you are going and don't get lost. Get clear directions ahead of time and have a phone number for your destination.

Walk briskly and confidently and be alert to your surroundings.

Walk close to the curb, except when a car pulls up. Choose well-lighted streets and avoid streets where there are lots of bars.

Be familiar with your own frequently used routes.

If you are walking and get the feeling that you are being followed, turn around and look. If anyone looks suspicious, cross the street and walk in the opposite direction.

If you are walking and being followed by a car, walk in the opposite direction that the car is traveling and go to the nearest open store or neighbor. Report this to the police as soon as possible.

If you are approached or grabbed on the street make a scene and try to run away. Scream, yell, throw a rock or shoe through the nearest lighted window to attract attention.

Precautions in the car:

Park your car in a well-lit spot. Keep the doors locked at all times including when you are riding in the car.

Look into the back seat before you get into the car. Always carry a road flare to signal when you have car trouble. It should be outside the car, not you.

If you have car trouble and have to pull over, keep your doors locked and windows up. If no one is nearby, jump out and raise the hood and get back into the car and lock the door. If someone stops and offers to help you, ask them to call the police for you. Do not open your door.

Do not stop to help a motorist. Think of your safety first, and be a good samaritan by stopping at the nearest phone and notifying the police.

Separate your house and car keys when you leave your car for repairs.

Do Not label your keys with your name or address. Never pick up a hitchhiker.

If you believe you are being followed by another car, don't pull into your driveway. Drive straight to the nearest police or fire station and honk your horn until someone comes out. Do not leave your car until you are sure that it is safe.

WEEK OF: August 16

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You are a natural leader and a born trendsetter; artistic gifts are impressive, though you're easily sidetracked. Work at focusing on one key project at a time, and the coming year can be one of the most impressive on recent record. Financial gains may be a theme of late 1990, early 1991.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19

Cooperation arrives from a most surprising source. Visitors cheer up surroundings. Crafts and other artistic pursuits may include a profitmaking angle; explore the possibilities.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20

It is sharp but avoid sarcasm, especially when directed toward sensitive souls. Friendship circle is expanding. Tributes to you pour in from various sources and places.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20

Travel and travel ideas are bright; but avoid procrastination. Assignment may be postponed; don't hesitate to seek out alternate projects. You play the role of diplomat through this period.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22

The reminders that you issue during this week are taken seriously, as are the words of praise. Platonic friendship may be launched during this period. Weekend sees some interesting offers come your way.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21

Your sense of style is impressive; indeed, your creative touches brighten any job during this period. Social tie-ups appear in the area of communication. Good week for writing poetry.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22

Younger relatives make you feel good about yourself. Be extra-vigilant in the areas of financial and health reviews. Plum assignment may not be quite as exciting as you predicted, but do your best.

LEO — July 23 - August 22

An opinionated friend or coworker may benefit from constructive criticism—just don't try to beat the individual at his/her own game. A welcome addition may arrive over the weekend.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22

Modern conveniences may give way to old-fashioned approaches in a week that favors tradition and nostalgia. You may be running for a post or nominating or campaigning for others.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22

Causes that are dear to your heart receive major boosts at this time, thanks largely to your hard work. Sense of perspective is critical. You serve as a role model to family members.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21

You have a way with words, and the week may find you telling stories to an enraptured audience. You have a way of giving others a lift; this is a prime time for putting this gift to work.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22

Powers of persuasion are noteworthy. Good week for pooling talents with others and for group endeavors generally. Outstanding advice comes your way, though it may not be obvious at first.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20

Don't hesitate to seek out additional information, whether embarking on a key work project or planning a social event. Trading is a favored activity. Explore work options with special care.

HENRY McDANIEL shows one of his landscape watercolors of a fisherman's cottage he once saw in a remote area of Nova Scotia. "This tells a story," he says. "I love the feeling of this one."

Henry McDaniel: A Young 84 And A Talented Artist

By JANE ARENA
Henry McDaniel of Quincy is not your average 84 year old man.

This 84 year old sells his original watercolor paintings of fishing scenes for upwards of $4,000.

McDaniel is a well respected and celebrated artist, who has gained an international reputation as one of America's leading sportsman painters.

His focus is on scenes of salmon and trout fishing, which, aside from his painting and playing the piano, is one of the great passions of his life. Some of his works, in fact have been auctioned to benefit fish and waterfowl protection.

Most of his paintings are of places he's been fishing: remote areas of Vermont, Nova Scotia, Montreal, and New Hampshire.

His work captures moments of the sport, always amid the grandeur of nature, with rolling rivers, mountains, or grassy beaches.

"I love nature," he says. "Whether it's people, rivers, beaches, grass or whatever, I just love to try to create the feeling. I'm just making an illusion of what's there."

His preferred technique is to take his polaroid camera with him on his fishing trips, which, he says are becoming less frequent these days, and capture a few especially interesting scenes on film.

Printed up in fullcolor slides, he takes them back to his makeshift studio, which is actually the long, narrow hallway on the second floor of his Quincy home, and sets to work.

But McDaniel doesn't simply make a copy of the slide.

"There's no way you can copy a polaroid," he says. "When people think I've copied a photograph I get mad."

Instead, he aims to capture the general mood of the scene, and enhances it physically to suit his own creative vision. He changes the composition, adding a rock here, taking out a tree there, until he has on canvas what he sees in his mind's eye.

Sometimes, he says, even the fishermen in the paintings are later additions.

But some of the detail in his work is so vivid and so exact, that it's easy to mistake some of his paintings for photography at a quick glance.

Another technique he has used is to actually take out his easel and paints at the scene and try to capture it live, so to speak.

These paintings, and there are several of them, have such a different look and feel to them that one would hardly imagine they are by the same man, save for the ever-present natural settings. Where his others are realism, these could be classified as impressionist paintings.

He explains it in simpler terms:

"That's what happens when you're painting in a hurry before the light runs out," he says. "I can do that, but I'm never satisfied. I always want to do more composition. I painted for years and years on the spot, to get the feeling of nature, but then I went into the studio where I could work without wasps and black flies."

McDaniel's studio is crowded with his works. He Sheets Backs Residency For License Board

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A proposal requiring all members of the city's License Board to live in Quincy has the general support of Mayor James Sheets.

Commenting Tuesday on the proposed residency requirement introduced by Councillor Michael Cheney, Sheets said, "If it comes to me, I will sign it, although I would have to be satisfied with the details of it."

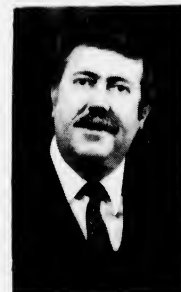

The ordinance drew support and opposition from councillors at last week's special City Council meeting. Since the license board was set up by a state act, City Clerk John Gillis said the act would have to be amended to make the residency requirement legal.

To amend it, five of the nine city councillors would have to approve the proposal and the mayor would then have to sign it, Gillis explained.

The proposal was referred to the Ordinance Committee and will be brought up again at a future meeting.

There are five members on the board, two of whom now live in Quincy. As the city voter registrar, Gillis' residency is already required.

Public Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue lives in Hull, Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey resides in Weymouth and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell lives in

JAMES SHEETS

JOHN GILLIS

Stoughton.

Although Captain Paul Nestor, acting police chief, resides in Quincy, the two officers in contention for the position do not. Sgt. William Falco lives in Weymouth and Lt. Francis Mullen lives in Hingham.

Sheets is expected to appoint a new police chief next month.

Because the license board's decisions typically impact the city neighborhoods, Cheney said board members should live with their own decisions.

The board votes on all business licenses, including permanent and temporary licenses to sell and serve liquor and restaurant permits. The board also monitors businesses which have received licenses.

Cheney noted most towns have their board of selectmen as its licensing authority. Selectmen are elected residents.

Sheets said he supports the residency requirement concept.

Health Dept. Urges Check Mosquito Breeding Places

Quincy Public Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue has released information for Quincy residents on eliminating mosquito breeding places in yards and homes.

The following areas are places where mosquitos can breed in backyards. Every attempt should be made to eliminate such breeding grounds for mosquitos in the areas listed, Gallahue said.

- Water containers of any kind: Get rid of old tires, tin cans, bottles, jars, buckets, drums, etc., or keep them empty. Wheelbarrows, small boats, etc., should be stored upside down.

- Wading pools/swimming pools: Children's wading pools should be emptied weekly and stored indoors or upside down when not in use. Infrequently used swimming pools should be emptied or tightly covered. Back wash from pools should be properly disposed of and not allowed to puddle on the ground. When a pool is drained, do so properly so that no run-off is allowed to accumulate.

- Pet dishes/birdbaths: Empty watering pans of pets daily, scrub and change water in birdbaths twice weekly. Animal pens should be kept cleaned and maintained free from any standing water or wastes.

- Cut flowers and plant cuttings: Change water and scrub vases holding flowers or cuttings twice each week (both inside and outside the house) or grow cuttings in sand.

- Roofs and gutters:

Check cave-troughs and rain leaders to see if any are stopped up or sagging. Flat roofs should also be checked for standing water and roof drains inspected to insure they are free of obstructions.

- Leaky faucets and hoses: Repair all leaking exterior faucets, hose bibs, hose nozzles and hose connections.

- Drainage basins: Monitor sump pump pits, dry wells or drainage basins to eliminate stagnant water where mosquitos can breed.

- Ornamental ponds: Consider stocking ponds with fish. Certain fish will feed on mosquito larvae.

- Brooks and drains: Be sure not to dump trash, leaves, grass or tree trimmings in brooks and drains so that water may flow as freely as possible.

- Hollow tree stumps: Fill hollow stumps with sand so that standing water cannot collect.

- Landscaping: Home-owners who are carrying out landscape projects on their grounds should make sure that grading work does not create low areas where puddles could form.

5 Firefighters To Be Rehired

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Five of Quincy's 18 firefighters who recently were served layoff notices will be rehired and the city is actively trying to place more of them.

On Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets said one firefighter will remain in the department's signal maintenance division while the other four will fill vacancies. Two vacancies are in the fire department and the other two are in the Public Works Department.

The vacancies were created by retirements, the mayor noted.

In addition, letters have been sent to 32 communities around Quincy indicating the city has young, well-qualified firemen available for hiring. Sheets said he has already received a letter from the Town of Randolph which will be hiring firefighters.

"I hope (Randolph) will make an offer to some of our men," the mayor said.

In addition, the mayor has learned Massport, the managing authority of Logan Airport, is seeking crash crewmen which need fire training qualifications to be hired.

Sheets said he will send Massport a letter explaining there are well-qualified firefighters available from Quincy. He will also follow up the letters to Randolph and Massport with phone calls.

Earlier this month, 18 Quincy firefighters were served layoff notices. Since then, Sheets said his administration has been "actively trying to find jobs for them."

Hoping the city's financial situation "turns upward" soon, the mayor added, "We hope some of them will come back to us."

The administration is reviewing the city's recall rights to the 13 firefighters who will be laid off Aug. 31.

The mayor said he believes the city has recall rights for "at least two years" but "we're checking into it with civil service."

A signal maintenance man was going to be laid off but was brought back because he is working on a special project which will fund his position over the remainder of FY 91.

Sheets said the project, which calls for fire alarms at the MWRA's Fore River Staging Area to be connected to Central Fire Headquarters, will generate $30,000 if four men work on it.

If the signal maintenance worker were laid off, the city would lose the funding. Sheets explained, since four men must do the work. The mayor will ask the city council to appropriate the funding from the MWRA to cover the worker's salary through June 30, 1991.

In addition, firefighters Darrin DeCoste and Robert Shea will fill two vacancies in the fire department. The vacancies were created after two other firefighters filed for retirement disability.

Also, firefighters Kevin Bythrow and Kevin Unger will replace two DPW employees who have retired. Both men are skilled in heavy equipment operation, the mayor noted.

In announcing the transfers, Sheets said there appears to be some confusion over the hiring freeze he implemented shortly after being sworn in as mayor in January.

"The hiring freeze ended at the end of the FY 90 budget (June 30, 1990). We do anticipate difficulties when we make up the FY '92 budget in December.

"At the present time, we are not creating new positions unless it is some sort of reorganization and we are selectively filling vacancies," the mayor explained.

Although two firemen will be transferred to the Dept. of Public Works, Sheets noted some vacancies in the department will not be filled.

"We will continue that policy until we know exactly where we stand in the area of free cash for FY '90," Sheets said, adding the city's free cash should be certified within the next two weeks.

Besides the fire department layoffs, 22 teachers are expected to be laid off.

Although no police officers are being laid off, 11 vacancies will not be filled. The mayor said there was no funding in the FY '91 budget to fill eight patrolmen and three superior officer positions.

Sheets To Seek Funding For Mosquito Control

Relief may be on the way for residents who are annoyed hassled and bitten by summer's biggest pest: mosquitoes.

On Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets said he will look into obtaining funding for a mosquito control program.

Council President DeCristofaro asked the mayor to pursue local, state and federal funding after receiving numerous complaints from residents this spring and summer.

Funding, DeCristofaro wrote in a letter to Sheets, would "enable the city to have a prevention/maintenance program in place at the beginning of next year's spring/summer season."

The mayor agreed something must be done to control the mosquito population in Quincy. Sheets, who recently returned to the city after an eight-day outdoor trip to Maine, said, "There are more mosquitos in Quincy than in the Allagash wilderness."

Perhaps Silber Candidacy Is Ripe And Should Go

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Back in 1968, I was a young 20-year-old college student, registered Democrat and political idealist. I can remember going to a Downtown Boston rally for then-Vice President Hubert Humphrey flanked by Kevin White, Ted Kennedy, Jordans, Filenes and Gilchrist's telling folks that government had an obligation to protect those living in the twilight—the very young, the very old, the very sick and the very poor.

During the presidential campaign filled with violence and anger, those were courageous words for a candidate to speak when most other candidates that year were funnels for public anger.

Today, I'm older—perhaps a bit wiser with time—and, sadly, not the idealist I once had hoped to be. I know that state government in 1990 is in trouble and I know that programs like Medicaid are costing more and more each year.

I recognize as on-leave Boston University president John Silber does that the Medicaid budget has the potential to destroy the economy but I refuse to go the route of candidate Silber and ration health care for the elderly.

Yes, I know that the state Medicaid budget is $1.3 billion out of the latest $13 billion state budget. Yes, I know that the elderly, only 19 percent of the Medicaid caseload, attract 50 percent of its budget. And yes, I know that 75 percent of the state's nursing home residents have come to depend on Medicaid. But I am not ready to play God by adopting an idea that just started out in Oregon.

Democrat John Silber is running for governor in the, apparent, same mold as Ed King did back in 1978 or when Independent George Wallace and Republican Richard Nixon ran for the presidency 22 years ago. Funnels for anger usually do not lead well because politics to these kinds of folks reaches down to the lowest common denominator and is hardly a hallmark for leadership.

Silber—in pushing the Oregon plan—is having a hard time seeing the people being impacted by his cost-effective rationing. When he tries to invoke John Kennedy and life's unfairness, he stretches the imagination. I remember John Kennedy's commitment to making government work for all people regardless of income, race or age and John Silber is no John Kennedy.

But when I hear John Silber—quoting the Bible—saying that the elderly "who have come to the fullness of years, must make place for the next generation," I am reminded of former Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm, the Democrat who caused such a storm back in 1984 when he said certain old people had "a duty to die" and make way for the next generation.

Sad, how in one generation, we've gone from the Hubert Humphreys and Bobby Kennedys to the Richard Lamm and John Silbers and how far—also—we've gone from government serving people's needs to people balancing government budgets on their backs. Silber says "Shakespeare was right when he said 'Ripeness is all.' When you've had a long life and you're ripe, then it's time to go." Perhaps, it should be the Silber candidacy that is ripe and ready to go!

We Are The Cure

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The reality of the Massachusetts Fiscal Crisis is that we actually can solve half the problems ourselves if we all will take the time this November and vote. Between now and the September and November elections we as taxpayers must decide whether to:

- Continue to vote for those who have brought this great state down near bankruptcy.

- Continue to stay away from the polls and thus make the votes of those who support the entrenched incumbents count more heavily or

- We can rise up in protest and vote for new faces as the first important step in finally taking the state government out of the hands of the small group now running things for their own personal benefit.

The first that you can do is very simple, if you have not done so already, register to vote. Your vote will count. Be sure to listen very carefully to the candidates and vote for the one who best represents your views. Start working now to persuade as many people as possible to accompany you to the polls this fall. Finally, once these officials are elected be sure to stay informed and constantly monitor them to be sure they are representing you.

The responsibility for a true recovery rests with all of us, we are the cure.

The Quincy Evening News

Councillor Peter Kolson came into the office the other day with some yellowed, brittle and torn pieces of a newspaper.

"Thought you might be interested," he said. "The prices in the ads are really something."

What he had was the remnants of a special advertising section of the old Quincy Evening News — Quincy's then other daily newspaper — dated May 15, 1934.

There's an interesting story to The News. With a little luck, it might have survived a life-and-death struggle with the then Quincy Patriot Ledger. And, might have been Quincy's lone daily today instead of the Ledger.

But first, as Kolson noted, the prices in the advertisements back then were really something.

You could get a year-old Chevrolet business coupe for $435. Morgan's at 1454 Hancock St. was offering a family size new steel refrigerator for $12.85 and a table model radio (complete with tubes) for the same price. You could pick up a pair of men's slacks at Donaher's for $1.95.

Foy's Market was offering two cans of Heinz soups for 25 cents, three bars of Lux soap for 18 cents and five rolls of toilet paper for 25 cents. A can of fancy ripe tomatoes cost 10 cents — or six cans for 58 cents. You could also get three bottles of India pale ale for 25 cents.

If you were apartment hunting there were a number of choices: three rooms and a den for $25 a month; four rooms, $28 and $30; five rooms, $35. Or, six rooms plus sun parlor and steam heat for $40.

Of course, everything is relevant. That was 56 years ago. Income back in those Depression days matched the price of goods.

Those pieces of The News found by Kolson brought some memories and some old stories.

You'd have to be somewhat of an oldtimer to remember The News which was started up by a former unhappy mayor to compete with the Ledger.

With two dailies the news competition was really keen and the battle for advertising a bit on the cut-throat side.

SPARGO

Ed Spargo, of Sherman St., Wollaston, who worked at The News as a reporter, sports editor and finally, general manager, recalls The News, which lasted less than a decade, was started in September, 1928 by former Mayor Perley Barbour.

Barbour had served as mayor from 1925 to 1926. "He was still feuding with the Ledger over politics," Spargo recalls. "He didn't think the Ledger had treated him fairly while he was mayor."

That has had a familiar ring to it for other mayors and other politicians through the years.

KOLSON

The Ledger, for example, had a feud going with Mayor Thomas Burgin around 1940-41. Photographers according to one story, were ordered not to take Burgin's picture or to put him on the end for cropping. At flag-raising, the photographers were told to wait until the flag was in front of Burgin's face before snapping the picture. The cause of the feud, reportedly, was that the city had been renting space in the Ledger building and Burgin pulled the offices out of there. The Ledger was irked over losing the rent revenue.

BURGIN

Whatever the cause, the Ledger and Burgin eventually patched things up.

Barbour owned a Brockton wetting company and was close to the Fuller family that owned the Brockton Enterprise.

As Spargo remembers it, the Enterprise loaned out their general manager, William Shields, to help get The News off the ground.

The paper was located on Hancock St., across from Quincy Masonic Temple where Toddie's Jewelry is today.

The News had some good newspapermen, among them Jimmy Burke, Izzy Zack, Spargo and Homer Jenks. The latter went on to serve in the London Bureau of United Press during World War II and later became Sunday editor at the Boston Herald-Traveler and editor at the Boston Herald. He just recently retired.

A kid by the name of Walter Green who was taking photos for The News went on to become one of the top photographers with the Associated Press. And a young reporter by the name of Jim Devlin also went on to the AP.

And, also on the staff was Percy Lane. Percy was a little temperamental in his younger days but a real lovable guy.

According to a favorite story back then, Percy would frequently get upset or frustrated over something at The News. He'd then sit down at his typewriter and hammer out his resignation. After about the 15th time, to everyone's surprise, it was accepted. And Percy went over to The Ledger where he became a popular fixture and notorious punster. He also became clerk of the City Council committees.

I personally have fond memories of The News. I got my first newspaper by-line in it when I was in the fifth grade at the Pollard School. The News ran a page or two once a week for students to submit articles.

For me, there was no turning back after that. I decided then and there I wanted to work for a newspaper.

I later became a reporter at The Ledger and although The News was long gone by then I had opportunities to examine it while doing research for articles at the Thomas Crane Library.

The library had both The Ledger and The News in bound volumes back then and I used to like to compare them. Frankly, I thought The News was a better paper: better written, better layout. At least the issues I compared were.

The city really couldn't support two daily newspapers back then and it was inevitable that one would have to go.

The News had moved to larger quarters on Washington St. where Hassan Brothers later located. The Ledger and News were in a real struggle for survival. The News came out with a Sunday issue complete with color comics.

The cost of that may have been the crowning blow. The Ledger won the battle in May, 1937. It bought out The News.

One story circulating at the time was that the Ledger was shaky and if The News had hung on a little longer, it might have won. But apparently the Ledger had been able to hold onto enough of its advertising to make the difference.

But with a little luck, they say, The Quincy Evening News could have been your local daily today.

Will there ever be another second daily in Quincy? Probably not.

Now, if I should hit Megabucks ...

In 1900, the legal age for marriage in nearly half the states was 14 for males, 12 for females.

Henry McDaniel: A Young 84 And A Talented Artist

can't remember how many paintings he has done, and by his own estimation he's sold "hundreds and hundreds of them," but many more are housed, temporarily at least, in his studio.

Along both sides of the hallway his paintings and prints are piled four or five deep up against the walls. Some are framed originals, some only matted. Some have a price tag attached and others do not, as though he hasn't quite decided whether certain ones are for sale.

Throughout his home others of his paintings and prints hang framed on the walls, perhaps personal favorites never intended for sale.

At the end of the hallway studio is a large, uncurtained window which lets in natural light. Unfortunately, McDaniel notes, it also lets in the summer heat which is the one thing that prevents him from painting during the summer months. "I can't stand the heat," he tells you.

The easel by the window holds his latest painting, which is one of the occasional hunting scenes he does. Although he doesn't hunt, he tells you he has "enough common sense" about the subject to paint a convincing picture.

The land in this particular scene belongs to his son who lives in the mountains of Northfield, Vermont. It's a fall scene, colorful with fiery autumn leaves and the muted browns of the ground.

"I just tried to capture the jumble of everything," he says.

Looking through his paintings in his studio, and extracting them by way of a filing system only he understands, he pulls a few of his favorites.

One, entitled "Vermont Brook In The Fall," has been on an exhibition tour in New York, he notes. It is of a brook named "Bingo," and is done in muted tones.

"I'm fascinated by the textures of the old log and the rock," he says.

One of his prints, "Dry Fishing on the Upper Connecticut," hangs on the wall of his studio. This was selected by The Angler's Club of New York to be printed in a limited 400 copy edition.

In 1973 these prints were sold for $65 each. Recently, McDaniel has learned, one of them sold for $1,100.

One of his personal favorites is a painting he calls "Greenrocks," which, unlike most of his works, highlights people rather than natural settings (although it is set on a beach). The inspiration came a couple of years ago on a September evening on Cape Cod, he explains. He took a photo of an old man who had just misplaced a camera. The old man sits on a bench while a little boy is in the process of looking for it. Like everything he's done, it is a moment captured.

"I had more fun doing that than anything I can remember," he says. "I loved working the flesh tones of the young boy."

McDaniel has a story for each one of his paintings. Each one is a memory.

Not surprisingly then, it's often hard for him to sell them. "You hate to part with them," he says, "because you put so much of yourself into them. Some of them I hate to sell."

But it's obvious at the same time that he thrives on the pleasure his paintings give to others. And most of all, he loves the process of the art, the act of creation.

"I have a lot of fun," he says. "It'll keep you from getting moldy."

There must be something to that—there's nothing at all moldy about Henry McDaniel.

Lone Gunman Gets $2,511 At Quincy Point Tavern

A lone gunman, posing as a worker from the Fore River Shipyard, stole $2,511 from Charles Dan's Tavern on Des Moines Rd., Quincy Point, and fled in a hail of bullets.

The man got in line with shipyard workers who were cashing their checks, grabbed the money and ran, exchanging revolver shots with Dan as he dashed out the door.

He was last seen speeding toward Quincy Square in a black Plymouth sedan.

OKAY OLD COLONY ABANDONMENT

An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended that the New Haven Railroad be authorized to abandon its Old Colony Line in view of heavy losses on passenger service.

Richard D. Grant of the State Department of Public Utilities called the report an indication that "the policy of Washington seems to be to throw New England to the wolves."

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall called a meeting to prepare a fight against the recommendation before a scheduled ICC hearing Sept. 9 on the reorganization of the New Haven.

But a spokesman for the Bethlehem Steel Co. denied it, saying that the act applies only to the steel business and not to the company's shipyards.

Sheets Supports Residency For License Board Members

"I don't think you can fully appreciate and understand this city unless you live in it. As positions are filled by new people, one of the requirements should be that they live in the city."

In fact, the mayor said he prefers all city positions, especially department heads, be filled by Quincy residents.

"I would like to see all the people who work for the city to live in the city," he said, adding he "looks for" Quincy residents to fill vacancies.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath told the council the ordinance could not be applied retroactively to the present board. The mayor agrees with the "grandfather" clause, saying he has had no problems with the current board.

"They do a good job but future members need to be in this city," Sheets added.

Gillis disagrees, "I see nothing wrong with the current set up."

Low Cal But Delicious Lasagne

It's traditional that each time we're invited to the Hunt's summer home on the Cape that I make the lasagne. Only this time, it was made with skim milk ricotta and low fat cottage cheese.

I did cheat a little with shredded cheddar cheese, but overall there were much fewer calories for such a satisfying entree. As it was being served, Barbara Hunt announced that it was "low-cal" to the other dinner guests. And out in the deck cooking the low-cal chicken was my husband who had the patience to skin about 4 packages of chicken and then put a light barbecue sauce over it. No one said "where's the skin?"

Even though our friends Peter and Alicia brought a huge arrangement of fruit placed in half a watermelon, some of us still ate freshly made blueberry cake with vanilla ice cream. Oh, well, the next day was Monday and we all went on a diet.

LOW CAL BUT DELICIOUS LASAGNE

(I made 2 Lbs, but this recipe is for one pound)
Tomato sauce
1/4 cup romano cheese (for the mixture)

8 oz package of shredded cheddar

1 egg

1 tsp parsley flakes (or fresh equivalent)

1 Lb skim milk ricotta cheese

1 Lb low fat cottage cheese

While the lasagne is cooking, mix the ricotta cheese and cottage cheese together. Add the egg, the grated romano cheese and the parsley (and salt and pepper if you like).

Slightly grease a large roasting pan and begin to layer the lasagne. First with a little tomato sauce, then the lasagne, then the cheese mixture, sauce, grated cheese, and a sprinkle of cheddar. Continue to layer and top with extra sauce, grated cheese and a sprinkle of cheddar.

Cover and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 30 minutes and then uncovered until bubbly. Let set for about 10 minutes and then cut in squares serving with extra tomato sauce if needed.

YMCA Youth Support Campaign Raises Over $50,000

The South Shore YMCA's annual Youth Support Campaign, which raises money to provide financial aid for YMCA programs to deserving children and families, topped its goal of $50,000.

Over $55,000 was raised by a team of volunteer campaigners, led by Campaign Chairman Mary Wentworth. Mrs. Wentworth at the recent victory celebration, was presented an award for her leadership role and her on-going support for the South Shore YMCA.

A YMCA volunteer for over 18 years, she described her involvement, "I am happy to do anything I can for our Y, because they do so much to help our community, and especially our children."

Ralph Yohe, YMCA General Director said "Mary's dedication to our fund raising campaign is what made it such a success. She inspired her fellow volunteer campaigners to do their best for an important cause we all believe in."

Each year, the South Shore YMCA provides services to people in the community who can not afford the full fee; vital programs like full day child care, camp, before and after school care, swim lessons and much more.

The annual Support Campaign helps the YMCA reach out to these people by helping to bear the costs of these scholarships. Last year, over $40,000 of financial assistance helped 500 individuals and families.

Sheets Hopes Council Will Refine His Anti-Litter Ordinance

Mayor James Sheets is hoping the City Council refines and then approves his anti-litter ordinance.

After raising several questions regarding the proposal's effectiveness and vagueness last week, councillors referred the measure to the Ordinance Committee.

As proposed, the ordinance would authorize the health department to issue civil fines of up to $300 to property owners who fail to keep their property clean and well-maintained.

The ordinance would extend to sidewalks in front of homes and businesses.

At last week's special council meeting, Council

President Ted DeCristofaro said enforcing the ordinance may pose a problem, especially if the alleged violator is an elderly couple or other citizen who cannot be expected to keep property clean at all times.

Other councillors said the ordinance's litter and maintenance terms need to be better defined.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he expected the council to raise questions. He also wants councillors to fine tune the proposal.

"I think it's important to have each of the six ward councillors take a look at it. We don't want to pass an ordinance which is too general and which could be misinterpreted when applied.

"It's an important ordinance but it has to be refined and they are doing the refining," he added.

The mayor said the ordinance is intended to address two major issues: dumpsters which are overlooked and landlords who "never clean up."

"It's an absolute disgrace. We have to have a mechanism to deal with that," Sheets said, referring to landlords who neglect their property. The ordinance is not geared toward subjecting elderly couples who are unable to keep their property clean at all times, he added.

Van Schaick Vows To Fight Toxic Waste Incinerator

If elected, state senate candidate Paul Van Schaick said the fight against Clean Harbors' plan for a toxic waste incinerator will be "the central tenet in all my environmental strategies."

Van Schaick, who is running for the senate seat in the Quincy-Braintree-Holbrook-Avon district, said, "It will take new people in political leadership on Beacon Hill to wage a 'real' war against Clean Harbors."

"Placing an incinerator in a heavily populated area is insane, environmentally self-defeating and in the long run not cost effective."

"One million people live within 10 miles of the proposed Clean Harbors incinerator (in East Braintree). A 240-foot smoke stack will spew deadly chemicals contaminating the population as well as much of the area's surface water," Van Schaick said.

"Children and the elderly will be particularly susceptible to health risks. Also, impacting the public safety of this area will be the number of hazardous waste carrying trucks travelling through neighborhood streets adding to traffic problems with the undeniable potential for toxic spills," he added.

While in office, Van Schaick said he would propose and fight for effective legislation aimed at forcing Clean Harbors out of their present site or out of business. "I will lead government towards focusing on a waste strategy for source reduction whereby, avoiding the generation of hazardous waste."

The candidate would also propose legislation providing industry with incentives to switch from toxic materials to non-toxic materials, penalizing industries refusing to switch when alternative non-toxic materials are available.

"With strong leaders in government, committed to fight for our environment, we can achieve a 50 percent cut in hazardous waste production over several years, thereby eliminating new waste burning incinerators such as Clean Harbors.

"Had we strong government representation," Van Schaick added, "we could have avoided this threatening issue from the beginning."

LAURA DAWSON of Quincy, receives the John A. Caporale Sr. Memorial Scholarship from Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, far left. Looking on are Laura's parents, Mary and Ron Dawson.

Laura Dawson Receives John Caporale Scholarship

Laura Dawson of Quincy was recently presented the John A. Caporale Sr. Memorial Scholarship from Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall at an awards ceremony held at Raynham/Taunton Greyhound Park.

The ceremony was sponsored by the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association.

Dawson, a 1990 graduate of North Quincy High School, was one of four recipients awarded a $500 scholarship. The award will help her with college expenses at Roger Williams College, Rhode Island, where she will study in the fall.

Dawson was also installed a member of the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association.

An honor student at NQHS, she was a member of the school's swim and track teams. Dawson was active in the school choir and was recognized by the Foreign Language Honor Society for her achievement in Spanish.

She also performed a number of community projects including her involvement in several Catholic Youth Organization variety shows, and through her job as a teacher's aide in a local parochial school. She also holds a part-time job after school.

Dawson's active membership in the Girl Scouts of America is the basis of her strong sense of commitment to the environment and her desire to study environmental engineering in college.

"I recognize serious measures which need to be taken to protect the earth," she said.

Her parents, Mary and Ron Dawson, have been members of the Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association in Norfolk County since 1975.

Mary Dawson served on the board of directors for several years and spent two years as recording secretary for the association.

The John A. Caporale Sr. Memorial Scholarship is presented annually in the name of "Cappy," a founding father of the Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association. Candidates must be a high school graduate and accepted to an institution of higher learning.

Eligibility requirements include being a son or daughter of a Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriff and/or Deputy Sheriff, and/or an employee of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

DEVIL'S GRIP

"I felt as if I were having a heart attack!" one victim exclaimed. The disease variously called Devil's rip, Bornholm disease, and epidemic pleurodynia can, in fact, mimic both heart attack and appendicitis. However, it is caused by a strain of Coxsackie B virus, and it is seldom serious. Seen most often in summer and fall, an outbreak of pleurodynia can indeed be called an epidemic. It affects children and young adults most often, but can strike people of all ages. In addition to the sudden pain in the chest or abdomen, symptoms include fever and headache. Cold symptoms may precede the illness.

Specific treatment. Bed rest and analgesics for relief of fever and pain are all that can be offered. The illness lasts for only a few days.

P.S. A few people have lingering fatigue and weakness after pleurodynia, and only gradually return to full health.

In any case, if you suffer from unexplained chest or abdominal pain, see your family doctor. Although the cause may be minor and easy to treat, it is always wise to be sure. For professional health care, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are conveniently located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Hours are by appointment. YMCA Receives Grant From Harold Brooks Foundation

The South Shore YMCA has received a grant from the Harold Brooks Foundation to continue programming of the ESL Tutorial and Recreational Program.

Established in May of 1989 to combat inter-racial disturbances against non-English speaking immigrant teens, the project has been a channel for opportunity and encouragement among many newcomers in the community.

This year, 22 students from Asia, Central America, and South America have met weekly at the Y for tutoring under the direction of Susan Lowe. In exchange for regular tutorial attendance, each student is given a full youth membership to the YMCA, which includes basketball, swimming, free weight, Nautilus, indoor/outdoor track, and youth room privileges. Plans for October include the addition of peer tutors, expanded enrollment, and opportunities for involvement in the Y Leader's Club.

The YMCA thanked the Brooks Foundation for playing a major role in the program's growth and development. The Brooks Foundation is administered by the South Shore Bank, and has been a funding partner since the program's inception.

Reikard Warns Landlords On Passing Sewer Fee To Tenants

By JANE ARENA
Quincy landlords who are considering passing the city's sewer user fee onto their tenants had better think again.

Jane Reikard, the City's Rent Grievance Board Director, warns that the practice is illegal under the state Sanitary code.

In February of this year the City Council voted on the request of Mayor James Sheets to implement a sewer user fee which will charge property owners on a quarterly basis according to how much water they use.

The fee, which is expected to raise approximately $9.5 million in fiscal year 1991, is intended to help offset the city budget deficit in the face of state cuts.

Issued along with the Ordinance is a Management Plan which states that "owners of rental units may sub-meter for their own internal billing purposes."

However, Reikard says that sub-metering is not allowed for the purpose of billing tenants for water use and she has state law to back that statement.

"They can put a separate meter in if they want to see if a tenant is intentionally wasting water," she says, but adds that the separate meter may be used only for the purpose of monitoring tenant water usage and not as a means to charge them for their consumption.

"I'm surprised that was even in the Management Plan," she says.

According to a July Advisory Ruling by the Executive Office of Human Services, Department of Public Health, the State Sanitary Code mandates that "a property owner is responsible for providing and paying for water and sewer service in a rental dwelling unit."

If your landlord tries to charge part of the sewer user fee to you, Reikard tells tenants, he or she is breaking the law.

The State Code does allow for the cost of certain service items to be passed onto the tenant, Reikard notes, but only under a written agreement and only specific items.

For example, an owner may, under a written letting agreement, require a tenant to pay for hot water and heating fuel. In addition, if a property owner installs a separate meter for electricity and gas, and has written letting agreement, those costs may also be passed on to the tenant.

However, there is nothing in the State Sanitary Code which allows a property owner to charge for water and sewer use, which is considered in the code to be part of "minimum standards of fitness for human habitation."

Further more, according to the July Ruling, even if a landlord and a tenant have an agreement under which the tenant is required to pay for water and sewer service separately from rent, that agreement is "void and unenforceable."

"There are some separate agreements out there," Reikard says, noting more than one occasion when a tenant has come to her asking if such an agreement is binding. She tells them they are not.

"It says in the Sanitary Code that the agreements are not enforceable," she stresses.

There are also cases, Reikard says, wherein landlords with a tenant-at-will agreement will simply raise the rent to reflect the sewer user fee, or else, when a lease is expired, write in a new rental amount to cover the fee.

This too is illegal, Reikard says, if a tenant is told or can prove that the rent increase is for the purpose of the sewer user fee.

"Landlords don't have to give you a reason for raising the rent," she notes, but a tenant has every right to ask, specifically in the current climate which she calls "a tenants' market."

And, she stresses, a tenant has the right to verify the answers to those questions. If, for example, a landlord says the rent increase is due to increased property taxes, a tenant should go to the Assessors' Office and look up the owner's property tax to ensure that it corresponds to the rent increase.

If a landlord comes out and says that a rent increase is due to the sewer user fee, Reikard advises tenants to inform the landlord that this is illegal practice.

It is possible, and even probable, she admits, that some of the city's smaller landlords, who rent only one or two units, are simply unaware of the law.

"They probably don't know because they don't know the Sanitary Code backwards and forwards," smaller landlords aren't sure what they can and can't charge for."

However, she said, bigger landlords, who own large apartment complexes and condominiums, should, and most likely do know the laws, or at least have lawyers who know them.

Reikard wants tenants to now them too.

She invites any landlord or tenant who is interested in obtaining a copy of the Advisory Ruling and the case laws that confirm it to call the Rent Grievance Board at 773-1380, ext. 327.

First Old Colony League Season Quincy, North Begin Football Workouts Aug. 27

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy and North Quincy football teams will begin full-scale workouts next Monday morning with double sessions.

The Presidents and Red Raiders will be starting preparations for their first season in the Old Colony League after trying for three years to get out of the Suburban League.

Actually the teams reported yesterday (Wednesday) for three days of conditioning without pads.

In their final Suburban League season a year ago North finished at 7-3 after its pulsating 27-26 win over Quincy in what is generally regarded the most exciting game in the long series. Quincy finished at 4-6.

Seventh-year Quincy coach Jack Raymer will greet the Presidents for the start of full-scale drills Monday at 8:30 a.m. and the squad will practice at Faxon Field until 11:30 a.m.

The players will return for an afternoon workout from 1 to 3 p.m.

Raymer lost two veteran coaches, John Taglieri and John Sullivan.

"We have lost two fine coaches," Raymer said. "Tag did a tremendous job for us on defense and took care of the off-season weight programs which resulted in the players always reporting in excellent condition. Bob Noble has taken over the weight program and will also do a fine job."

Noble is back and Bob Keuther, who led the freshman team to an unbeaten season (6-0-1) in 1989, will move up to replace Taglieri and former President Billy Shaughnessy will replace Sullivan.

Shaughnessy, one of Quincy's finest quarterbacks, received a scholarship to UMAss but transferred to Curry College, where he succeeded another Quincy player, Bob Barrett.

He backboned Curry's offense for three years and had an outstanding college career.

Saughnessy had tryouts with the New York Giants of the NFL and the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Quincy's new freshman coach is Jack Green, who has coached at Catholic Memorial.

In 1987 Quincy was winless but salvaged a 14-14 tie with North Quincy Thanksgiving Day.

The following year the Presidents won four of their last five games and finished at 5-5 with a big 29-21 victory over North. Last year's Thanksgiving game will not be soon forgotten.

Quincy will open the season with a non-league game at Marshfield Saturday, Sept. 15 at 1:30 p.m. and will play its first OCL game at home against Bridgewater-Raynham, Saturday, Sept. 22 at 1:30 p.m.

North Quincy, under ninth-year coach Ken McPhee, will report Monday morning at 8:15 and work out at Kavanagh Field until 11:30. After a lunch break, the squad will meet from 12:30 to 1 p.m. and return for afternoon sessions from 1:15 to 3:45.

Both schools will follow these practice schedules until the opening of school.

McPhee has the same assistants as a year ago with Peter Chrisom, Pete Zoia, Tom Carter, Earl Metzler and Kevin Kelly all returning. Kelly will again coach the freshmen. Also back is trainer Michelle Connolly.

In their first year in the revamped OCL, part of the Pilgrim Conference, Quincy and North, in addition to their Thanksgiving Day game, will face league opponents Plymouth, Silver Lake, Barnstable, Taunton, Falmouth, Weymouth North, and Bridgewater-Raynham.

Quincy will face Marshfield and Medford in non-league games while North will meet Somerset and Duxbury. The longtime NQ-Milton series is at an end due to the fact that, with the addition of Newton North and Brookline, the Bay State League has 11 teams, giving Milton a full league schedule.

North will be the smallest school in the league, while Quincy, including Vo-Tech students, will be number five in enrollment.

North Quincy will open the season Friday Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. at home against Somerset. The Raiders will play their first league game at Falmouth Friday, Sept. 21, at 7.

CHRISTINE FERRARA of Quincy was a member of the Suffolk University women's softball team. A sophomore in marketing, she is a 1988 graduate of Abp. Williams High and is the daughter of John and Lois Ferrara.

The Legion team will play

Patriots White Team Wins Division At California Tourney

The Mass. Patriots White 16 and under volleyball team recently returned from the Festival 90 in Davis, Calif., the largest tournament in the country which annually attracts 500 teams from all over the country.

The Patriots, who include Brenda Hayduk, a North Quincy High sophomore, Regina Murphy, a North Quincy freshman, and Maureen McCarthy from Central Middle School and coached by Sterling Middle School physical ed teacher Chris Prenderville, won their division and finished 53rd overall out of 180 teams.

Over the four days of competition the Patriots played nine matches against teams from five states. On the first day, they opened against Portland, Ore., White team, and behind the great setting of Hayduk and hitting by Cindy Hobbs of Cambridge, the Patriots won, 17-16, 15-13.

Murphy's defense set the stage for the second win over Front Range Freshmen of Colorado, 15-10, 15-0.

The toughest match of the day was against the top-seeded team in the pool, South Valley Freshmen. Behind the hitting of McCarthy and Rachel Sky-Stiskin of Brookline, the Patriots won, 16-17, 15-13, 15-13.

The second day of competition grouped the Patriots with other teams which finished first in their pools.

The Patriots lost to San Diego, 16-14, 15-8, and Pacific Coast, CA, 15-1, 16-14.

The third match gave the Patriots a boost. With Hayduk running the complex offense, they scored behind thunderous spikes from Allison Block of Masconomet and Sky-Stiskin and defeated Tampa Bay, Fla., 12-15, 15-6, 15-11.

On day three the Patriots played Pacific Sun and Sportswest, two strong California teams. A great effort by Hobbs and Emma Hurley of Wellesley was not enough to stop the rivals' six-foot hitters and the Patriots lost to Pacific Sun, 15-9, 15-10, 15-10, and Sportswest, 15-9, 15-6.

The final match was against Arizona Juniors. The Patriots couldn't quite get their game together and lost, 15-11, 15-6, to finish 53rd overall.

Hayduk, Murphy and freshman-to-be McCarthy will be forces to watch as they, together with senior Mass. Patriot Kara Sullivan, will lead North Quincy High in its quest to regain the state championship.

Also making the trip to Festival 90 were the following:

Mass. Patriots Blue, 18 and under, Christine Barrett and Melanie Sullivan of Quincy High.

Patriots Red, 18 and under, Lori Novak and Jennifer Richmond of Quincy High and Kara Sullivan of North Quincy.

Patriots Royal, 16 and under, Quincy's Liz Noble and North Quincy's Heather Rendle and Cheryl Kelley.

Quincy coach Tom Henderson coaches the Royal team, Quincy physical ed teacher Sheila Schamber the Red team and Quincy teacher Ray Whitehouse the Blue team.

Cucinatta Receives UMass Student Athlete Award

Chris Cucinatta of Quincy was the recipient of the UMass/Boston Student-Athlete Award.

The Quincy native was honored for her academic and athletic achievements at the school's recent awards ceremony.

played and hits in a career while achieving success in the classroom as a dean's list student majoring in physical education.

A former standout at Quincy High School, Cucinatta helped the Presidents reach the state tournament semi-finals her senior year.

"Chris is an extremely hard worker who set a fine example for the rest of her teammates," said UMass head coach

Coleen McBride. "She had the ability to raise the level of play by her teammates, with her dedication and desire to win."

Cucinatta was instrumental in leading the Lady Beacons to their first-ever post season tournament this spring as UMB was chosen for the MAIAW Tournament.

Cucinatta graduated with a combined sports medicine-secondary education major.

Quincy Girls Under 10 Advance To Semi-Finals

The Quincy Youth Soccer League girls' under 10 team, the Quincy Bay Bad Girls, sponsored by Boston Advisory Group, recently competed in the University of Rhode Island's 6-on-6 tournament and advanced to the semifinals.

In the opening round Quincy rolled over the North Kingston, R.I., Scorpions, 7-0. Sarah Satkevich had three goals, Melissa Keefe two goals and Dominique Good and Kathleen Burke one each. Burke had three assists and Keefe, Betsy Stone and Danielle Duncan one apiece.

Quincy next blanked Carhio, R.I., 2-0, behind the outstanding goaltending of Stone. Satkevich had both goals with assists by Keefe and Duncan. The line of Lauren Lumaghini, Merry Rugg and Chrissy Lewis played a strong two-way game, putting numerous quality shots on net and providing excellent man-to-man defense.

North Providence handed Quincy a 3-1 setback despite another fine effort in goal by Stone. Good scored the lone Quincy goal on an end-to-end rush and a shot from 10 yards that caught the short side.

Kristyn Stenberg, Barbara Ryan and Dorothy Cronin, playing as a line, peppered the Providence goalie with shots and showed excellent passing and playmaking.

In the semifinals Quincy faced the East Bay Soccer Club, an NCCL level team, and held it scoreless until halftime behind the tenacious defense of Kara McSweeney and Leela Shankar. Good and Duncan, defensive standouts throughout the tournament, played flawlessly. East Bay's goal came following a Quincy line change.

The Quincy team also played in the Boston Globe 6-on-6 tournament at Wheaton College, posting a 4-1-1 record with wins over Spencer, Harvard, Thompson and Northboro, a tie with Grafton and a loss to Sutton, Ct. in the semifinal round.

The team also took part in a Holliston tournament and lost to Holliston and Westford.

In the Brewster 6-on-6 tournament at Braintree High School, the team played in a split squad format with one squad finishing in fourth place and the other losing in the quarterfinals in a shootout.

The girls under 10 team competed in the South Shore League this spring and finished in second place with a 7-2 record, scoring 35 goals and allowing only five. The offense came from Satkevich, Keefe, Burke, Stone, Lewis, Cronin, Good, Ryan and Jennifer Stasiak.

Superb midfield control came from Shankar, Siobhan O'Connor, Stenberg, and Rugg and a strong defensive effort from Duncan and McSweeney. Stone had four shutouts.

Quincy 9-Year-Old All-Stars 3rd In Tourney

Quincy's Junior Farm League nine-year old all-star team recently finished third in the Braintree American Baseball Tournament.

Quincy pulled out a 10-9 win over Canton in nine innings.

Canton led 2-0 early against Quincy starter Jose Diaz. Quincy's Chris Cummings, who went 4-for-4, doubled home a run in the first and Kevin Walsh executed a perfect suicide squeeze to score Shawn Manning.

Quincy took a 7-3 lead in the third as Chris Carthas and Bobby Johnson led off with singles. Chad Fitzpatrick singled home a run, Brian Doyle homered and Cummings doubled and scored on a two-base throwing error.

Quincy increased its lead to 9-3 as Chris Bregoli doubled home Diaz and Manning.

Manning, who took over for Diaz on the mound, ran into trouble in the fifth as Canton scored six runs to tie the score. Bregoli came in to retire the last three batters in the fifth.

Quincy wasted a Philip Belmont double in the fifth and leadoff singles by Doyle and Cummings in the sixth.

Quincy's defense was outstanding as was Bregoli's pitching in extra innings. Catcher Mike Powers threw out two runners attempting to steal while Bregoli struck out four. Tom Daley made two big catches in right field and made a strong throw to the plate.

The biggest play of the game came in the eighth when Canton had a man on third with one out. A Canton batter grounded to Doyle at short. Doyle looked the runner back to third and threw to first for the out. The runner broke for home and Cummings threw to the plate to Powers who tagged the runner out.

In the last of the ninth, Doyle led with a walk, advanced on a passed ball, and scored on a single to right by Cummings.

Doyle, Cummings and Bregoli each had two RBI while Manning had two hits. Bregoli got the win with five strong innings of hitless relief, including seven strikeouts.

Quincy then lost to host Braintree American, 7-5, in the quarterfinals as Quincy stranded runners at second and third in three different innings.

Randy Feetham started pitching for Quincy and pitched a strong game.

Johnson reached on a fielder's choice, Walsh singled, and Doyle reached on a fielder's choice. Cummings doubled to right to close the gap to two but he was thrown out trying for a triple.

FRAUD THREATENS MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES: According to an article in the April/May issue of "Modern Maturity" magazine, there's a growing epidemic of fraud committed by dishonest health equipment suppliers who are aided and abetted in their schemes by doctors who make it possible for these rip-off artists to function.

Robin Talbert, an analyst with the American Association of Retired Persons' Office of Consumer Affairs, warns consumers to be wary when considering seat-lift chairs, transcutaneous electric nerve stimulators (TENS), bed and wheelchair cushions, skin-care equipment, and three-wheel powered carts. As Ms. Talbert points out, under Medicare rules, a doctor has to certify medical necessity of health equipment before Medicare will pay for it. Without physician approval, the consumer may find himself or herself having to pay the costs for what is often very expensive materials.

Dishonest medical equipment suppliers siphon off millions of dollars a year that could help keep Medicare premiums down. But we won't be able to get these crooks out of the system unless and until enough consumers complain about them. If you suspect you've been pushed into a medical equipment purchase you don't need, or if you're caught holding the bill for a product or service you were assured Medicare would pay, call, toll free, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services at 1-800-368-5779. (In Maryland, call 1-800-638-3986.)

HOME SHOPPING SHOWS - NOT SUCH A BARGAIN: If you know a senior citizen who is spending a great deal of money buying items through the TV home shopping shows, here's some interesting information. Studies being done on the popularity of these shows with older people indicate that many of the items they buy would be ignored in a store at lower prices. It's not the product, therefore, that's the attraction as much as it's the phone call to place the order for the merchandise. The buyers get to talk with the friendly hosts, some of whom are well known celebrities from other media. If they boast about the number of items they've already bought through the show, the host will invariably comment with an approving, "Isn't that wonderful?" behavior-reinforcement response which acts just like a verbal pat on the head. Because many seniors are alone, or have few interests outside the home, they find the shopping shows are a substitute for the social interaction otherwise missing in their lives. (And that should be your cue to try to do something to change that situation.)

Eaton Voices Strong Opposition To Toxic Waste Incinerator

Francis (Sandy) Eaton, independent candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District has voiced his strong opposition to the proposed Clean Harbors toxic waste disposal facility.

Testifying in Weymouth at the recent public hearing held by the Department of Environmental Protection Eaton stressed that the toxic waste dump would pose a serious danger to the health of the densely populated communities surrounding the proposed site.

"Of course it is to the economic advantage of the Clean Harbors Corporation to have the dump located here," he said. "But if the state does put it here it will be putting the profits of that company ahead of the health and safety of the people of our communities," Eaton said. Experts have stated repeatedly that the toxic waste facility would pose a much lower health risk if it were located in a rural area that was not so densely populated.

"The elite have protected their communities from this dump. Now it is being foisted upon the working families of the Fore River Basin. In my conversations with residents in this area as I travel around the district knocking on doors, I have encountered unanimous opposition to this toxic waste dump. What concerns me is that some people think that its location here is a foregone conclusion — that it is a done deal. Well, I hope there is still enough life in our democracy to prevent this from happening."

Eaton added that he was proud to add his voice to the thousands of others opposing the waste dump.

"We will not accept this threat to our health. Not one additional tumor. Not one additional premature death."

Noting plans for possible civil disobedience by opponents of the facility, Eaton said: "I pledge that either with words or with our bodies, no toxic waste will pass into our communities."

Quincy College Media Arts Endowment Fund Planned

Quincy College President Clayton Johnson announces that a group of interested citizens have met to organize the Quincy College Media Arts Endowment Fund.

This committee will raise monies to support the new Media Arts Center to be constructed in Coddington Hall.

The endowment fund, headed by state Senator Paul Harold, plans two events, a brunch in September and a photographic and arts auction in October. Photographers and artists are being asked to donate their work to the auction with all proceeds going to the endowment fund.

Quincy College was founded in 1958 and was generally formed for liberal arts studies with few career programs. The college expanded in the 1970s to include career oriented programs such as business, secretarial, science and the Quincy Hospital Registered Nursing.

By 1980, the curriculum had greatly expanded to include career and technical fields of study many of which came over to the college form public schools. In 1988 the addition of a two-year Associate in Science Degree in communication was offered. Thirty-six students are now enrolled in this program. Photography, audiovisual communication and art have been, because of necessity, taught off campus in public school facilities. Although they were adequate, there were problems in scheduling and travel time and cost.

The Media Arts Endowment Fund was formed to assist Quincy College, specifically the communication program. Monies raised will be used to purchase equipment needed for the new facility. The college has not received public funds since the advent of Proposition 2 1/2, according to Johnson.

Rape Prevention In Public Places

Precautions in public places:

In theaters, sit near the aisle and near the exit stairs, which often lead to the managers office. Don't go alone to theaters where security problems might occur.

Stay in the vicinity of the largest number of people.

Precautions on the bus or subway:

While waiting for the subway alone and the station is deserted, keep your back against a wall in a well-lighted section.

Stand near the change booth or near a group of people. Do not wander off by yourself.

While waiting for the bus, stand away from the curb until the bus arrives. If the bus is nearly empty sit near the driver.

Select a seat with other women or near the driver, and one which is near an emergency button.

If you are bothered by someone on the bus or subway, don't get off at your normal stop unless it is well lighted and populated. Inform the driver of the trouble.

If you have neither your own car nor a companion, especially at night, take a taxi rather than public transportation. Weigh the expense against your safety.

Self-Defense techniques:

We remind you that some weapons, such as guns, are illegal without a permit, but there are many other items that can be used as weapons. Chemical "Mace" works most of the time. A resident can get a permit to carry "Mace" at the Quincy Police Department. The cost is $2.00. Other items that can be used as weapons are, fingernail files, hair spray (sprayed into the attackers face), keys, an umbrella, a handbag that is thrust into the attackers face.

Do not rely on karate or judo unless you are an expert.

The object of using a weapon is not to subdue the attacker but to temporarily distract him so that you can escape and attract attention.

If you have any further questions, please contact Officer Bob Hanna, Crime Prevention Officer, at the Quincy Police Dept. 479-1212 ext. 117.

The Co-Operative Bank Earnings Down

The Co-operative Bank of Concord announces consolidated net earnings of $206,000 or $0.06 per share, for the first quarter ended July 31, 1990, compared with earnings of $854,000 or $0.25 per share for the same period last year.

"We continue to be negatively impacted, by the slowdown in the region's economy and the troubled real estate market," said Chairman David E. Bradbury. "The reduction in interest income from non-performing assets was approximately $718,000 for the quarter. There are also significant other operating costs associated with the maintenance and management of non-performing assets. Together these items had a material impact on earnings."

"Our efforts to aggressively manage non-performing assets continue to produce favorable results; however, the most important component of the process, the pace of home sales, is beyond our control. We have continued our program of acquiring properties through actual foreclosures or voluntary conveyance then completing construction where necessary and initiating active marketing programs for the properties. In certain cases we are starting construction of single family homes in order to move the land inventory."

During the quarter non-performing assets increased from $26,658,000 to $27,264,000 representing 4.96% of total loans receivable and other real estate owned and 4.15% of total assets. These amounts do not include certain assets of the former Randolph Co-operative Bank on which the Co-operative Central Bank Share Insurance Fund provides yield maintenance and protection against losses for the next two years. Provisions for loan losses of $392,000 and market value declines of $153,000 were made during the quarter. The general reserve for loan losses totalled $4,490,000 at July 31, 1990.

The Annual Meeting of stockholders will be held Friday, Sept. 21 at 11 a.m. at The First National Bank of Boston, 100 Federal St., Boston.

The Co-operative Bank of Concord, with assets in excess of $650 million, is a state chartered, FDIC insured co-operative bank with headquarters in Acton, Mass. and 14 retail banking offices in Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth counties, including Quincy.

Quincy College Students Complete Training At Continental Airlines

Five students of Quincy College Travel Management recently completed 50 hours of training on the Continental Reservations System at Continental Airlines at Logan Airport.

This was the first such cooperative venture between an airline and college in the Boston area.

Students include Gail Drinan of Quincy, Juliette Allen of Medford, Sherry Maki of Weymouth, Pat

Devin of South Boston and Susan Yetman of Plymouth. The airline made its computer reservations training center available to the students so they could become proficient in the system which is central to both leisure and commercial travel reservations.

Getting the requested information is only a small part of the reservation agent's job. It should be delivered in a friendly pleasant manner as the reservationist is the first voice the potential customer hears.

Students were congratulated by Sheila Keith, Reservations Supervisor for Continental Airlines at Logan Airport, on completion of their training.

Dr. Edward Kelly, Travel Management instructor at Quincy Junior College, added that such training would not be possible without the cooperation and generosity of Continental Airlines.

Toxic Waste IncineratorMiddlesex County Dist.
Attorney Scott Harshbarger
submitted written testimony in opposition to the siting of the Clean Harbors, Inc. toxic waste incinerator at a recent site suitability hearing held at Broadmeadows Junior High School in Quincy.In his testimony Harshbarger said, "A review of the information regarding the proposed incinerator location leads to the inescapable conclusion that the site is totally inappropriate" for a toxic waste incinerator.Harshbarger said he is opposed to the siting for avariety of important reasons including: the dense population of the Quincy/Bre-sintree/Weymouth area; the overcrowded roads leading to the proposed site; the existing health problems of area residents; and the fact that the Fore River Basin is already heavily industrialized.Harshbarger announced his opposition to the proposed siting in May, saying the siting was "an important health, safety, and environmental issue with which the Attorney General should be involved."

Five days after Harshbarg-er announced his opposition, incumbent Attorney General James Shannon, who had refused to comment on the issue for three years, announced that he would look into the siting question.Commenting on Shannon's reaction on the siting issue, Harshbarger stated "Jim Shannon is an election year attorney general. The people of the South Shore will see through his blatant attempt to politicize this issue after having ignored their pleas for the past three years for some action on his part."Absentee Ballots

At Quincy Election OfficeWith the Massachusetts state primary just over a month away, Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly announces state primary absentee ballots are now available in Quincy CityHall's election offices.
Connolly is urging those registered voters who know they won't be able to vote at the polls Tuesday, Sept. 18 to vote by absentee ballot.

Under Massachusetts law, voters can vote by absentee ballot only if they will be absent from their home city or town on election day, are physically disabled, or are unable to vote on primary day for religious reasons.

Absentee voters can vote
"over the counter" in their local elections office, or they can vote by mail if they apply first in writing.Most absentee voters must have their absentee ballots witnessed by any person at least eighteen years old.
Voters who are outside the United States, or who are certified in writing by a doctor as permanently disabled voters, do not need to vote in the presence of a witness.This is the earliest time that absentee voting has begun before a state primary.
Connolly said, and ballots are available in the local clerk's or election commission's office.

U-Mass Gets $600,000 Contract For Sludge Fertilizer Research

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority announces the award of a $600,000 contract to the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, to provide product evaluation and environmental research leading to the marketability of fertilizer pellets produced from sludge and sludge products.

The UMass projects will be conducted during the next three to five years.

The MWRA sludge facility, where the pellets would be produced, will be located at the former Quincy Shipyard in Quincy Point.

MWRA Executive Board member William A. Darity, of Amherst, said that the results of the research will provide a technical basis for the use of MWRA-produced fertilizer products in Massachusetts and New England.

"In a few years, the MWRA will be marketing 70,000 dry tons of heat-dried fertilizer pellets annually in a highly competitive and regulated marketplace," Darity said. "We need to explore potential markets in the New England region where the use of our product may be cost effective in the cultivation of such agricultural products as turfgrass, floriculture and horticulture, forestry and timber production, Christmas tree farming and land reclamation."

Darity said that the University of Massachusetts, as the Commonwealth's land grant college, is the most active academic institution in the state involved in applied agricultural and forest research.

Eric Buehrens, manager of the MWRA sludge-to-pellets program, said, "The scale, breadth, scope, experience and resources available to UMass make it the most credible and capable institution to support the diversity of our research projects."

"Sludge has been applied to land in many areas of the United States," said Buehrens. "Each area's sludge is different. The soils, hydrology and other environmental conditions of New England are unique. The research aims to establish both the environmental suitability of MWRA sludge for local applications and the product performance of sludge pellets as an agricultural supplement and soil conditioner."

Buehrens said that the MWRA faces the challenge of meeting very strict Massachusetts regulations which require very low levels of certain metals compared to other states.

"All fertilizers contain heavy metals, but low levels of most heavy metals can provide sound nutrition for plants and trees," Buehrens said. "Our goal is to ensure that the levels of metals in our fertilizer are low enough for the plants to react to them as vitamins for healthy growth."

Buehrens said that the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), which is the regulator, will have an opportunity to monitor the research projects which could provide valuable technical and practical information leading to the revision of some regulations.

"DEP's current regulations are for agricultural land application only," Buehrens said. "They are not appropriate for other applications such as greenhouse production, forest and unrestricted distribution of a heat dried product."

Buehrens said that the sludge produced from the MWRA's 43-community system is relatively clean, partly because there is not much heavy industry in this area and partly because of the MWRA's Toxic Reduction and Control Program which monitors industries to make sure that contaminants are not sent down the drain.

"Sludge quality has improved dramatically in the years that our TRAC program has been in effect," Buehrens said.

Action Plan By February

Sheets Sees Upswing In Downtown

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With the Mayor's Committee on Downtown Revitalization report virtually complete, Mayor James Sheets foresees an upswing in the retail climate within two years and a full renewal by 1995.

Sheets made his remarks Tuesday after reviewing the committee's recommendations for revitalization of the downtown area.

Asked what his goals are, Sheets replied:

"Within four or five years, I hope to see a full revitalization in the business community within a new and very vibrant historical context. My goal is to redevelop downtown Quincy within the historical context.

"I think we'll see changes in the retail area in two years. Overall, we'll probably be looking at a five-year plan for everything."

The 22-member committee, chaired by City Councillor Tim Cahill, recently submitted more than 50 recommendations to the mayor. Essentially, the recommendations involve:

- Preserving or restoring property which has historical significance.
- Enhancing and maintaining a sense of the "town" that was once Quincy, while promoting cultural activities and land developments that identify Quincy as a major city.

- Generating support for retail, business and tourism initiatives throughout the city.

Before implementing any recommendation, Sheets said the recommendations will be classified into three types of goals. Short-term goals which can be put in place within a year; intermediate goals (two to three years) and long-range goals (three or more years).

"Our goal is, by the end of February (1991) to have an action plan for downtown with a timetable," Sheets explained, adding the timing of initiatives will be most difficult.

As for funding, the mayor replied, "I think we'll be able to work that out."

Submitting their final recommendations were four

New Police Chief Next Week

By this time next week, Quincy should have a new police chief.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he will finish his interviews with candidates Sgt. William Falco and Lt. Francis Mullen by today (Thursday). He will then deliberate with his staff and make his decision early next week.

The mayor said his selection will be easy yet difficult.

"We have two of the finest candidates. The good part is no matter who is named chief, we'll have a good chief. The difficult part is you try to look for that edge," he explained.

The mayor has interviewed both candidates extensively. In addition, further information on Falco and Mullen has been gathered.

Among the topics Sheets and the two contenders have discussed are streamlining, reorganization and accreditation.

"We are looking to streamline and modernize the department. We're going into the 21st century. We have to deliver more services with less money.

"We have to make the department more effective and more efficient," the mayor added.

In light of the tight fiscal situation, Sheets said there will have to be changes in the police department. He said he wants more police out on the street and vacation and sick time to be examined.

Neighborhood Watch Info Program In N.Q. Thursday

A neighborhood community watch informational program will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Community Center, 12 Hunt St., behind North Quincy High School.

The program is being sponsored by the Atlantic Neighborhood Association and Ward 6 City Councillor Thomas Nutley.

Quincy Police Crime Prevention officer Robert Hanna will speak on safety measures that residents can take both in their homes and on the streets. As of Aug. 19 there have been 22 reported cases of rape or attempted rape in Quincy, one more than all of last year, according to Capt. David Rowell, chief of detectives for Quincy Police.

Of the 22 reported cases, Rowell said only three were "serious rapes." The most recent serious rape occurred in Quincy Point early Aug. 19.

"The suspect did in fact rape the girl," Rowell said.

The other two serious rapes occurred July 5 in the early morning in Quincy Square and again in the early morning July 6 in North Quincy, Rowell said.

Rowell explained a serious rape is one in which the perpetrator presents not only a threat to the victim but also to the community.

Of the 19 remaining reported cases, Rowell said:

"Five involved a suspect who was arrested.

Four involved pending arrests.

Three were not bona fide; that is, there was not enough credible evidence. The investigator had trouble believing what the victim said, Rowell explained.

Five involved suspects who could have been arrested but the victim did not pursue court action.

Two incidents were felonious assaults.

"This really isn't a rash of rapes," Hanna said, "although there have been more (reported rapes) this year than last year. We don't want people to become panicked by it.

"We want to make them aware so that they work with police," he added.

Hanna will discuss precautions people can take to avoid becoming a victim of this type of crime. He'll also make people aware of how to work with police.

"We want (residents) to be our eyes and ears. If we can get people to work with us, we can put a dent into this crime," Hanna added.

Nutley urged residents in the North Quincy area to attend the program.

"This meeting will be a valuable opportunity for them to learn methods of better protecting themselves and their families. I urge every concerned resident of North Quincy to attend this important meeting to listen to Officer Hanna's presentation," Nutley said.

Quincy Firm Signs $77M Contract With MWRA

J.M. Cashman Inc. of Quincy has signed a $77 million contract with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority as part of the Boston Harbor cleanup.

Richard Zellen, general manager of J.M. Cashman, and Paul F. Levy, executive director of the MWRA, signed documents authorizing the start of work on a $76,754,665 contract to construct a series of vertical shafts to disperse effluent from a nine and one-half mile undersea tunnel from Deer Island to Massachusetts Bay.

Cashman, in a joint venture with Interbeton, Inc. of Williamsburg, Va. submitted the lowest of three bids to construct 55 diffuser shafts along the last one and one-quarter miles of the effluent outfall tunnel, which will take treated wastewater from a new treatment plant at Deer Island to the deep waters of Massachusetts Bay. Cashman will perform roughly half of the $77 million contract.

In addition to the diffuser contract signed today, Cashman has previously been awarded six contracts totaling $68 million on the Boston Harbor Project.

"We are always pleased when we can award work on the Boston Harbor Cleanup to local firms," said Levy, adding that all but one of some 30 construction contracts awarded to date on the Boston Harbor Project have gone to local firms. "Awarding to local firms means that more of the dollars involved will stay in the area, stimulating the local economy. Local contractors are also more likely to hire local residents for the jobs that will be created by the harbor cleanup."

"The Authority expects good quality work, which we feel we supply on all our jobs, including site work at Deer Island, the Deer Island pier construction, the demolition of Fort Dawes and pier renovation at the Fore River Staging Area," added Zellen. "We are pleased to have another opportunity to participate in one of the biggest and most important public works projects ever undertaken in New England." Cashman expects to use several local subcontractors on the diffuser contract, including two companies owned by minorities and one women-owned firm, in accordance with the Authority's affirmative action requirements. Roughly 10 percent of the value of the contract will be performed by local minority-owned and women-owned firms. Cashman plans to employ more than 100 persons on the diffuser job, nearly all of them local residents, according to Zellen. In addition, Cashman hopes to contact with local suppliers and fabrication companies, which in turn will generate more local business and employment, Zellen said.

Cashman will construct and lay in place 55 diffusers that will spread treated wastewater to the deep waters of Massachusetts Bay. Each diffuser will be topped with a 40-ton riser cap assembly that will be put in place using a jack up barge. The diffuser caps on the shafts allow thorough mixing of the treated wastewater with sea water.

A joint venture of the Kiewit Construction Co. of Omaha, the Guy F. Atkinson

Construction Co. of San Francisco, and the Kenny Construction Co. of Wheeling, Ill. was awarded a $202 million contract to construct the tunnel itself.

Cashman, a 16-year-old marine and heavy civil general contractor, also has the following contracts with the MWRA for work on the Boston Harbor cleanup:

- A $27 million contract to construct piers at Deer Island. The piers, completed this winter, receive barges and ferryboats carrying materials, equipment and workers to the site of the MWRA's new treatment plant at Deer Island.

- A $6.7 million contract to rehabilitate piers at the Fore River Staging Area (former General Dynamics Shipyard) in Quincy. The Fore River piers, also completed this winter, are used to load barges bound for Deer Island with trucks and other construction equipment.

- A $4.6 million contract to demolish and remove military bunkers at Deer Island. The bunkers, part of the nation's coastal defense system during World War II, had to be removed to make way for the construction of the new wastewater plant. The contract to remove the bunkers was completed this winter, several months ahead of schedule.

- A $14.8 million contract to move much of a large hill in the center of Deer Island. The hill must be leveled to make way for the new plant. A new landfill is being created on the northern end of the island as a barrier between the plant and nearby residents.

- $14.3 million contract to remove and dispose of 1.1 million cubic yards of earth that cannot be retained on Deer Island.

- A $397,300 contract for dredging at Squantum Point in connection with piers built there as part of the project's water transportation system.

Tenants, Landlords Respond To Sewer User Fee Restriction

By JANE ARENA
Rent Grievance Board Director Jane Reikard says that an article in last week's Quincy Sun concerning landlords passing the city's sewer fee onto tenants has paid off.

She said Tuesday that after reading in The Sun that it is illegal for a landlord to charge tenants for sewer and water usage, she has given out about seven copies of the state's advisory ruling on the matter.

She has also received several phone calls from Quincy landlords and tenants.

One landlord told Reikard that she was happy she had read the story because she was just about to pass the sewer user fee onto her tenants, thinking the practice was legal.

After reading the article and talking to Reikard the woman called her tenants together and discussed implementing a water conservation program in the building. She told the tenants that, due to the added expense of the sewer and water fee, they would no longer be able to wash their cars there.

"The tenants were very, very good about it," Reikard said. "They understand."

Also, after reading the article in The Sun, a Quincy tenant called Reikard and said she had been paying for both sewer and water services under a letting agreement with her landlord for two years.

She had been paying for water usage, Reikard said, and, since the city's sewer user fee had gone into effect, the woman's last two rent payments had increased to reflect the fee.

Reikard told the woman that the practice is illegal under the state Sanitary Code, even with a letting agreement.

When she contacted the landlord on the issue, he told Reikard that he was unaware of the law prohibiting him from charging for the service, and that it was an honest mistake.

Reikard said the landlord

"Was very nice about it and very cooperative."

Not only did he agree to stop charging the tenant for water and sewer use immediately, Reikard said, but he also said he would pay the tenant back for the two years he had been collecting the fee.

He even asked whether or not he should pay back the interest that had accumulated from charging her, but Reikard told him there was nothing in the law that said he had to.

After that, Reikard said, the landlord offered to try and locate his previous tenants from two years ago to pay them for the charges he had collected from them.

Last week Reikard said she expected that some of the smaller landlords in the city, who rent only one or two units, were likely unaware of the law.

"I feel sorry for them," she said, "because it is very expensive... but people have to be aware of their rights."

Nurse Plan Endorses Eaton

Nurse Plan, the political action arm of the Massachusetts Nurses Association, has endorsed Francis Eaton of Quincy in his campaign for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, the seat currently held by Robert Cerasoli.

Eaton, a staff nurse at Quincy Hospital, is a founding member and past president of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights.

He is running as an independent candidate.

Eaton is one of 30 candidates for House and Senate seats in the state-wide election endorsed by Nurse Plan.

Kolson Has Serious Concerns Over Edgar Station Reopening

Concerned about the proposed reopening of Boston Edison's Edgar Station at Fore River, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson said there should be more discussion and further evaluation on the project.

Kolson said he has "serious concerns" about the amount of fuel sulphur emissions if the plant is reactivated.

"Are emission levels to be maximized or will they be kept below the levels allowed by law," is one of the questions being asked by Kolson.

Considering Ward 1 is located within a quarter mile of the plant, Kolson said there should be more discussion and further evaluation to protect the quality of life of Quincy residents and to research the environmental impact on all surrounding areas.

The Roar Of Anger In November

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The taxpayers of Massachusetts can no longer afford business as usual at the State House. We have seen the state budget explode from $6.2 Billion in 1982 to the present $13.4 Billion. The Democratic controlled legislature has repeatedly increased spending by 8, 9 and 11%, while growth was only 4%.

I know I have to spend within my means, just as every other working person has to. We should not expect any less from our state leaders!

State Rep. Steve Pierce (R-Westfield), has consistently fought against these addicted spenders in Boston, and he has not stopped calling for a downsizing of State Government.

The Beacon Hill Gang may not want to listen to what Steve Pierce has to say, but when the votes are counted in November, they will hear the roar of anger and will then have to listen to Governor Steve Pierce.

THE ECONOMIC PROBLEM OF RISK IN TODAY'S SOCIETY

The uncertainties of everyday life bear considerable consequences. The possibilities of economic misfortune or calamity are always with us. Important property risks include fire, destruction by human or natural forces, and all forms of casualty such as burglary or automobile property damage.

You can solve or at least alleviate the problems of these risks in two ways. One, reduce the element of risk as much as possible. Two, consider the use of adequate and proper insurance, which, put in its simplest terms, distributes the cost of the risk over a large group of individuals subject to the same risks, in order to reimburse the few who actually suffer a loss.

The professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. can show you how to reduce your risk and protect yourself and your business against casualty and liability losses. We can customize policies to suit your individual needs and legal requirements depending upon your type of business and its location.

Kelly Mulls At-Large Run

Former City Councillor Leo Kelly may be back on the campaign trail next year.

Not as anyone's campaign manager but as a candidate. A candidate for city councillor at-large. "I'm thinking very seriously about running," he confirms.

And that's no sudden whim on his part.

"I was planning to run in 1989," he says.

But that changed when his good friend Steve McGrath, asked him to head up his campaign for mayor.

"I couldn't say no to Steve," Kelly said.

Kelly had been McGrath's campaign manager in 1987 when McGrath vacated his Ward 5 seat and ran at-large.

It was good campaigning and good managing. McGrath topped the at-large field which set the stage for his bid for mayor.

Kelly was the logical man to run the mayoral campaign but victory, this time, wasn't in the cards.

Would Kelly run even though it appears there will be no open city council at-large seat?

"I've never cared whether there was an open seat or not. It really doesn't matter to me. What matters is whether I feel I can do a good job if elected. I think I can as a councillor at-large."

His entrance would be cause for some concern for present incumbents Tim Cahill, Michael Cheney and Patricia Toland. Perhaps Cheney more so as he and Kelly are both Ward 1 based. Although the voter gets three choices with three seats up.

Kelly was elected to six terms as Ward 1 councillor but has a high city-wide recognition factor.

He was first elected in 1973 edging a pretty strong vote getter — now Senator Paul Harold — by 48 votes to win the Ward 1 seat vacated by Edward Graham.

Kelly was elected city council president in 1980 and you'd have to say he was politically generous as far as handing onto the gavel goes.

He introduced an order limiting the council presidency to two consecutive one year terms. Before then a council president could serve year after year.

"I came in with that order," says Kelly "so that more councillors would have the opportunity to become president. Being council president is an honor and I felt that honor should be shared.

Shortly after being elected to his sixth term, Kelly left the City Council to become project manager at the Quincy Housing Authority. At that time, according to legal opinions, he could not hold the QHA job and his city councillor's post simultaneously.

KELLY

But that has since changed.

Present Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson is employed by the Quincy Housing Authority and can hold both jobs providing he draws only one salary. Kolson is taking his QHA salary, of course, which is considerably higher than a city councillor's $10,000.

Kelly says that's what he would do if he runs and is elected.

Right now, he sounds very much like he's running.

REV. JOSEPH DOWNEY, one of Quincy's most popular clergymen, who is retiring as pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point after 20 years will celebrate his farewell Mass there Sunday, Sept. 16. A reception will follow at 1 p.m. in the parish social center.

A "testimonial book" is in the works by a committee to be presented to him on that day.

The committee, headed by John Fr. DOWNEY (Jake) Comer, (471-3534) past National Commander of the American Legion includes, Mal Creaven (773-7557), Joseph Hajjar (773-3535), Joseph Kahler (773-6089) and Eunice Ford (773-9263).

If you'd like to participate in the testimonial book, call anyone of the committee members.

Fr. Downey will continue his 45 year priesthood as an associate pastor at Our Lady of the Rosary parish in Stoughton.

Coincidentally, that was the first parish of Fr. Daniel Graham, formerly of St. John's Quincy, who will succeed Fr. Downey as St. Joseph's pastor.

MYASTHENIA GRAVIS

About one in every 17,000 people is afflicted with this disease, which causes muscle weakness. It is a slowly progressing disease which occurs in men and women at all ages. It is more common in women in their late 30's, and in men past age 60. The disease is thought to be caused by a deficiency in the chemical acetylcholine which transmits signals from nerve endings to muscles. Myasthenia gravis is characterized by abnormal muscular fatigue after exercise, and rapid recovery after rest. Slight paralysis may be noted in the morning, and it may worsen as the day goes on. The disease most often affects the eyes, face, shoulders, and much less often, the legs. Drooping eyelids are often the first indication of myasthenia gravis. Weakness of facial and throat muscles may cause difficulty in eating and swallowing. P.S. Medications to improve neuromuscular transmission are helpful in many cases, and spontaneous remission is not uncommon. Remember: prevention is the beginning of good health. Many diseases can be prevented with a healthy diet and regular exercise. For more information, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. 'Money For Schools, Not For War' Teachers Protest Military Build-Up In Middle East

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Carrying pickets and chanting "money for schools, not for war," and "two, four, six, eight, let the teachers educate," about two dozen school teachers from throughout the state demonstrated their opposition to the government's Middle East policy last Thursday on the steps of the state Department of Education, 1385 Hancock St., Quincy Square.

The teachers, who formed a picket line and circled Quincy Center Plaza for 15 minutes, protested the mounting military build-up in the Persian Gulf and "challenged our government and so-called political leaders to meet the real crises that is truly threatening our American way of life."

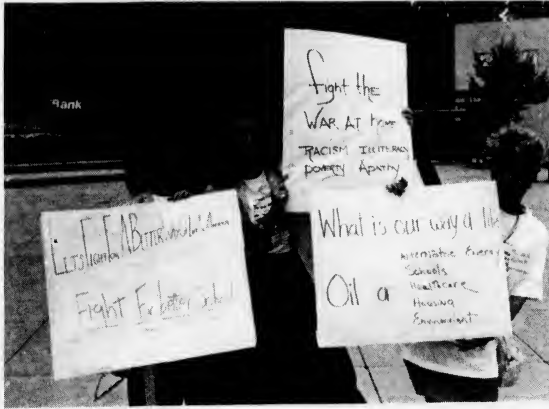

Reading from a prepared statement, Emmanuel Fernandez of Boston and an employee of Wayland Public Schools, said, "While millions of dollars are being spent to wage a war, that is questionable at best and potentially devastating for Americans and Arabs alike, millions of children in our country are being denied the right to an education, housing, health care, even food.

"We have heard this song before," Fernandez said, "The call to patriotic fervor to abolish some distant 'enemy' has been used over and over again by politicians to effectively divert the public's attention away from critical domestic issues."

The teachers, many of whom wore white tee shirts with the words of the 14th amendment printed on the front, decided to protest while attending a recent Summer Institute organized by the Bill of Rights Education project, "Understanding Racism and How to Fight It." The conference was sponsored by the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts and the state Department of Education.

While meeting, the teachers resolved to protest publicly their frustration that issues of critical concern of this nation—the resurgence of racism, the savings and loan crisis, homelessness, the deteriorating condition of schools—were being pushed aside in the surge toward war over oil in the Middle East.

Nancy Murray, the project's director, said, "A demonstration was not part of the institute's program. But the teachers were motivated to act out their sense that this country urgently needs to get its priorities right.

"Who speaks for the children," she asked.

In their statement, the teachers said funding for education, a fundamental right for every American, has been cut at the national, state and local levels.

"This year in Massachusetts, thousands of teachers are being laid off, creative and successful programs are being cut, class sizes enlarged, sports programs eliminated, even schools are being closed.

"We are told there is no money to educate our children, yet there is unlimited money to spend to keep down the price of oil," Fernandez said with other teachers flanking him.

Cambridge resident and teacher Kathy Greeley agreed education should be a higher priority than the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

"We are concerned about national security," Greeley said, "but it needs to be better defined."

One educational issue which needs more attention is drop-out prevention, Greeley said. She noted the drop-out rate in Boston public schools has soared to 47 percent. In addition, funding for the state's drop-out prevention program has dropped off dramatically, from $11 million two years ago to $2 million this fiscal year.

"We, as educators, came together out of a common concern about the rising racism in our society," Fernandez continued. "As the crisis in the Middle East deluged us, we realized that we could not just sit in our conference room and be silent.

"We speak out against the racist portrayal of Arabs in the media, and the more insidious racism that places our children, particularly of color, at the bottom of the national priority list.

"It is time to stop fooling the public with speeches about defending the American way of life. It is time to set our priorities straight.

"As General (and former president) Dwight D. Eisenhower said, 'Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies in the final sense a theft from those who are hungry and are not fed, from those who are cold and are not clothed.'"

The first parking meters came into service in Oklahoma City on July 16, 1935. 150 were originally installed.

Quincy's Yesterdays

War Strands Quincy Travelers

Miss Florence Manning of Franklin St., South Quincy, and Mabelle Fullerton, society editor of the Patriot Ledger, were heading back to Quincy by train after their Caribbean cruise was interrupted by the outbreak of war in Europe.

The two Quincy women were aboard the North German Lloyd Liner Columbus en route to Grenada when Hitler invaded Poland. Passengers were put ashore at Havana, Cuba, and the Columbus headed home for Germany, hopefully before Britain and France entered the war.

Meanwhile, Mr. and Mrs. David Hansen of 240 Everett St., Wollaston, were awaiting word from their son, Gordon, 35, a commercial artist, who was one of 1,400 passengers aboard the liner Athenia, which was torpedoed by a German submarine in the Atlantic.

And friends of Andrew Stopin of 22 Price Street, Atlantic, were concerned for his safety on a visit to relatives in Latvia when the S.S. Pilsudski, on which he was to have sailed for home, failed to clear the Polish port of Gdynia before hostilities.

PLEDGE FAITH IN FDR

Delegates to the 34th annual convention of the Federation of State, City and Town Employees of Massachusetts voted to reaffirm their faith in the ability of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to keep the United States out of the European war.

Acupuncture Effective With Sports Injuries

By DANIEL S. KARP
The last few years have seen a tremendous increase in the popularity of running. With this increase come thousands upon thousands of running related injuries. Aside from sprains and strains, shin splints constitute the second most common form of injury, according to a survey in Runner's World magazine.

Sports-related injuries can take many forms. They include bruising of various severity, muscle tears, tendon injuries and tendon inflammation. Acupuncture is an effective method of treating all these conditions.

As well as acupuncture, other measures can be equally important, such as resting the injured part, and the use of ice packs which cool the tissues and reduce bleeding if any is present. Acupuncture for patients suffering from tennis elbow has shown itself to be an excellent alternative to steroid injections.

Here is a case report: An All-American quarterback with Brigham Young University, now with the Philadelphia Eagles, was suffering with a sore arm, his passing arm, and unable to play against the University of Hawaii. A single acupuncture treatment given the day before the game was enough to enable him to play the entire game where he threw 60 passes, breaking two WAC records. He said: "I will always be appreciative of your help and will forever remember it."

With acupuncture, in many cases tissue swelling (known as edema) will disappear within minutes. In practices this means that the sports injury is dealt with more effectively, and therefore recovery time is shortened.

Acupuncture, as a subspecialty of sports medicine, offers an important therapeutic modality that can be of great assistance in the prevention and treatment of athletic injury. Pre-sterilized disposable equipment is used exclusively.

For more information, contact: Acupuncture Associates of the South Shore, Daniel S. Karp, Lic. Ac., 12 Dimmock St. Quincy, 471-5577.

Low-fat frozen desserts can help make dieting more fun

For those watching the amount of fat, calories and cholesterol in the food they eat, frozen novelties such as cheesecake bars, liqueur-flavored truffles and gourmet ice cream bars dipped in Belgian milk chocolate were once the ultimate test of willpower.

That's not true anymore! Manufacturers, noticing that many people like the delicious indulgence of frozen novelties, but not their high calories, fat and cholesterol, have introduced products specifically designed to meet the needs of today's health-and-fitness-conscious consumer.

Included in this mix is Ice Milk, Sorbet, Sherbet, Fruit Bars, Frozen Tofu and sugar-free versions of childhood favorites such as Popsicles and Fudgicles.

But, the fastest growing product in this market is frozen yogurt! With the look and texture of soft ice cream, frozen yogurt has only half the calories, minimal fat and no cholesterol.

Frozen yogurt is attracting fans with a variety of exotic flavors—cheesecake, butterscotch, peanut butter—each one offering people a truly delicious, healthy alternative to super-rich frozen desserts.

With consumption growing at an average rate of 15 to 20 percent every year, frozen yogurt, once only found in health-food stores, now can be found everywhere.

In fact, Dannon, the name that is synonymous with yogurt, has even brought it to the supermarket freezer case, with the introduction of Dannon Frozen Yogurt On-A-Stick.

Made from all-natural Dannon yogurt and stuffed with juicy fruit, sweet bananas, scrumptious pineapple and freshly picked berries, Frozen Yogurt On-A-Stick is a great-tasting, satisfying treat with only 50 calories per bar.

According to Jim Ortiz, Dannon's group product manager, "Frozen Yogurt On-A-Stick was created in response to consumers' overwhelming demand for great-tasting, low-calorie treats."

"We feel the rich taste of the product's five flavors—Strawberry, Strawberry-Banana, Raspberry, Mixed Berries and Pineapple-Coconut—appeals to all kinds of frozen dessert lovers, including people who don't normally eat yogurt."

One of the other advantages of Dannon Frozen Yogurt On-A-Stick is that it has a thicker consistency than other low-fat frozen novelties, such as water ices and fruit bars, so the bars will remain satisfying and delicious, no matter what the season.

So don't resist—give in to temptation. With the selection of luscious low-fat frozen novelties growing bigger each year, now you can finally have your cake and eat it too!

Tips To Tame Allergies

Allergies are nothing to sneeze at. This year, many health experts are predicting a severe allergy season. Although it's not possible to avoid every potential allergen, with some planning you can get through the season with a drier nose. Here are some tips that may help:

- Stay indoors between 5 a.m. and 10 a.m. when pollen levels are highest.

- Keep windows closed in your home and when driving your car.

- Keep cool. Ten degrees cooler than outside is ideal. Be sure to keep air conditioners and humidifiers clean or you may end up blowing allergens around your home.

- Dry clothing and bedding inside, or in a dryer, rather than outdoors where they will collect pollen.

- See your doctor before you have symptoms. New medications, such as Hismant (astemizole), may give you the symptom relief you need without the unpleasant side effects, such as drowsiness, have experienced with other medications.

- Avoid alcoholic beverages during pollen seasons; they contribute to swelling of blood vessels in nasal passages.

- Wear glasses or sunglasses outdoors to protect your eyes from pollen.

Do You Suffer From?

- Migraines
- Back Pain/Sciatica
- Arthritic Pain
- Sports Injuries
- Obesity
- Inability to Stop Smoking

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Labor Day for most Americans has become a traditional last-fling-of-the-summer weekend.

D. Scott Deware

On the calendar it marks the eve of another school year, the dividing line between the serenity of summer and the onrush of a harsher autumn and winter. In presidential election years it has become the kickoff date of serious campaigning for the nation's highest office.

The day was first celebrated over 100 years ago with a parade and labor holiday in New York City instituted by the Central Labor Union at the suggestion of Peter McGuire, a carpenter and one of the two founders of the American Federation of Labor.

Congress passed a bill June 28, 1894, making the first Monday in September a legal holiday to be observed throughout the nation as Labor Day.

Labor Day has no meaning for the small but vocal minority of leeches whose whine is that the world owes them a living.

But it has full meaning for all others - the overwhelming majority - who realize the dignity of work, who labor in dignity and reap just rewards for their efforts ...

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

TV, Death . . . and Children.

Statistics show that most children will have seen up to 10,000 deaths portrayed on TV by age 20. Critics agree that TV is too violent and the effects on children not yet known.

Most TV deaths are unrealistic and don't show the suffering and grief involved. We suggest parents explain about deaths on TV as fantasy and unreal.

Children do want to learn about death. We have books and literature for the children's level or can direct you to such sources.

Richard Staiti Candidate For County Commissioner

RICHARD STAITI

MIAA Sports Medicine Committee. He has been active in Canton Little League and American Legion Baseball as a coach and manager.

Staiti said he feels that county government, like all forms of government in Massachusetts is in serious trouble. He said the current structure of county government must be reformed to serve the needs of the county as well as over 28 cities and towns that constitute Norfolk County.

Intertown cooperation and regionalization at the county level should be stressed to achieve greater delivery of services to the public he said.

Staiti wants the county to take a more assertive role in developing and encouraging recycling among local communities.

County government should spearhead regional approaches to problems such as recycling, providing the medium through which local officials can meet, exchange ideas, share resources and use existing personnel to protect our environment and enhance the economic stability of member towns," he said.

Staiti is married to Jo Ann Johnson Staiti, a member of the Canton School Committee and a Chemistry teacher at Westwood High School. They live in Canton with their four children.

Fr. Daniel Graham New Pastor At St. Joseph's Church

(Cont'd from Page 1)

Graham told The Quincy Sun.

"I am no stranger to Quincy after 13 years at St. John the Baptist."

Fr. Graham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Graham live on Monroe Road, Quincy.

"St. Joseph's is a wonderful parish and I am going to need big shoes to follow Fr. Downey's 20 years there—a great priest and a great spiritual leader," Fr. Graham continued.

"If I can build on his leadership and can rely on the parishioners help, I will be pleased."

Fr. Downey said he was happy to hear his friend, Fr. Graham, had been selected to succeed him.

"I like it," he said. "He's a good man. He will be a good pastor. And he will keep the school."

Fr. Graham says he plans no immediate changes until he has gotten the "feeling of the parish."

He spoke highly of St. Joseph's School with an enrollment of 200 students, its principal and its teachers.

Born and brought up in the Cambridge-Arlington area, he attended St. Mary's High School and grammar school in Cambridge.

He attended St. John's Seminary and was ordained to the priesthood in 1970. He served first from 1970 to 1975 as associate pastor at Our Lady of the Rosary Parish in Stoughton.

In 1975, Fr. Graham was assigned to St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy as an associate pastor, and he served there until 1988 when he was assigned to St. Brendan's Church in Dorchester.

At St. John's where he served 13 years, Fr. Graham was well known for his special liturgies at Easter and Christmas and for starting and coordinating St. Anthony's Festival there.

He was also known for his sense of humor and parishioners looked forward to him preceding his homily with, "I have a good one today" as he proceeded to tell a funny story.

'You Are The Man' Squantum Church Topic

"You Are The Man" was the title of the sermon Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum by the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor.

The greeters were May

Lewis and Ruth Lagh. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes. Cliff and Shirley Mason hosted the Fellowship Hour.

The Bible Study group continues to meet each Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. to study "The Old Testament Prophets."

Will Lose Seven Veterans

Morrisette Wraps Up Best Season In Years

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team recently completed its finest season in several years, posting a 23-6 record and just missing the state championship series.

Morrisette finished in a first place tie with Braintree at 18-4 in Zone 6 and defeated Milton in two straight games in the zone playoffs.

It easily eliminated Zone 10-A champion Spartan A.C. of Brockton in two straight in the state playoffs but lost a heartbreaking three game series to Fall River, which went on to win the state title and moved to the finals of the Northeast Regionals. It lost to Spring Valley, N.Y. 4-3, in 11 innings in the title game.

Morrisette lost the first and third games to Fall River by identical 2-1 scores, despite outplaying the winners in both games. Morrisette won the second game of the series, 4-1.

"I still think we had a better team than Fall River, but their defense was outstanding and stopped our many chances," coach Dave Perdios said. Morrisette left 14 runners stranded in the first game and 13 in the third, in which it out-hit Fall River, 13-5.

Morrisette received superb pitching in the series from Kevin MacDougall, Erik DeBoer and Gary Rawdon.

Morrisette will lose seven veterans, some of whom were two and three year starters.

Among those graduating is DeBoer, who over the past three years was outstanding. This year he was 7-3 with two saves, had 101 strikeouts giving him 264 for his three years. He had an outstanding 1.05 earned run average.

DeBoer played the outfield when not pitching and fled the team in batting with a .403 average. His seven hits in the playoffs were a team high. He will enter the University of Connecticut on a full scholarship.

Also leaving will be MacDougall, who also pitched and played the outfield. He had a 6-1 pitching record, his only loss coming in the Fall River opener. He is a speedy outfielder who covers much ground and had only one error. He batted .337 and led the team in hits with 29 and runs batted in with 23. He will be going to a prep school.

Jeff Calvert, the most versatile player, played second base, third base, the outfield and catcher during his three years and played them all well. A line drive hitter to all fields, he batted .324 and led the team in walks with 16. He will enter Merrimack College.

Tony Anderlions, the starting shortstop for two years, has great range and possesses a strong arm. He had a knack of coming up with big hits, had a .330 batting average and led the team in runs scored with 25. He will enter Brandeis University.

Catcher Brian Taylor also will be leaving. A hard-nosed player with a strong arm, he started slowly at bat but had a fine second half of the season.

His home run against Braintree provided the momentum to carry the team to a big victory. He seldom struck out and led the starter in this respect, striking only three times. He will return to Quinabaug Community College.

Dan Ryan, who came up with a shoulder injury early in the season and never got back to playing regularly, was used sparingly and had some big games. He is attending Fitchburg State College.

Jim Glynn is the other player leaving. The fastest man on the team, he covered a lot of ground in the outfield and led the team in stolen bases. He batted .293. He suffered a bad ankle injury in the second game against Spartan A.C. and missed the Fall River series. He will attend U/Mass Boston.

Perdios will have 11 returning players, five of whom started at one time or another this season.

Back for another year will be Rawdon, who had an outstanding season. He was 6-1 pitching, the only loss being the deciding game of the Fall River series.

His win against Braintree gave Morrisette the confidence it needed to become a big winner. He also helped himself with the bat. He will enter U/Mass Amherst.

Also with another year in starting second baseman Mike Baylis, a slick fielder who has the potential to be a solid hitter.

First baseman George Rozantitis and pitcher Billy Warren also are expected back.

Players with two more years of eligibility are led by catcher-first baseman Tom

Balzano, who could become one of the premier batters in Zone 6. He batted .333 and led the team with eight extra base hits and seven doubles.

Also with two years of eligibility left are pitcher-infielder Pat Clifford and outfielder Mark Kelleher, both of whom started several games and played well. Clifford picked up a win in relief and played a strong third base and Kelleher hit a long home run that helped defeat Milton in the playoffs.

Pitcher Mike Malvesti, used mainly in relief with a win, and infielder Vince Anderlions are also back.

Sean Donovan and Liam Higgins are both 15-year-olds with three more years of Legion eligibility. Donovan, a southpaw pitcher, saw a lot of service as a starter and reliever. He picked up two wins. Higgins, hampered by a knee injury, saw limited action. He is an outfielder-pitcher.

Perdios has done a fine job in his four years as coach. The former Morrisette star has had a first place tie, two second place finishes and a third place finish in Zone 6.

Perdios, assistant Tom Malvesti, manager Ray Cattaneo, long-time head coach, athletic officer Frank Osborne, who provides gum each game to the players and coaches and puts together the ad book which gives financial stability to the program, and the eight-year scorer-statistician Richard "Berger" Ryan are expected back in 1991.

HAVE YOU HEARD

by Stephen Tobias

Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

RESPONDING TO CLUES

A hearing aid, like almost any other mechanical instrument, may need adjustment from time to time. If so, it helps the dispenser in his or her efforts to correct any problem by having the user describe any symptoms of a problem in as much detail as possible. For instance, wearers of in-the-ear aids often recount hearing a putt-putt sound out of their hearing aids which quite resembles the sound of a motorboat. Upon hearing of this specific problem, the dispenser knows right away that the solution is likely to rest with battery replacement. A defective or inappropriate battery usually is at the bottom of "motorboat" sounds. Otherwise, corroded or loose battery contacts or defective on-off switches may be at fault. Once armed with specific information from the wearer, a dispenser has little trouble making an adjustment.

HINT: Failure to turn a hearing aid off when it is not in use is the chief cause of battery drain.

Some minor adjustments does not mean that your hearing aid is defective. If you have an aid with a mold you may need it cleaned or replaced. The basic mechanism of your instrument is perfectly fine. Just like you need a check up so does your hearing aid. At STEPHEN TOBIAS HEARING CENTER we take care of your hearing aid from beginning through after sale servicing. Our aids are custom made to your specific needs. You get professional service and quality merchandise when you come to 488 Quincy Ave. Call 770-3395 for an appt. We wish all our readers a safe and happy Labor Day holiday.

QVNA Hospice Tourney Sept. 10

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association Hospice will hold its second annual golf tournament Monday, Sept. 10 at the Halifax Country Club.

Chairman is Bill Shea of Shea's Formica Center.

The tournament is held in memory of Arthur and Dorothy Bertoni who were friends of Shea and patients of the Quincy VNA and Hospice. Family members who will participate are John, Arthur, Bobby, Ricky and Buddy Bertoni.

Golf tournaments in the area have helped support several organizations. Last year, the QVNA tournament sold out, raising more than $8,000 for Hospice.

This year's tournament includes two hole-in-one chances, with prizes of a $10,000 check and a 1991 Buick automobile by South Shore Buick in Quincy. Many other prizes will be available throughout the course for golfers of various skill levels.

Proceeds will benefit the Hospice program which is a home health care program for individuals who are terminally ill. Hospice allows patients to remain at home as long as possible and desirable by providing assistance in dealing with medical, emotional, and spiritual problems. The Hospice team includes the entire family and loved ones in the care of the patient.

Tournament committee members include Tony Aimola, Larry Belcamino, George Nightingale and Joel Timberlake. Tom Maher will serve as emcee of the luncheon immediately following the tournament.

Mayor James Sheets, state representatives, city councilors, Quincy Hospital officials as well as many Quincy and South Shore business and community leaders have been very supportive.

A few spots remain available. For more information call Bill Shea at 471-9130.

Triple A

Yellow Cab Drives To City Championship

The Yellow Cab Athletics won three of their last four games to qualify for the Triple A Baseball League playoffs and went on to win the city championship with a 9-3 victory over the Yankees, American League champions, who had won two out of three games over the Athletics during the regular season.

The Athletics, who swept through the playoffs undefeated, had their pitching ace, Neil Costa, on the mound and he pitched a two-hitter and struck out 14. He helped his own cause with an inside-the-park home run in the first inning. He also had a double and a single.

Joe Bracken had a triple, Jamie Murphy a double and Philip Poon, Joshua Maloney and Mark Bracken singles.

In their first playoff game the Athletics rolled over the Pirates, 22-11, with Costa the winning pitcher with 10 strikeouts.

Joe Bracken hit for the cycle and also had a walk. His home run was a wicked shot high over the left field fence at Mitchell Field. It was the only home run over the fence this year.

Poon had two inside-the-park home runs deep down the line in right field. Aaron Marshall, and Maloney also had extra base hits and Brian Frazee, Mike Martin, Jamie MacIsaac, Lorne Andrea, Steve Rose and Mark Bracken had singles.

The Athletics next edged the Braves, 20-19, with Marshall the winning pitcher in relief of Rose. The A's were trailing, 12-1, after an inning but came back strong and collected 17 hits.

Joe Bracken had an inside-the-park homer, a double and two singles, Marshall two singles and a double, Maloney a triple, Murphy and Costa doubles, Rose two hits, one a perfect bunt, and Poon and Andrea had two hits each.

Peters Leaves North For Kent Hockey Post

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy High is seeking a new head ice hockey coach following the resignation of Dave Peters.

Peters stepped down after only one season at North to accept the position of assistant coach at Kent State University.

"I was very happy at North Quincy and was eagerly looking forward to the coming season. North's first in the Old Colony League," Peters said. "Everyone, the players, school administrators and parents were very cooperative and helpful to me."

"However, I am looking forward to coaching on the college level and am delighted at the opportunity."

Peters has coached several teams in the Pro-Elite League at the Quincy Youth Arena this summer and his teams played more than 40 games. The league is run by Boston Bruins scout Joe Lyons.

He also attended the West Point hockey camp.

"I will be coaching with a former Boston College teammate, Bill Switz, who is Kent State's head coach," Peters said. "We played junior varsity hockey together under Bob Riley, who is now the coach at West Point."

"When I heard of the opening at Kent State, I immediately applied and feel very fortunate at being selected."

North Quincy, under Peters, got off to a great start last season, winning its first five games against Greater Boston League opponents. The Raiders finished at 5-2 against the GBL, but when the Suburban League started, things went downhill and North went only 3-9-2 the rest of the way to finish at 8-9-2.

"I was disappointed that we missed the tournament, but I was pleased with our 5-2 mark against Greater Boston league teams," Peters said. North was competitive throughout the season and lost several tough games.

"North will have an excellent nucleus this season with 12 returnees from the varsity as well as the entire junior varsity team," Peters said. "I wish the new coach all the luck in the world and hope North makes the tournament."

Peters, a Quincy native, attended St. Mary's School and Abp. Williams High School, where he excelled in hockey.

After a year at New Prep he played for Boston College and two years ago was an assistant coach at Weymouth North High.

He came up through the Quincy Youth Hockey League, played in the New England Pro-Amateur League and the Pro-Elite League and has been playing in the Quincy Executive League.

Peters succeeded Kevin Jago, who took four of his seven North Quincy teams into the state tournament.

Balzano Expresses 'Total Opposition' To Waste Incinerator

Judith Balzano, 69 Edinboro Rd., Quincy, a Republican candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, expressed her "total opposition" to a proposed hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree at a recent public hearing.

Commenting on Clean Harbors, Inc. planned incinerator, Balzano said the proposed site in the Fore River industrial basin "already contains" several significant industrial facilities.

"It will be the home of the MWRA sludge processing plant. It is the proposed site for a new oil-burning Edison plant. If Clean Harbors is allowed to burn 45,000 tons of toxic waste each year, including deadly dioxins, the combined effect of all these facilities' emissions will be a death sentence to many of the 50,000 residents who live within one mile of the plant," Balzano told officials from the state Department of Environmental Protection at the hearing held at Broad Meadows Middle School.

"The past record of Clean Harbors is not pleasant to go over. They were charged with dumping lead, mercury and cyanide into the waters near Baltimore," Balzano said.

"They were fined for the collapse of a waste water plant. They were cited for safety violations in New York. A year ago, one of their tanker trucks caught fire. They had a chemical spill nearby in Weymouth Landing, and were fined for labeling violations of hazardous materials and improper storage of oils and solvents at the Braintree plant."

She also noted a company tanker truck overturned in Everett recently, spilling waste into the street.

"These are just a few of the things we know about, and they certainly are not a record to be proud of. Will it take our deaths to make those in authority realize that these people do not belong in our community," Balzano asked.

She also pointed out the area's densely populated area.

"We live in a densely populated area—200,000 people within a five-mile radius of the plant. We are a community with many senior complexes, nursing homes, schools and hospitals.

"Many of us grow the vegetables that go on our table. Our homes, our children, our grandchildren are here as well. You have it in your power to preserve our friendly, liveable community.

"You also have it in your power to turn it into a mass grave. The choice will be yours. I urge you, for the sake of our families and our children, to make the right one," Balzano said.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Keeping Crime Out Of The Family

Teen-agers tend to be anti-establishment and pro-peer.

It is certainly not unusual for them to get involved in pranks, even shoplifting, the use of alcohol or drugs or driving recklessly.

A child's teen years cover the time when a parent has to be particularly observant and has to work hardest to maintain an openness and rapport with their children to insure that they do not go astray. It's important to know who their friends are and to channel them into positive leisure activities.

Looking for Bad Signs:

Some danger signals may indicate that a youngster is straying from the straight and narrow path:

- If his/her friends get into trouble.
- If he/she has more possessions than his/her income warrants.
- If he/she talks about visiting stores and places where he/she would not logically go to make purchases or which attract bad types of individuals.

WEEK OF: August 30

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You are sometimes more perceptive about others than about yourself, and sometimes you concentrate on details and miss the significance of the larger picture. You are a loyal friend and relative, and your scruples are impeccable. Late 1990 focuses on a series of career decisions; early 1991 may see you making an important commitment.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

A good deal of loving and fro-ing takes place during this period with the result that you're in a stronger position than you were last week. If traveling, be sure to have the latest directions.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Sense of timing is sharper than it has been and this may be the right occasion for making a sensitive request. You're easily influenced by others; rely more on your own instincts.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

It seems that you're running a relay race-you're exhausted by the end of the period, but have made key strides in the areas of friendship and career. Business ideas require further review.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

You seek the advice of a broad circle of individuals; the key is to understand the motives of each advisor. Appreciation of nature helps in your own expressions of love and friendship.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Enjoy time spent outdoors but prepare for ever-changing conditions and avoid excesses. You may be on a spending spree-it may be wise to have a practical and prudent friend nearby.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Salesmanship skills are noteworthy, and you may find yourself in the public eye during this period. Philanthropic activities win you the admiration of someone you greatly respect.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

If making purchases-regardless of price-be sure you are satisfied with the warranties attached. If handling documents, read all the fine print. Love and friendship enjoy a more spontaneous approach.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

High-tech is the theme of the week, as you find yourself working with or learning about the latest equipment. On the other hand, an old-fashioned approach appeals to your romantic side.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Week has an exotic quality, and you find yourself experimenting with and enjoying new cuisines. Overall your approach is more modern. Colleagues are more open-minded and less critical.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

A more spontaneous approach can lead to a renewed friendship or the landing of a plum assignment. More time spent alone helps you sort out a personal dilemma. Health and fitness are spotlighted.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Week focuses on areas of health, recreation, and safety. Be wary of a potentially reckless streak. Friend may make too many promises. Supervisors are more lenient and generous.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

The theme this week is to expand on existing skills and build on talents. You may be slightly glib, so be wary of slick salespeople. Loved one is more motivated, thanks to your efforts.

BORN THIS WEEK

sub-committees: Beautification and Maintenance; Economic Development and Rehabilitation; Retail Strategy; History and Tourism.

Cahill, who commended all members for their input and dedication, noted the labor sub-committee submitted a preliminary report. It will hand in a master plan later, he said.

Commenting on the beautification recommendations, Sheets said:

- The city has already begun working on planting trees on Hancock Street from Granite Street to Saville Avenue. Also, Washington-style historic street light fixtures will replace cobra-head modern fixtures.

- By Christmas, Sheets says sidewalks on Hancock Street from Saville Avenue to Granite Street will be replaced by concrete lined with bricks.

He is considering inviting merchants and building owners to place flower planters on the sidewalk as well as benches surrounding trees along Hancock Street within the historic district.

Intermediate beautification goals include:

- Surrounding parking lots with green buffer zones; stationing a full-time cleaning and maintenance crew in the historic area everyday; demolishing existing comfort station in Hancock parking area; requiring owner of Kincaide's lot to improve appearance; and improve appearances of public buildings contiguous with Quincy Center.

As for economic development and rehabilitation, the mayor said:

- Building a "relief link" connecting Burgin Parkway to the Parkingway to relieve congestion at Granite Street and Burgin Parkway "is essential to downtown revitalization." He said this was an intermediate goal.

Also, he said he is considering the rezoning of the historic district from its current zoning to a new Historic Overlay District so that any major project over 25,000 square feet per lot would be subject to City Council overview and approval; and state boundaries.

Sheets called a "design review council" which would have sign-off control over store facades, signage and architecture "a good concept." He added, "This might be an intermediate goal."

Developing the Kincaide lot, Hancock parking area and a cultural center as part of the Presidents Place development "will be examined," the mayor said.

Finally, Sheets said giving current business owners and new developers incentives to work within the revitalization effort will be considered.

Short-term retail strategies include:

Filling all vacant office space, forbidding steel grates and window bars on storefronts, and marketing Quincy's retail, office and historic potential through a video.

The committee also recommended eliminating parking meters and replacing them with one-hour free parking. "We'll have to look at that right away," Sheets said.

The History and Tourism Committee recommended a partnership among Quincy, the National Park Service, the MDC, private business sector, organizations and citizens to develop a master plan for tourism resources within the city.

Short-term goals include: Signing all sites, major highways and parking facilities for visitors as well as providing a visitor center and restroom facility.

Other immediate goals include lighting historic structures such as City Hall and United First Parish Church.

In their preliminary report, the labor sub-committee recommended relocating all businesses on the eastern side of Hancock Street from Colman's to South Shore Bank over to the vacant retail space available on the western side of Hancock Street; and that the vacated one-story buildings be taken by eminent domain and demolished.

The eastern side would then be redeveloped to provide for multi-story office space with the businesses that were relocated given first priority to relocate back to the eastern side once construction had been completed.

The west side of Hancock St. would then be demolished, followed by new construction of multi-story office and retail space.

Sheets called this idea "a radical approach to redevelopment."

In the long run, we may accomplish that objective but I think it would be difficult to take a whole side of Hancock Street and knock it down. I don't see it as a reasonable approach."

Historical Style Lighting Fixtures For Center Area

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city, with the help of residents, corporations and civic groups, will soon begin replacing the aluminum cobra street lights in Quincy Center with cast iron historic-looking architectural lighting.

The lighting program, divided into three phases, will cover Quincy Center from School Street down Hancock Street, around the United First Parish Church including the Thomas Crane Public Library area, to Dimmock Street around the Adams Academy, across Dimmock Street bridge and down Burgin Parkway to the Adams Mansion.

The historical lighting fixture will be comprised of a Madisonian Post with a Washington twin ornate cross arm with acorn globes. They will stand approximately 22-feet tall.

The fixtures are made of sturdy cast iron and should add significantly to the historical character of the downtown historic district, Mayor James Sheets said.

Phase one of the project will include 42 lights placed in the area from approximately Granite Street around the United First Parish Church, from the driveway at Quincy Junior College up to Saville Avenue.

City officials hope the first phase will be completed before the Downtown Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Dec. 2. The mayor said the first phase should be completed by Dec. 15 at the latest.

Phase two, to be done next spring, will include 13 lights in the Hancock Cemetery, eight or nine new lights in McIntyre Mall, lighting around the library and down to the Dimmock Street bridge including the Adams Academy.

Phase three will take the lighting down Burgin Parkway to and around the Adams Mansion and also down Hancock Street to School Street. The final phase will be done in 1992 in conjunction with the redevelopment of the downtown area, Sheets said.

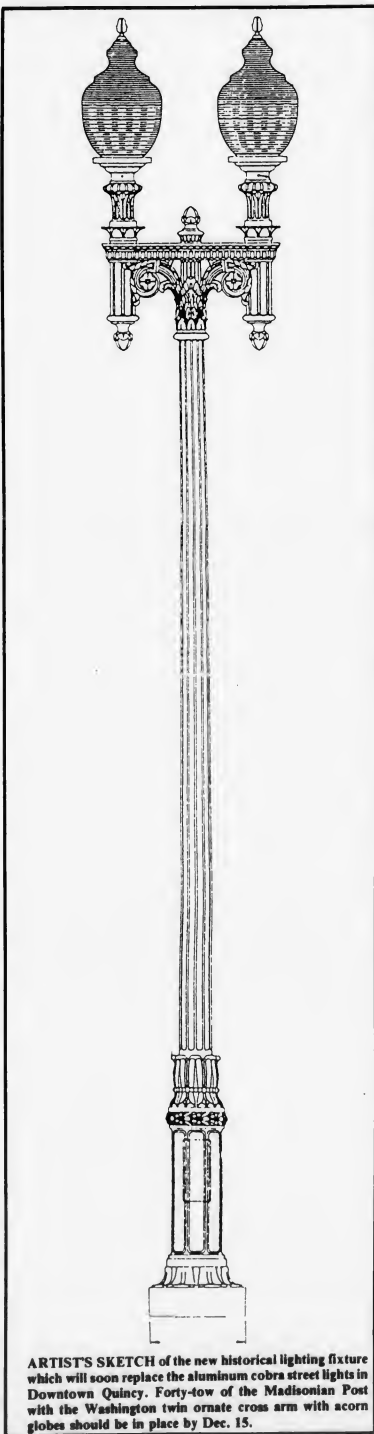

To help fund the renovation project, individuals, corporations and civic groups are being asked to purchase a light on behalf of the city. The light will then be dedicated with a bronze plaque to be inscribed as indicated by the contributor.

The cost to sponsor a light is $2,500. Twenty-three of the 42 lights in the first phase have already been subscribed, Sheets noted.

Total cost for the first phase of lights is $105,000.

The city will send out bids for the light installation. Sheets said installation should cost between $30,000

ARTIST'S SKETCH of the new historical lighting fixture which will soon replace the aluminum cobra street lights in Downtown Quincy. Forty-two of the Madisonian Post with the Washington twin ornate cross arm with acorn globes should be in place by Dec. 15.

Communication, Respect Cited Lt. Mullen Named New Police Chief

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Lt. Francis E. Mullen, a 33-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department, has been appointed the city's new chief of police by Mayor James Sheets.

Mullen, 58, who was selected over Quincy Police Sgt. William Falco and Newton Police Lt. Gregory Wright, will be sworn in today (Thursday) at 9:30 a.m. in the Mayor's Office by City Clerk John Gillis.

In announcing his decision, Sheets said both Quincy officers were extremely well-qualified to become the city's 13th police chief in the department's 98-year history. However, the mayor said Mullen's ability to communicate and make tough decisions gave him the edge.

"(Mullen) has the ability to communicate and work with members of the police department in these tough, difficult financial times, Sheets said, adding the new chief is well-respected throughout the department which gives him the ability to make tough decisions.

Becoming the city's next police chief is a "career achievement," Mullen said.

"I am very happy. It's a career achievement. I think I've put a lot of input into the department over the years.

"It'll be a challenge but I'll do my best for the city," he added.

As for any goals or changes he has for the department, Mullen replied, "We'll evaluate what we have and then make a goal from there.

CHIEF OF POLICE
FRANCIS MULLEN

We have a very good police department. We might realign the manpower a bit."

Mullen, a lieutenant for 20 years, joined the force in December, 1956 shortly after the death of his father, Francis J. Mullen. His father had been a Quincy patrolman for 35 years.

Beginning as a patrolman, Mullen worked his way up to patrol sergeant and has since served as a detective, a juvenile officer, police

Sheets Considering Bond Issue For School Maintenance

Acknowledging some city schools need repairs, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he will "look very seriously" at floating a bond issue to fund school building maintenance needs throughout the city.

"We're looking very seriously at a bond issue. Some of the schools are in tough shape and we're certainly going to do whatever we can do.

"We're just evaluating it at this time," Sheets said.

The mayor's comments were in response to a letter recently written by School Committee member Stephen Durkin. The letter was sent to Sheets and School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci.

Durkin's letter focused on his concerns with building maintenance problems at Central Middle School. He noted there were problems with a collapsed third floor ceiling, a buckled corridor floor and water-damaged walls and classrooms.

"I ask that these problems be attended to immediately," Durkin stated.

However Sheets said he would have to discuss the impact of the bond issue on the city budget with auditor Robert Foy first.

"I obviously, at the same time, have to consider the building needs on the municipal side because there are buildings on the municipal side in equally bad shape.

"The problem I'm wrestling with is that we're on the cutting edge for the FY 1992 budget. We need to look carefully at whether or not a bond issue will be at the expense of layoffs," the mayor said.

"The budget for FY 92 will be tight. My goal for FY 92 is no layoffs.

The question is, will a bond issue affect that?"

The mayor noted he has met with Ricci "on the prospect of a bond issue" for Quincy public schools. The bond is designed to deal with building needs for schools with students in kindergarten through grade 12.

Durkin said he understands the city and school department is operating "under the tightest budget constraints." However, he added, "It seems incredibly short-sighted not to protect our buildings from further serious damage."

"We have been talking about a meaningful bond issue to fund capital improvements for several years now. Let us not wait any longer.

"If we must pursue an override of the state's property tax-limiting law to exempt bonded indebtedness for such improvements, then let us tell Quincy citizens that it is necessary and ask for their support," Durkin said.

"It is painfully obvious that by allowing our buildings to deteriorate, the City of Quincy and its taxpayers will pay a great price in the long run," he added.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, a member of the Massachusetts Chapter of the Democratic Leadership Council announces the DLC will hold a forum to focus on the impact of the CLT Tax and Fee Rollback ballot question later this fall.

In a letter to House Speaker George Keeverian and Senate President William M. Bulger, the DLC advised the legislative leadership of the planned forum and stated "the DLC members would welcome an opportunity to work with you (the leadership) to fashion a positive response to the a CLT petition."

The DLC letter to the two leaders stated: "Any observer of the Massachusetts economy can see that the downward economic trend of the last two years has not stabilized. Consequently, revenues cannot be expected to grow in the coming year, and may even continue to decline. Clearly, under such circumstances, the state cannot sustain the current level of expenditure growth."

"With this in mind, the CLT/Hi Tech tax and Fee Rollback Initiative raises important questions regarding the role and direction of state government in the Nineties."

The Massachusetts DLC chapter has not taken sides in the tax cut debate, although a majority of its legislative members have opposed most of the recent tax increase.

The Massachusetts unit is a chapter of the Democratic Leadership Council, a national organization aimed at strengthening the Democratic Party at the grassroots by bringing it back into the political mainstream.

"The Massachusetts Democratic Leadership Council is an effort to give mainstream Democrats and the people of Massachusetts a greater voice in what the Democratic Party stands for," Morrissey said. "The Massachusetts DLC is a forum where Democrats in our state can develop, discuss, and promote grassroots ideas and mainstream values that will earn the confidence of ordinary citizens."

More than 300 elected officials in all 50 states belong to the national Democratic Leadership Council, which is one of the fastest growing Democratic groups in the country.

The DLC has already opened state chapters in Minnesota, Southern California and South Carolina, in addition to Massachusetts. Much like its national parent group, the Bay State unit has more than doubled in size in less than two months since its founding. It now boasts 62 members, up from the 30 members who joined at the Chapter's first meeting in late June.

Conditions surrounding Warren's Appliance Supply Inc. at 525 Washington St. were discussed in detail at Tuesday's meeting of the City Licensing Board. City Councillor Ted DeCrifaro observed that the entire block needs cleaning up. Lawrence Smith, proprietor, said he had cleaned up the area near the appliance store. One of the problems, he said, is that Quincy has no place to put scrap iron, and it is difficult for him to take it over to Brockton.

Owner of the block, according to Smith, is William Young of Hingham who rents it to various businesses.

The License Board voted to continue the hearing for 30 days so that the landlord could be asked to appear.

Recycling Could Be Silver Lining To Financial Clouds

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With a dark, ominous cloud looming on the city's financial horizon, recycling could prove to be a silver lining.

On Friday, Mayor James Sheets said the state has certified the city's free cash at $2.2 million. However, most of the surplus will soon be spent.

Just two months into FY 91, Quincy has a shortfall of $159,932 in its $120.7 million budget because of lagging revenue. With $1.1 million in additional liabilities, the city's free cash has already dwindled to $939,399 to be used for emergencies.

The other liabilities are: $259,662 to cap the West Quincy landfill; $270,738 for retirement incentives and $601,375 to pay for roadwork completed last year. Sheets noted the state was supposed to reimburse the city for the roadwork but reneged.

At this point, all department budgets appear to be funded adequately except for temporary loan interest. The mayor said the city will have to borrow $7 million to meet the payroll in February. The borrowing will cost approximately $250,000 in interest charges, he said.

Compared to the multi-million dollar surplus of former Mayor Francis McCauley, Sheets said the less than $1 million surplus has left the city "on the razor's edge."

As the mayor begins working on the FY 92 budget later this month, he is already projecting a shortfall of $173,977. Sheets is figuring on $1.7 million in additional property tax revenue and $1 million in new growth for a total of $2.7 million, next year.

However, $2 million in additional health insurance premiums and $1 million in Chapter 766 and fixed salary increases total $3 million in new expenditures.

"As we begin to build (the FY 92) budget, we're looking like we'll have to cut $273,977," Sheets said. "It doesn't give us anything for emergencies."

The FY 92 budget shortfall projection could grow if the city endures a bad winter with many snow and ice storms. A major problem in a city building, such as the $1 million structural defect in the Central Middle School last year, could pose other financial problems.

Sheets said his budget goal for FY 92 is to prevent any more layoffs. With cash tight, and the economy lagging, the city's recycling program could be his ace in the hole.

In fact, the mayor has begun riding with Browning Ferris Industries in the company's curb-side collecting truck. Sheets, who has already rode with BFI and helped collect newspapers, plastics and glass in West Quincy, Wollaston and Wollaston Hill, said he will go out every week until he's covered the entire city. Riding four to five hours every day, the mayor said his "tour" should be complete by the winter or spring.

Sheets said he is literally taking his recycling message to the streets to highlight the fact that recycling saves money and perhaps even jobs.

Over the program's first three weeks, 383 tons of recyclables have been collected for a weekly average of 127 tons. Since the cost to haul one ton of trash is $74, Quincy has already saved $28,350 in disposal costs.

Quincy is paying BFI $249,000 for the year, or $4788 weekly, for the service. After the cost to BFI is factored in, Quincy has actually saved $14,000 so far this year.

If Quincy maintains its present pace, the city will save $242,000 in actual dollars over the first year of the expanded recycling program. If the weekly average increases, Quincy could save $300,000.

Furthermore, Sheets said a savings of $300,000 would likely prevent 15 to 18 city workers from being laid off next year.

Commenting on his effort to keep residents aware of the recycling program and its benefits the mayor said "I think it's important for people to see me out there. It keeps 'the recycling spirit alive.'"

By riding with BFI, Sheets said, "You have an opportunity to converse with people. They can then tell their neighbors who maybe aren't recycling."

"The response has been good," he added.

Some city officials have applauded the mayor's effort and commitment.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the Recycling Committee, said, "In our community, people look to the mayor for guidance and leadership. Jim Sheets is providing what the recycling program needs—the mayor's stamp of approval."

"Those of us who volunteer on the recycling committee all hold full-time jobs and have family obligations, so we appreciate the fact that Mayor Sheets recognizes the benefits of recycling."

"He makes our jobs easier," Chretien added.

Anyone who wants to help the program can call Chretien at 472-1400.

"We can use all the help we can get. What we have at stake is the environment and potentially many thousands of dollars to be saved," Chretien said.

Editor: The Quincy Sun,
Back in mid-August, gubernatorial candidate John Silber addressing nearly 500 folks at a Boston Park Plaza hotel fundraiser stated, that "we have decided just to kick the hell out of Frank."

However, Silber's outrageous anti-Bellotti TV attack ad did much more than hell-raising, the advertisement was nothing less than a smear job questioning former Attorney General Frank Bellotti's personal integrity and was, apparently, another ad written with that old reliable AK-47 in hand.

To date, the Silber campaign has gone after the poor, the 'elderly, Blacks, Jews, Cambodians, women and now Italian-Americans.
Whenever an Italian-
American runs for office, immediately opponents and critics give 'em the old
'Godfather' or 'Goodfellas' treatment and attempt to link them somehow to organized crime. It's happened to U.S.
Rep. Geraldine Ferraro,
Gov. Mario Cuomo (NY),
Jim Florio (NJ) and most recently to Governor's Councilor Joseph A. Langone

3d. Bellotti, too, knows full well this Bay State tradition as he was the victim of such in both 1964 when he ran for governor and, again, in 1966 during an attorney general bid.

Though I am a registered Republican who will be casting a ballot in the upcoming GOP primary, I am an Italian-American, proud of my Sicilian roots and appalled that the anti-Italian bigotry that greeted my immigrant grandparents when they landed in America in the early years of this century is still alive and raising hell in 1990. John Silber owes both Frank
Bellotti and Bay State Italian-Americans one long overdue apology for a TV advertising strategy unbecoming of a serious candidate for Bay
State governor.

There is nothing subtle about character assassination, there is nothing subtle about ethnic prejudice and there is nothing subtle about John Silber's politics!

FROM CLUB TO CLUB ROOM (An Abbreviated History of Life Insurance)

From the time Cro-Magnon man encountered his first large reptile, life has been filled with peril. Advancing centuries and civilizations have not reduced threats to health and existence but refined and proliferated them at a dizzying rate. At some point, our prehistoric ancestors discovered that six men with clubs stood a better chance against a dinosaur than did a single unarmed individual. It was the earliest form of life insurance. Simply defined, insurance continues to be the transfer of a risk from an individual to a group and the equitable sharing of any loss.

Contemporary hazards, however, are often less obvious and more difficult to prove. There is no doubt that the insurance industry is responsible for increasing the public awareness of risk. It was an insurance company, for example, that finally compiled and released statistics on the relative longevity of smokers and non-smokers.

In spite of our best efforts, though, risk remains an inevitable part of life, but we are no longer in the Mesozoic Age. The insurance industry has experienced vast changes in recent years and now offers unprecedented opportunities for investment as well as sophisticated plans for security.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance

City's Population Down

Quincy's population is down, according to official U.S. census figures.

The figures, based on this year's census, show Quincy's population at 84,140. This is a drop of 804 from the 1980 U.S. official census figures.

This year's figures at this stage, however, are considered preliminary and could change until all the counting has been officially completed.

The 84,140 population figure includes a "group quarters population" of 1467. These are people living in dormitories like students at Eastern Nazarene College -- and others in shelters.

The city also shows a total of 37,653 housing units.
And, 2,146 vacant housing units.

The latter figure apparently reflects the glut of unsold condo units.

The final -- and official -- figures will be issued by the Census Bureau in 1991.

But Quincy definitely hasn't had any population boom these past 10 years.

SPEAKING OF FIGURES, City Clerk John Gillis reports that voter registration for this month's primary elections "was one of the biggest in the last 10 years."

And to what does he attribute it?
"I'm not sure," he says. "Maybe it's a rebellion against taxes."

There are 1,691 who registered:
420 Democrats, 168 Republicans and
1,103 Independents.

But, says Gillis, the city didn't actually pick up 1691 new voters. Of those 1691 about 500 were previously registered voters who decided to switch designation.

Most of the 500 were Democrats changing to Independent along with some Republicans making the same change.

But despite the switching to "Independent,"
Democrats are still in political control of the city.

The last official voter figures in July of this year showed a total of 46,748 registered voters.

Of these 6,820 were Republicans, 11,748
Independents and -- 27,952 Democrats.

And, in case there are any potential women candidates for next year's city election out there, women voters continue to outnumber and outgain men. Last July there were 26,468 female voters to 20,320 male

DISCOURSE ON DISCS

One of the chief causes of back pain is a ruptured or "slipped" disc. The intervertebral discs act as shock absorbers for the bones of the spine.

When one of these discs is damaged or slides out of position, it can compress the nerves within the spine and cause excruciating pain, and often numbness and even paralysis in the leg or foot. Disc problems are treated conservatively at first, with bed rest, and then with physical therapy. If these measures fail, surgery may be indicated. Before choosing this route, the physician will order X-rays and possibly a CAT scan. A dye contrast X-ray may be taken to reveal the extend of the disc obstruction. Surgery will remove the affected disc.
The two vertebrae may be then fused together. This process is called spinal fusion. Recovery usually requires several weeks.

P.S. A non-surgical method of disc removal using chymopapain injections is occasionally used. Its success rate is limited.

MWRA Inaugurates New Transportation System

Gov. Michael Dukakis has joined the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) in inaugurating a system of water and bus transportation that will move thousands of construction workers, dozens of trucks and tons of equipment each day on the Boston Harbor cleanup project. The MWRA is using barges, tugboats, ferries and buses to move vehicles, equipment and workers to Deer Island in Boston Harbor, the primary construction site on the $6.1 billion Boston Harbor Project.

The Authority inaugurated its $261 million, 10-year water transportation system with a two-hour boat tour of several of the sites in the network, including Deer Island, Nut Island in Quincy and the Fore River Staging Area (the former General Dynamics Shipyard) in Quincy.

The MWRA's guests for the tour included officials of the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection, representatives of local environmental organizations and members of the Authority's Citizen Advisory Committee.

"The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority is making real, tangible progress on the cleanup of Boston Harbor, and this creative water transportation is a part of the proof that we can not only get such a massive job done, but that we can do it without clogging our neighborhoods with construction traffic," said Gov. Dukakis.

"Today we saw more than $70 million in construction activity that will create thousands of jobs and pump millions of dollars into the local economy through the decade," he said. "Two of every three construction dollars awarded on the harbor project to date have gone to Massachusetts companies. This is just what we need to help jump start our economy."

"Our water transportation system will allow us to undertake the biggest public works project in New England without sending nearly 100 trucks and thousands of cars through the narrow, congested streets of Winthrop and east Boston," said Paul F. Levy, the MWRA's Executive Director. "Water transportation also allows us to bypass many of the region's highways, which are already choked with traffic. We believe our use of water transportation will serve as a model for other systems of marine transportation in Boston Harbor."

One of the ferryboats used in the system departed the Authority's administrative offices at the Charlestown Navy Yard at 9:30 a.m. and proceeded to Deer Island, where hundreds of millions of dollars of construction activities are under way.

The Authority's guests saw a barge loaded with trucks and other construction equipment leaving a recently-completed $27 million pier at Deer Island for its return trip to the Fore River Staging Area (FRSA) in Quincy. The Deer Island pier is one of six terminals in the MWRA's water transportation system.

Participants in the tour also observed work crews removing a large hill in the center of Deer Island that must be leveled to make way for the Authority's new primary and secondary wastewater treatment plant.

The boat then proceeded to the Authority-owned FRSA, where construction is under way on a $57 million plant that will convert sludge into fertilizer. When completed in 1991, the plant will allow the Authority to stop the daily dumping of 70 tons of sludge into the shallow waters of Boston Harbor.

The Authority is using the 180-acre as staging and laydown area for construction on the Boston Harbor Project. Trucks and other heavy construction equipment are shipped to Deer Island from recently-renovated piers at the FRSA, thus bypassing local highways and the narrow, winding streets of East Boston and Winthrop, which is connected to Deer Island by a thin strip of land.

The boat also cruised by Quincy's Nut Island, the site of an existing primary treatment plant that will be replaced by the Authority's new plant at Deer Island. The Authority's guests saw a completed $5.7 million pier at Nut Island that will allow for the shipment of bulk materials and the removal of construction debris during the demolition of the existing plant the creation of facility to screen sewage bound for the new plant at Deer Island.

Other sites in the Authority's system of water and bus transportation not seen on today's tour include Squantum Point in Quincy and Rowses Wharf in downtown Boston, where construction workers board ferries each morning for the trip to Deer Island; the former Suffolk Downs race track parking lot, from which construction workers are bused each morning to Deer Island; and the former Revere Sugar Corp. site on the Mystic River in Charlestown, which the Authority plans to use as a third terminal for the transportation of workers to Deer Island by ferry beginning in 1991.

A system of water and bus transportation is one of the conditions of the federal court order that governs the Boston Harbor Project. Under the terms of that order, the MWRA was required to have a system of water and bus transportation in place by June 1990. Marine transportation was also a mandatory mitigation measure required by the federal Department of Environmental Protection and was instrumental in winning the necessary state and federal permits for the project. The Authority's mitigation agreement with the project's neighboring community, Winthrop, also mandates a system of water transportation.

The water transportation system began operating on June 1st with the movement of barges between FRSA and Deer Island. Ferries began moving workers from Squantum Point and Rowses Wharf on June 25th. Bus service from Suffolk Downs began on July 16th. Construction workers are not permitted to drive their cars to Deer Island.

Currently, one barge, one tugboat, two ferryboats and three buses are employed in the system. During the peak period of construction activity on the project in 1993, the system will use two barges, six ferries and as many as 30 buses. By 1993, roughly 2,400 construction workers, as many as 90 trucks and tons of bulk materials will be moved to and from Deer Island each day.

The Authority has contracted with a joint venture of Boston Harbor Cruises, Alternate Concepts, Inc. of Boston, and the Modern Continental Construction Co., Inc. of Cambridge to provide ferry service under a five and one half year, $24.9 million contract. Boston Towing and Transportation Co., Inc., is providing barge and tug service under a five and one-half year, $29.8 million contract. A joint venture of Alternate Concepts and Modern Continental was awarded a $16.9 million, five and one-half year contract for the bus service. All three contracts were the low bids received in a widely-advertised request for proposals.

Plan A Referendum Ruled Off Ballot

The Board of Registrars of Voters and the City Solicitor ruled the so-called Plan A Referendum off the November ballots since its petition contained only 4,338 valid signatures, 181 short of the number required by law.

Miss Elizabeth McCarthy, a Boston handwriting expert, testified before a board hearing that she found 286 "forgeries" and 194 "altered or edited" names on the petitions that were turned in by Plan A supporters.

The Plan A people were seeking a return to the strong mayor form of government that prevailed in Quincy before the advent of the Plan E, or city manager, type of government in 1950.

DEGAN BLASTS KEITH

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. criticized Rep. Alfred B. Keith (R-Quincy) for his opposition to a bill that would have permitted Quincy to borrow $1 million to make emergency street repairs.

The City Council directed Deegan to sound out Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long to see if he would approve the use of $250,000 from the city's excess and deficiency fund to fix the streets.

HEDGES TO SUPPORT MACARTHUR

Sen. Charles W. Hedges (R-Quincy) disclosed that he will seek election as a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1992, a post he held in 1936, 1940 and 1948.

"If Gen. MacArthur decided to run, of course I would support him," said Hedges, who supported Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York at the 1948 convention.

DID YOU EVER HEAR OF ANYONE WHO SWITCHED TO OIL HEAT?

Probably not.

And there are some very good reasons why most people convert to gas heat instead of oil heat.

Natural gas supplies are more dependable and controllable. Because they come from right here in North America. And many experts predict these supplies will last for years to come.

Natural gas prices are more stable. They don't fluctuate like oil prices do.

Gas is considerably cleaner. And that makes it better for the environment.

There's no bulky tank to contend with either. And no waiting for a truck to make fuel deliveries.

Gas heating equipment is exceptionally efficient, too. That's important because now more than ever, we all need to conserve energy as much as possible. Since gas equipment also requires very few moving parts, there's very little that can break down.

So if you're considering updating or replacing your heating equipment, contact Boston Gas and your local heating/plumbing contractor or one of those listed below. After all, there are millions of other people every year who wouldn't hear of anything else.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Through the years we have made it a habit to save clippings that we like. Recently we came across one that was printed many years ago under the title, "Dare to Doubt," by Judd & Deweller Inc. in its "The Little Gazette." We would like to share it with you.

"It is a toss-up whether a man deserves more admiration for having the convictions or the courage of his doubtful Man have forfeited their lives in support of their convictions; on the other hand, others have aided the world immeasurably by daring to doubt."

At one time only "crackpots" believed that the earth was round. It took courage for Columbus to doubt his way to a new world. Years later when sailing ships regularly crossed the ocean, some courageous doubter thought they could do it by steam power. An "expert" of his day insisted the idea was preposterous, and wrote a book to prove it. The skipper of the first steamship that crossed the Atlantic carried the book with him... Long ago a distinguished philosopher declared, "The future is dark with doubts. How blind he is! The future is BRIGHT with doubts. When an idea strikes you, ask yourself, 'WHY NOT?'"

Balzano Urges Workfare Legislation

Stating "the time has come for welfare recipients in Massachusetts who are able to work for their benefit checks to do so, and make a contribution to the society which supports them," Judy Balzano, Republican candidate for state representative, urged passage of a 'workfare' program as a partial solution to the state's fiscal woes.

Balzano noted 32 states now utilize some form of 'workfare' in their welfare programs. "In California," she said, "one third of men on welfare dropped from the rolls when assigned to workfare 15 to 20 hours per week. In most cases they were welfare cheats who were already working under the table and couldn't be available for the workfare hours. The elimination of these cheats saved the taxpayers millions of dollars."

"On the other hand," Balzano said, "persons with pre-school children and those with genuine disabilities would not be required or expected to take a job. This is not a program that is designed to punish anyone but the cheaters. It is meant to cultivate good work habits in those who participate, encourage the able-bodied to start helping themselves, and take some of the burden off the backs of the taxpayers. It's a piece of legislation that I will make one of my top priorities when I take office next January."

DISPENSERS ANSWER FEEDBACK

Feedback may be encountered as the hearing impaired person becomes accustomed to a new hearing aid. This very common hearing instrument symptom may be described as a whistling, buzzing, or humming sound coming from the aid. In many cases, feedback may be corrected by making adjustments to a loose earmold. At the dispensers disposal are a number of techniques and materials that render hard or soft build-up of earmolds a simple matter. In other cases, the dispenser may see fit to reduce the size of the hearing aid's vent in order to eliminate gain. It also may be necessary to build up the tip of the canal portion of a canal aid. Regardless of the cause of feedback, the dispenser is trained to isolate its cause and effect a solution.

HINT: Internal feedback is more likely to affect canal instruments than other types of hearing aids.

Sr. Paschala Noonan Guest Speaker Special Ministry Day At St. John's Sept. 22

A special Ministry Day will be held Saturday, Sept. 22 at St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Some 200 lecturers, eucharistic ministers, acolytes, ushers, cantors and other lay parishioners who participate in the Parish liturgies and ministry are expected to attend the daylong program beginning at 9 a.m. and concluding with a concelebrated Mass.

Keynote speaker will be Sister Paschala Noonan, O.P., a former parishioner of St. John's church and prominent Catholic educator, administrator, author, advocate for the elderly, and health specialist.

Under the guidance of several other key leaders of the Archdiocese of Boston, each ministerial group will have an opportunity to study its own ministry and reflect on its meaning and purpose.

According to Fr. Gary Sullivan, parochial vicar at St. John's and coordinator of the program, "the ministry day will reaffirm our commitment to serve God's people. With faith renewed we will be more aware and appreciative for all God has done and wants to do here at St. John's," Fr. Sullivan said.

The ministry day program is the first of its kind to be held on such a large scale involving so many ministries.

Following Sr. Paschala's keynote address there will be six workshops followed by reflection, discussion, prayer, lunch and Mass.

Fr. William McCarthy, St.

Sr. PASCHALA NOONAN

John's pastor, will open the program with greetings. William Horne, Boston College professor and parishioner will then introduce the guest speaker. Horne is moderator for the day.

For the guest speaker, it is a homecoming, having lived and been educated in Quincy prior to joining the Dominican Sisters of St. Catherine, Kentucky, 52 years ago. She was a parishioner at St. John's and has maintained close ties with the parish throughout her religious life.

During her varied and distinguished career as a religious nun, Sr. Paschala has taught in parochial schools in several states and at St. Catherine's Junior College in Kentucky.

She is a nurse and was the administrator of a Dominican sponsored community hospital in McCook, Nebraska. While in Nebraska, she became the first women appointed by a governor to be chairman of the Nebraska State Board of Health.

In between her teaching, nursing and hospital assignments, she became a prolific writer and received numerous journalism awards.

The workshops and leaders will be as follows:

The Assembly: Rev. Paul Rouse, Pastor of St. Camillus, Arlington. Fr. Rouse is the former Director of the Office of Worship of the Archdiocese of Boston.

Presiders (priests and deacons): Rev. Mr. Leo Martin, school teacher of Peabody. Rev. Mr. Martin is a Permanent Deacon at St. John's, Peabody.

Eucharistic Ministers: Sister Regina Harrington, C.S.J. of Milton. Sr. Harrington is Pastoral Associate at Our Lady of Good Counsel, Quincy.

Lectors: Aurile Hagstrom of Revere.

Music Ministry: (choir, folk group, cantors): Andrea Goodrich, Director of Music, St. Brigid's church, Lexington.

Ushers, senior acolytes: Rev. Cornelius Heery, Pastor of Sacred Heart church, Quincy. Fr. Heery is the Vicar for the Quincy Vicariate.

The priests of St. John's, Rev. William McCarthy, Rev. James Tuxbury, Rev. Ted Fortier and Rev. Mr. Charles Sullivan, permanent Deacon, will participate in the workshop for presiders.

Rev. Monsignor Dennis F. Sheehan, Director of the Office of Worship of the Diocese, has been invited to be a special guest.

The program is being sponsored by the Spiritual Development Commission of St. John's Parish Council. Mary Bonish is the commission chairperson.

Raymer Has Good Nucleus 10 Starters Return At Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

Jack Raymer is starting his seventh year as Quincy's football coach as the Presidents move into the Old Colony League and is very optimistic.

"This is the strongest we have been at the skilled positions since I began coaching."

Raymer has 10 returning starters, five other lettermen and a fine group of sophomores who last year excelled on a tremendous freshman team which went undefeated.

"We have a good nucleus and several of the sophomores will be playing regularly," Raymer said. "Our weakness will be an inexperienced offensive line. It is a strong group but lacks varsity experience."

The offense will be built around co-capt. Mark Bogan who, as a junior last fall, had a brilliant season. He gained over 2,500 yards overall, rushing and pass receiving, scored 20 points in the 27-26 loss to North Quincy, rushed for 1089 yards, despite playing hurt in the first three games, ran for 167 yards against North and had seven interceptions playing safety on defense.

"Mark carried the load last year, but this year and Jason Anderson is back after missing all but two games last fall and he will give Bogan a lot of help on offense," Raymer said. "We will have good balance with five quarterbacks who can pass and several good ball carriers."

Co-capt. Mike Flavin and Gary Collins shared the quarterback duties in 1989 and both are back, pushing them will be Pat Gallagher, who saw considerable action last year; Joe Crespi and Robby Kane, a fine looking sophomore who will also be a wide receiver and play defensive halfback.

Bogan, co-capt. Bill Reardon, Mark Zaborowski, Jason Kelly and Noel DiBona, another fine looking sophomore, will be the tailbacks and the fullbacks will be Anderson, Bob Crespi, Ally Sleiman, Bob Stanton, Vic Horton and sophomore Dave Bogan, Mark's brother.

A fine group of wide receivers is led by Chris Walker and includes John Fahey, Dan Thackary, Colin Kelly, Dave Cahill and Kane.

The tight ends will be Dave Chapman (205), sophomore Mike Kavanaugh (225), Shawn Kennedy, Mike Malvesti and Sean McArdle. The tackles will be Pat Neil (235), Dave Frye, Keith Norris (225), and sophomore Dwayne Holmes (235).

At guard will be co-capt. Mike Tempesta (225), co-capt. Graham Chevy and his twin brother Dave, sophomore Steve Fernald (230) and Tom Burton.

The centers will be Scott Buckmann (210), Chris McLaughlin and Ray Byrne.

Many of the offensive players will also play on defense.

The ends will be Chapman, Kennedy, Collins, Malvesti and sophomores McArdle, Mike Gardner and Eric McPartlin.

Defensive tackles will be Neil, Frye, Buckmann, Tempesta, Burton, Norris and Claircent Demesrei.

Linebackers will be the Chevy brothers, Bob Crespi, Anderson, Sleiman, Horton and Kavanaugh.

Defensive halfbacks will be John O'Connor, Fahey, Cahill, Walker, Joe Crespi, Kane and another sophomore Brian McNamara.

The safeties will be Mark Bogan, Reardon, Stanton, Chris Lewis, Zaborowski and Jason and Colin Kelly.

Bogan and Bob Crespi will do the punting. Collins will kickoff and Bogan and DiBona look like excellent placekickers.

Quincy in the past has been weak on kickers for extra points and field goals.

"The players worked hard during the off-season under coaches Bob Noble and Bob Keuther," Raymer said.

Quincy, which has scrimmaged Newton North and Don Bosco and has one more with Brookline, will open its season at Marshfield in a non-league game Sept. 15. It will host Bridgewater-Raynham Sept. 22 at 1:30 in its first OCL game.

JOHN HARTNER, 10, of North Quincy finishes first in the 7-12 age category at the recent MDC Stone Zoo's fourth annual 'run wild' road race.

Sports

Molloy Assistant Athletics Director At Brandeis

Jack Malloy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Molloy of Quincy, has been promoted to assistant director of athletics for sports information and promotions at Brandeis University.

Molloy, a Quincy native and a graduate of St. Anselm College, has been the sports information director for the past five years. He joined the staff after nearly two years as the sports information director at Quinnipiac College, Hamden, CN, and he worked as director of media relations for the Pawtucket Red Sox.

McPhee Likes What He Has Seen North Squad Young And Inexperienced

With only six returning players on offense and two on defense, North Quincy's football squad is young and inexperienced, but coach Ken McPhee, in his ninth year (41-36-2) likes what he has seen so far.

"We are farther ahead at this time than we were a year ago and these kids are working very hard," McPhee said. "I'm happy at what we have been able to do and what the kids have grasped."

"Since we are moving into a new league (Old Colony) I don't know what to expect, but I think we should be all right."

On offense North will have veteran Desmond Bellot, who should have an outstanding season, Donny Anderson, Pat Shea, Jason Buckley and Willy O'Connell at wide receiver and veterans Mark Kelleher and Jason April at tight end.

The tackles will be Pat

Fahrtz and Mark Zych (225), the guards will be Adam Strout (200), Co-Capt. Mike Oliva and Chris McCallum and Pat Swierk (208) is back at center.

A key man in the Raiders' plan will be quarterback Mark Taylor (200), a transfer from Braintree where he was a two-way starter. Backing him up is sophomore Liam Higgins, who looks like an excellent place kicker.

Co-Capt. Evan Kiley is back at fullback and Co-Capt. Rich Brooks, Chris Murray and Mark Cocuzzo lead the running backs.

On defense Taylor and Kiley will be at end, Zych at tackle, Oliva at nose guard, Kelleher, McCallum, sophomore Eric Deloreyu, Swierk, Mike Murray, Sean Moran, Bill Mills and Mike Picariello. Linebackers and Bellot, April, O'Donnell, Brooks, freshman Tony Ricciardi, an excellent prospect, sophomore Sean Heron, Brendan O'Connell, Chris Peck and Buckley defensive backs.

"All the veterans should have outstanding seasons," said McPhee. "Taylor looks awfully good at quarterback and Higgins also looks good. North has been known for its excellent field goal kickers and I think Higgins will be another fine one. He also will do the punting."

"The running game will be built around Kiley and Chris Murray and Brooks is also a fine running back. This is a good, solid group and if we can keep away from key injuries we should be OK. The Old Colony League has some strong teams, especially Weymouth, now that is one school again, and Plymouth."

The Raiders have scrimmaged Hanover, Braintree and Xaverian and have one more Saturday at Marshfield.

North will open at home against non-league opponent Somerset Friday night, Sept.

14, at 7 and will play its first league game Friday night, Sept. 21, at Falmouth at 7.

2 Local Women To Play, Coach Hockey In Germany

By TOM SULLIVAN

Sheilah Graham of North Quincy and Leslie Matthews, formerly of Quincy and now a resident of Stoughton, will leave Wednesday morning, Sept. 12, for Germany where, for the next eight months, they will be playing hockey on the senior women's teams as well as being assistant coaches and helping out with the two younger teams.

"They are providing us with everything we need," Graham, 23, a former Quincy Sun carrier, said.

"They are paying our airfare both ways as well as all travel expenses while we are there. An apartment will be paid for by them and they will provide us with the food as well.

"What they are looking for from us is our helping their younger players to develop more into the sport. This is an opportunity Leslie and I couldn't pass up."

The opportunity for the two women to travel to Sweden came this spring. Both women, as well as Karen Horrigan of North Quincy, were due to go to Sweden to play for the Team New England, USA team in an international tournament.

Plans didn't work out and the team, which won the championship last year, was unable to make the trip. Sheilah went to Europe representing the team and became friends with those seeking women from this country to help out with their hockey programs.

LESLIE MATTHEWS

"When I was told of the opportunity, I couldn't say no and Leslie and I are eagerly looking forward to it," Graham said.

"We were all disappointed that the team couldn't make the trip to defend its championship, but I was very happy to go back there to meet my pen pals who I met last year. The letters are great to read; it is sort of like a puzzle, just like mine probably are to them. It was something I was looking forward to."

Graham has been playing hockey in the Quincy Youth Association program since she was nine years old and still plays with the QYHA women's team coached by Mary Ellen Reardon, who came up through the Quincy program and was an outstanding player at Providence College.

Matthews, 28, also has played in the Quincy program for several years and plays on the Quincy women's team. She played with Reardon at Providence College.

Graham was an excellent softball, basketball and soccer player at North Quincy High.

Quincy Boys Open Against Falmouth Sept. 11

With a good nucleus of veterans, Quincy boys' soccer coach Ged Phelan is excited as the Presidents prepare for their first Old Colony League game against Falmouth next Tuesday at 3:30 at the soccer field next to Veterans Stadium.

Quincy will host Barnstable next Thursday at 3:30 and will meet North Quincy Monday, Sept. 17 at Kincaid Park under the lights at 7 p.m.

"We have a lot of boys back from last year and the varsity experience should help us," said Phelan. "We are in a new league and don't know quite what to expect. We will have some tough competition as I feel that from top to bottom the Old Colony League is stronger than the Suburban League."

"Our numbers are up this year so we should be able to field a junior varsity team for the first time in six years."

The Presidents are lead by co-captains Dean Morris, Eddy Fineda and Chi Fai Yu. "Dean and Chi Fai are fine defenders and Eddy should lead the way offensively," Phelan said.

Big things are expected from junior goalkeeper Jim Harris. Other returning starters are John Kalatzidis, Chris Loi, Hai Truong and John Lewis.

North Boys Kick Off At Plymouth Sept. 13

With 30 returning players, the North Quincy boys' soccer team will kick off its first season in the Old Colony League Thursday, Sept. 17 at 6:30 p.m. at Plymouth.

Plymouth, a perennial soccer powerhouse, will be a good challenge for the young Raiders as well as the new coaching staff, varsity coach Bob Dano, junior varsity coach Bob Doyle and freshman coach Alex Couets.

The schedule will feature several night games, including the first meeting with Quincy Monday, Sept. 17 at 7 p.m. at Kincaid Park.

Sean Hannon, Scott Harris, Chris Hill, Mike Kane, Paul Kearns, Tae Kim, Nhut Ly, Kevin Murphy, Steve O'Brien, Aidan O'Donoghue, Chris Olsen, David Scott and Mike Walsh.

Returning sophomores are David Bellanick, Mark Cahill, Adam Calvert, David Chan, Jeff Earnest, Brian Fitzgerald, Brian Kelley, John Laing, Mike MacDougall and Bo Smith. Freshmen include Kevin Chan, Neil Hutchinson, Bob Johnston, Scott McCormick, Eddie Mitton, Kevin Ross and Sean Williamson.

Incoming freshmen are urged to come out for the team and report to Montclair Field tomorrow (Friday) at 3 p.m.

city of Quincy. The debt has been brought to court previously, had continued for the past 15 years, starting with his father who had turned the business over to Nicholas, Gillis said.

Devincentis said he could make payments of only $50 a month on the bill, which Gillis said was unsatisfactory.

The board voted to continue the hearing for two weeks during which Devincentis would meet with the City Treasurer and City Solicitor to work out a plan whereby the settlement of the debt could be completed in six months.

LOCAL PROGRAMMING FOR CONTINENTAL CABLEVISION
(617) 471-9609

Continental To Mark Cable Programming Week With Special Events

Continental Cablevision is participating in Local Cable Programming Week, Sept. 9-15, a celebration highlighting cable's locally produced programming.

QCTV-3 will celebrate with special events, community promotions and a brand new line-up of shows and specials for Quincy residents.

Sept. 7, 10 and 11, the QCTV-3 mobile van will be at various locations promoting the new QCTV-3 logo with t-shirts, bumperstickers and balloons.

The mobile van staff will also hand out surveys about local programming to determine public preferences for viewing times and to find out what types of programs people would like to see.

Those who fill out the short questionnaire will be entered into a drawing for one of 12 chances for a free month of HBO or Cinemax. Surveys will be available at the Continental office, 81 School St., and must be returned by noon on Sept. 14.

Sept. 7 the van will be at Beechwood Community Life Center, Fenno Street, at 9 a.m. At noon the van will be at Wollaston Beach across from the Clam Box.

Sept. 9 is the QCTV-3 Open House at the School Street office. Festivities begin at 2:15 p.m. with a Mayoral Proclamation of Local Programming Week and a cake cutting ceremony at 2:45 p.m. A cake will be donated by Montilio's Bakery.

Tours of the studio and facilities and demonstrations of equipment and community services will be given throughout the afternoon.

Visitors may also buy videograms which will be produced in the studio after 3 p.m. for $10. Videograms are short video messages that can be given to family and friends.

Videograms will be produced with backdrops of Quincy inserted behind them from still photos with the chroma key effect. Participants may bring their own photos for a personalized background but people appearing in the video cannot wear any shade of blue as that is the color used in the chroma key process.

Sept. 11, the van crew will visit the Martinsen Street lunch site for seniors. Watch channel 3 for additional times and locations for the van.

QCTV-3 will also launch the Quincy Trivia Contest during Local Cable Programming Week. The contest is designed to promote the historic legacy of Quincy and QCTV-3's new logo, which features five of Quincy's historic sites. Grand prize is a VCR with runner-up prizes of free pay-per-view movies, t-shirts and more.

Entry blanks are available at Continental, city hall, libraries and the QCTV-3 van. Watch Channel 3 for the answers to the six questions. Answer the questions correctly on the form and return it to Continental by noon Sept. 14.

A drawing for the VCR and other prizes will be held live on Channel 3 Sept. 15 at 10 a.m. Winners will be notified by phone.

QCTV-3 will kick off its extended programming hours for the season with new morning and afternoon times to reach audiences which are unable to view at night.
